51ST CONGRESS, 1st Session. } HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES. { EX. DOC. No. 106.

NATIONAL ROAD FROM THE AQUEDUCT BRIDGE TO MOUNT VERNON, VA.

LETTER

FROM

THE SECRETARY OF WAR,

TRANSMITTING

With a letter from the Chief of Engineers a report of a survey for a national road from the Aqueduct Bridge to Mount Vernon, Va.

JANUARY 14, 1890.—Referred to the Committee on Appropriations and ordered to be printed.

WAR DAPARTMENT,
Washington City, January 9, 1890.

The Secretary of War has the honor to transmit to Congress, in compliance with the act approved February 23, 1889, a letter from the Chief of Engineers, dated the 8th instant, together with a copy of the report, maps, and estimates, submitted by Lieut. Col. Peter C. Hains, Corps of Engineers, the officer detailed to "make the necessary surveys for a national road from a point in Alexandria County, Virginia, at or near the Virginia end of the Aqueduct Bridge, and thence through the counties of Alexandria and Fairfax, in said State, to Mount Vernon."

REDFIELD PROCTOR.
Secretary of War.

The SPEAKER OF THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES.

OFFICE OF THE CHIEF OF ENGINEERS,
UNITED STATES ARMY,
Washington, D. C., January 8, 1890.

SIR: The act of Congress approved February 23, 1889, provides as follows:

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, That the Secretary of War be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to detail one or more Engineer Officers of the Army to make the necessary surveys for a national road from a point in Alexandria County, Virginia, at or near the Virginia end of the Aqueduct Bridge, and thence through the counties of Alexandria and Fairfax, in said State, to Mount Vernon, who shall report the same, together with the estimated cost of building such road, to the Secretary of War, who shall transmit the same to Congress.

SEC. 2. That the sum of ten thousand dollars, or so much thereof as may be necessary, to be expended under the direction of the Secretary of War, be, and the same is hereby, appropriated, out of any money in the Treasury not otherwise appropriated, to defray the expenses of the United States in carrying out the provisions of this act: Provided, That nothing herein shall be construed to bind the Government of the United States to pay for any portion of the right of way for the avenue contemplated by this act.

Approved February 23, 1889.

In accordance with this act, and with your approval, the charge of this survey was assigned to Lieut. Col. P. C. Hains, Corps of Engineers, on the 13th of March, 1889. The field-work was begun May 10, 1889, and completed September 17, 1889. The final report, accompanied by drawings, sections, and estimates was finished January 4, 1890.

In accordance with the act, this report, with maps and estimates, is respectfully submitted.

Very respectfully, your obedient servant,

THOS. LINCOLN CASEY,
Brig. Gen., Chief of Engineers.

Hon. REDFIELD PROCTOR,
Secretary of War.

UNITED STATES ENGINEER OFFICE,
Washington, D. C., January 4, 1890.

GENERAL: The act of Congress approved February 23, 1889, is as follows:

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, That the Secretary of War be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to detail one or more engineer officers of the Army to make the necessary surveys for a national road from a point in Alexandria County, Virginia, at or near the Virginia end of the Aqueduct Bridge, and thence through the counties of Alexandria and Fairfax, in said State, to Mount Vernon, who shall report the same, together with the estimated cost of building such road, to the Secretary of War, who shall transmit the same to Congress.

SEC. 2. That the sum of $10,000, or so much thereof as may be necessary, to be expended under the direction of the Secretary of War, be, and the same is hereby, appropriated out of any money in the Treasury not otherwise appropriated, to defray the expenses of the United States in carrying out the provisions of this act. Provided, That nothing herein shall be construed to bind the Government of the United States to pay for any portion of the right of way for the avenue contemplated by this act.

Approved, February 23, 1889.

By order of the Chief of Engineers, United States Army, the work was assigned to my charge March 13, 1889.

The field work was begun May 10, 1889, and finished September 17, 1889, the party being under the immediate charge of Mr. B. F. Mackall, civil engineer, whose report is appended hereto.

The survey was started from the south end of the Aqueduct Bridge, and covers all that section of country between Mount Vernon and Washington and the Potomac River, and a line nearly parallel to and distant from it about 3 miles. In making the map of the region surveyed, advantage was taken of the work heretofore done by the Coast and Geodetic Survey, but the profiles were constructed from actual surveys and measurements on the ground.

The estimates are made from the profiles constructed on a horizontal scale of 1 inch to 200 feet and a vertical scale of 1 inch to 30 feet.

Three principal routes were surveyed, the first designated as the eastern or river route, the second the middle, and the third the western. A number of points on each route were connected with points on the adjacent ones, and the profiles of the connecting lines plotted, so that, besides the three principal routes, others can be made by combining parts of one with parts of another. The survey of the three main routes, with their intermediate connections, furnishes, it is believed, all the information needed to base an estimate of the cost of constructing a "national road" to Mount Vernon. It is to be understood, however, that the several routes are laid down approximately. In many places the alignment could be somewhat changed to advantage, and the grades might in the same way be modified. Both can be done, within reasonable limits, without materially affecting the cost.

The country lying between the city of Washington and the Mount Vernon estate is generally of an undulating character. There are high points from which fine views are obtained, and, while they may not be termed grand, some of them are certainly beautiful. There are two valleys, the surfaces of which rise but little above tide-water. These are the valleys of Big Hunting Creek (sometimes called Cameron Run) and Four-Mile Run. The valley of Little Hunting Creek, a third depression, is not so low. The general course of these valleys is perpendicular to the general line of direction of a road to Mount Vernon, consequently they all have to be crossed, no matter what route be taken. The topography of the country admits of good grades, while it is sufficiently undulating to afford good drainage.

There are points of interest along all of the routes. Fort Myer and the National Cemetery at Arlington are near by. The old town of Alexandria, near which any route must pass, abounds in objects that were associated with the Father of his Country, while many of the hills are even yet occupied by the remains of old earthen forts built during the war for the Union.

In order to determine the kind of roadway that is called for in the act, the question occurs, What is its object? It is not for commerce. It has no military value. It does not partake of the nature of an ordinary work of internal improvement. It is true, it would be of great value to the section of country through which it would pass, but to the nation it has practically no pecuniary value. What, then, is the object? It is to commemorate the virtues of the grandest character in American history. It is to satisfy the cravings of a patriotic sentiment that fills the hearts of the American people to honor the name of Washington.

Whatever tends to keep alive the memory of his character and virtues will tend to make us all better citizens of the Republic. A road, therefore, built from the capital of the nation to the tomb of its founder, would not be such as is built for ordinary traffic. It should have the character of a monumental structure, such as would comport with the dignity of this great nation in such an undertaking, and the grandeur of character of the man to whom it is dedicated. The question of cost would be one of secondary consideration.

Such a national highway would be for all time. It would be always in a process of development. With the increase of population would come increased demands, for which provision must be made at the start, as far as human foresight can do so. A good road, 24 feet wide, would to-day meet the existing demands of travel, for there is not a fairly good road in existence between Mount Vernon and the capital, though the distance is only about 14 miles; but a great nation like ours would hardly undertake to construct a country road to Mount Vernon as a memorial to Washington. If undertaken at all, something far better is called for. It should be wide enough to give it character, and still have room for future adornment and expansion. The grades should be light, the alignment in graceful curves, and it should pass over some of the high grounds from which the beautiful scenery along the route could be enjoyed, and possibly near the places that Washington himself frequented—places that now have a historical interest because associated with him. Parking, either on each side or in the center, or both, should form an essential feature. The roadway should be well paved and well kept. In fine, it should be such a work as no American need feel ashamed of. The crossings of all streams, as well as of the tracks of the several railroads that run into Alexandria and Washington, should be on permanent constructions of stone masonry, the designs of which should be in harmony with the monumental character of the work. Iron trussed bridges, while they might be used in the early stages, would be neither permanent nor in keeping with the general design of a work of this character. If used at all, they should be only as temporary expedients.

The act making the appropriation calls for "surveys of a national road from a point in Alexandria County, Virginia, at or near the Virginia end of the Aqueduct Bridge." As before stated, the survey was started from the south end of that bridge, but it would be far more in keeping with its character as a "national road" to have it start from some point on the Arlington estate, at the terminus of a handsome bridge spanning the Potomac. The question of constructing a memorial bridge across the Potomac at or near the foot of New York avenue, connecting Arlington Cemetery with the capital, has already been the subject of Congressional consideration, and doubtless a bridge of some kind will be constructed there at no distant day. The Virginia end of such a bridge would seem to be the most suitable point of starting for a "national road" to Mount Vernon. Not only is the point of starting more in keeping with the general design, but the distance from the capital to Mount Vernon would be materially shortened.

The initial steps in such a work need not be extravagantly costly. Much of it would at first be of a temporary character, to be replaced by more permanent structures later on. It is necessary, however, to provide ample width. A right of way 250 feet wide has been provided for in the estimates. Perhaps the greater part of it would be donated by people along the route; but $100 per acre has been assumed in the estimates as a safe valuation. Over this strip from Arlington to Mount Vernon it is assumed that the State of Virginia would readily cede its jurisdiction to the United States for such an undertaking. The cost of such right of way is so insignificant an item, that it is better to provide for all possible future contingencies at the beginning.

In the estimates 80 feet of road-bed has been assumed as the minimum that should be constructed, as it is important that all embankments should have ample time to settle and become compacted. A road-bed of 80 feet would admit of a driveway of 50 or 60 feet, and 15 or 10 feet of parking on each side of it. It is believed, however, that it would be preferable to make the road-bed 120 feet, with 60 feet for a drive and 30 feet of parking on each side, and estimates have been made for this also. The parking could be utilized in many ways over a part of the route. Within a short time it might be necessary to provide a traffic roadway to accommodate heavy teams.

The masonry bridges should be about 60 feet wide, as they will be permanent constructions not susceptible of increase in width.

The road covering should not be injurious to a horse's feet. At the same time it should give a smooth surface. Such a surface is furnished by what is known as the Telford covering. It consists of a paving of rough stones about 8 inches deep. This is covered by about 6 inches of small broken stone, and this by about 4 inches of gravel, the latter put on in layers, screened and well rolled. The road should be well drained and provided with paved gutters on each side to convey surface water to the openings into drain pipes and culverts. Such a road, for pleasure driving, is perhaps the best that can be made. A gravel covering to the road-bed, carefully laid, about 15 inches deep, without the Telford paving, will make a good road for driving, and the cost can be very much reduced.

The estimates provide for either a Telford paving or one of gravel only. There is an abundance of good gravel throughout this entire section and no lack of other material to make good roads. The brick-yards along the river between Washington and Alexandria are of easy access, and can supply material for culverts and other constructions at reasonable rates. The surface of the country abounds in cobble-stones, which will supply good material for side gutters and can be broken up for road covering if needed.

By an arbitrary increase or diminution of grade the cost of construction on any route can be increased or diminished. In order, therefore, to make the estimates of cost on the various routes comparable one with another, a maximum grade had to be assumed. This maximum was fixed at 4.5 feet per 100. No steeper grade is provided for, and wherever it can be done without undue enhancement of the cost, the endeavor has been to keep the grade down to about 3 feet in 100. There are but few places on any route where the grade reaches the maximum. Where the land is level a grade of .50 foot in 100 has been given to secure drainage.

The alignments on the different routes were run to secure overhead crossings to all railroads where practicable. The valleys of Big Hunting Creek and Four-Mile Run, which have to be crossed, are occupied by the railroad tracks of the Washington and Ohio, Richmond and Danville, and Alexandria and Fredericksburg railroads. To cross these roads at grade would materally decrease the cost of construction, but grade crossings over railroads ought to be avoided, and overhead crossings have been provided for in all cases where it was practicable to do so.

The following is a description of the three main routes that were surveyed, together with eight others made up of parts of these three principal ones, with their connections. They make eleven in all, though some differ but little from each other:

(1) The east or river route.—Beginning at the south end of the Aqueduct Bridge it follows the bed of the abandoned Alexandria and Georgetown Canal to Alexandria; thence along Washington street to Big Hunting Creek, crossing the latter stream near the Alexandria brick-yards; thence along the low grounds east of the Accotink Pike to a point near Old Red House; thence bearing westward, it crosses Little Hunting Creek about a mile east of Gum Spring, and thence bears southward to Mount Vernon. From the Aqueduct Bridge to Prospect Hill, 2½ miles south of Alexandria, the route passes over a comparatively level country, and the grades are the minimum. From Prospect Hill to Mount Vernon the grades are easy, and in no case exceed 3 feet per 100. The alignment along the canal is somewhat tortuous, as the latter follows the natural contour as far as practicable. This route is low as far as Prospect Hill, and consequently has few fine views of the surrounding country. Two of the railroad crossings are on grade, which can not be avoided. It is the line of minimum grades, passes through Alexandria, and is conveniently reached from the Long Bridge crossing of the Potomac.

The estimated cost over this route is as follows:

For a road-bed 80 feet wide, 60 feet Telford covering and 10 feet of parking on each side	$1,555,506
For the same road-bed and parking, but with 15 inches gravel covering	1,107,481
For a road-bed 120 feet wide, 60 feet Telford covering, and 30 feet of parking on each side	1,819,869
For same road-bed and parking, but with 15 inches gravel covering	1,371,844

These estimates do not include work within corporation limits of Alexandria, Va.

(2) The middle route begins at the south end of the Aqueduct Bridge, follows the general direction of the Georgetown and Alexandria road, east of the National Cemetery, crosses the Columbia pike at Johnson's store, and reaches a commanding point at old Fort Albany; thence the line passes along the crest of a narrow ridge, descending into the valley of Four-Mile Run by the route of the old Alexandria road, now abandoned. After crossing Four-Mile Run it ascends the ridge, crossing the Washington and Ohio Railroad overhead, and passes directly in front of Frank Hume's residence; thence across the Leesburgh pike, back of Shuter's Hill, where it descends into the valley of Hunting Creek, crossing the Richmond and Danville, and Alexandria and Fredericksburg railroads overhead; thence, bearing to eastward, the line crosses the gravel road to the Accotink pike, the general direction of which it follows to Gum Spring; thence it follows the ridge east of the public road, and nearly parallel to it, to Mount Vernon.

The grades from the Aqueduct Bridge to Fort Albany are light, in no case exceeding 3.6 feet per 100. To descend the valley of Four-Mile Run and to ascend the ridge south of that stream the maximum grade has been used; from there the grades are reasonably good, except at the deep ravine north of Shuter's Hill, at which place and at the crossing of the railroads the maximum gradient has been used. From Hunting Creek to Mount Vernon the grades are generally light, not exceeding 3 feet in 100. The alignment is fairly good, except on that portion lying between Four-Mile Run and Hunting Creek, where deep gullies indent the ridge and necessitate a more tortuous route.

The middle line, occupying for the most part the ridge adjacent to the river, affords an almost unbroken view of the latter from the Aqueduct Bridge to Prospect Hill. From there on, the scenery is of a rural character. By an increase in the maximum grade and proportional increase of cost this line could be carried over Shuter's Hill, from which one of the finest views of the river and surrounding country can be obtained. The railroads are all crossed overhead.

The estimated cost over this route is as follows:

For a road-bed 80 feet wide, 60 feet Telford covering and 10 feet of parking on each side	$1,468,490
For the same road-bed and parking, but with 15 inches gravel covering	977,160
For a road-bed 120 feet wide, 60 feet Telford covering and 30 feet of parking on each side	1,736,199
For the same road-bed and parking, but with 15 inches gravel covering	1,244,869

(3) The west route, beginning at the Aqueduct Bridge, follows the extension of Chadwick avenue, Rosslyn, for about 2,000 feet; thence up the valley of a small stream north of the National Cemetery, passing in front of the military post of Fort Myer, reaching an elevation of 235 feet above tide level; thence over a level plateau to the Columbia pike, after crossing which the line follows the general direction of the Fairfax Seminary road, descending the valley of Four-Mile Run and crossing the Washington and Ohio Railroad overhead; thence it ascends the ridge south of the Run, in the valley of a small stream, and after reaching the summit passes over a wide plateau, crossing the Leesburgh pike near its junction with the Braddock road; thence it passes about 1,400 feet east of the Theological Seminary, and descends into the valley of Hunting Creek, crossing the tracks of the Richmond and Danville and Alexandria and Fredericksburgh railroads overhead. The line then bears to southeastward till it reaches the valley of a small tributary of Hunting Creek; it then follows this valley, crossing the Gravel and the Mount Vernon roads just north of Spring Bank farm; it then follows the general direction of the Mount Vernon road southward, descending into the valley of Little Hunting Creek near the residence of Mr. Collard. From this point the line is nearly straight to Gum Spring, near which it unites with the middle route, and from thence to Mount Vernon the two are identical.

From the Aqueduct Bridge to Fort Myer the grades do not exceed 3 feet per 100. In the descent into the valley of Four-Mile Run and the ascent on the opposite side the grade is generally 3 feet per 100, but for a short part of the distance it is 4 feet per 100. Crossing the plateau east of the seminary the country is level and the minimum grade obtains. Descending the valley of Hunting Creek the grade is 4.5 feet per 100. South of that stream, as far as James Kirby's, the grades are light, not exceeding 2.7 feet per 100. In the descent into the valley of Little Hunting Creek the grade is 4.5 feet per 100 for a distance of 3,000 feet. From thence the grades are light.

The estimated cost over this route is as follows:

For a road-bed 80 feet wide, 60 feet Telford covering and 10 feet of parking on each side	$1,390,898
For the same road-bed and parking, but with 15 inches gravel covering	930,824
For a road-bed 120 feet wide, 60 feet Telford covering and 30 feet of parking on each side	1,661,047
For the same road-bed and parking, but with 15 inches gravel covering	1,200,973

The following is a summary of the estimates on the three principal routes, and eight others made up of parts of the three principal routes and intermediate connections. For a description of routes Nos. 1 to 8, inclusive, see report of Mr. Mackall, hereto appended.

*Estimate includes no work within the corporation limits of Alexandria, Va.

It will be noticed that there is comparatively little difference in the estimated cost of construction over any of the routes enumerated, so that practically this question is one of minor consideration. I have endeavored to supply such information in regard to all as will enable Congress to decide as to which is the most desirable.

Attention is invited to the fact that the eastern route passes through the city of Alexandria, along the line of Washington street. In the estimates nothing has been provided to be done within the corporate limits of that city, as it is not known what the authorities of the city would do in regard to the portion of the route within its jurisdiction. The survey was carried through the city in compliance with the earnest wish of the members of the Mount Vernon Avenue Association, and in order to supply estimates covering all practicable routes. The legal and other questions involved in locating a route through Alexandria have not been considered.

The State of Virginia has already taken preliminary steps looking to the construction of a road from Washington City to Mount Vernon by granting a charter to a corporation known as the Mount Vernon Avenue Association. This association has power to acquire the right of way for an avenue 200 feet wide by condemnation, donation, or purchase, and to conduct and keep in repair a public avenue or highway thereon and to adorn and beautify the same. The State of Virginia has also transferred to the said association a claim against the General Government for $120,000—money said to have been advanced by the State in 1790 toward the completion of certain public buildings in Washington, D. C. A copy of the charter referred to and the act of the State of Virginia transferring its claim for the $120,000 is appended hereto.

I transmit herewith a copy of the report (appended) of Mr. Mackall, together with maps and drawings as follows:

1. Map of a portion of Alexandria and Fairfax Counties, Va., showing routes surveyed.
2. Profile of west route.
3. Profile of middle route.
4. Profile of east route.
5. Four profiles of auxiliary connecting lines.
6. Cross-section of proposed roadway, 80 feet wide.
7. Cross-section of proposed roadway, 120 feet wide.
8. Sketch of proposed bridge over Washington and Ohio Railroad, west route.
9. Sketch of proposed bridge over the Alexandria and Fredericksburgh and Richmond and Danville Railroads.
10. Sketch of proposed bridge over Hunting Creek, west route.
11. Sketch of proposed bridge over Hunting Creek, east route.

Very respectfully, your obedient servant,

PETER C. HAINS,
Lieutenant-Colonel, Corps of Engineers.

The CHIEF OF ENGINEERS, U. S. ARMY,
Washington, D. C.

REPORT OF MR. B. F. MACKALL.

WASHINGTON, D. C., December 18, 1889.

COLONEL: I have the honor to make the following report of the surveys made under your supervision for a national roadway from Washington City to Mount Vernon.

The field-work was begun on May 10, the party going into camp on the 17th of that month. The work was pushed forward as rapidly as possible, but, owing to the unprecedented rain-fall during the spring and summer, was not completed until the 17th of September, 1889.

Starting at the south end of the Aqueduct Bridge, three principal lines were surveyed to Mount Vernon, namely: The east or river route, the middle, and the west, the distance between the outer lines being about 3 miles. The topography of the country and increase of distance made a more western survey unnecessary. In addition to the above, numerous short surveys were made connecting the principal lines at various points and forming with them continuous lines to Mount Vernon. Upon several of the more important of these combined lines estimates have been made. The topography of the country was accurately taken in the vicinity of the lines, the principal streams, highways, railroad crossings, and other important features carefully located. The names of property owners and, as far as could be ascertained, the boundaries of their lands were taken, the contours and other details being obtained from the U. S. Coast Survey map and checked wherever possible. The instruments used in the field-work were a transit and "Y" level, the measurement being made with a 100-foot chain, and steel tape when greater accuracy was required. The transit lines were accurately and carefully run, with the view of obtaining close preliminary lines on which to base the estimated cost of construction. Mean low water of the bench-mark near Easby's Point was taken as the reference of all elevations. Elevations were taken over all the lines, and bench-marks established at intervals of 1,000 feet, so that accurate profiles could be obtained, the total error in elevation of the sun-dial at Mount Vernon, as established by the various lines of levels, being .07 of a foot. Where the country was rough and broken elevations were taken at right angles to the lines, and upon these cross-sections the estimates for the 80-foot road-bed are based. In estimating for the 120-foot road-bed it was found that an average cross-section, supposing the ground level or having a uniform slope, would require an increase of about 40 per cent., but owing to the fact that in many instances the ground was very rough it has been thought safer to use 50 per cent.

The country covered by the surveys is generally rough and broken. The long ridge, rising about 200 feet above tide, which skirts the west bank of the river, is indented by deep ravines and broad valleys. The lowlands between this ridge and the river, extending from the Aqueduct Bridge to Prospect Hill, 2½ miles south of Alexandria, offer substantially a level surface for the proposed avenue. The geological formation is principally coarse gravel mixed with clay or sand, overlying a strata of compact clay; beneath this clay, at a great depth, there is a coarse, perishable sandstone, outcropping just north of Mount Vernon. From the nature of the formation, in seasons of continued rain the upper strata of porous sand and gravel will have a tendency to slide upon the underlying clay. South of Hunting Creek, along the river, there are unmistakable evidences of such slides having taken place. Just north of the Mount Vernon mansion a slide took place last spring and summer, and, from actual observations, moved at the rate of 10 feet per month, glacier-like, carrying everything before it. Inland from the river there appears no evidence of slides having taken place in recent years.

As the basis for the estimated cost a maximum gradient of 4.5 feet per 100 and a minimum of .50 foot per 100 have been adopted. The preliminary lines have been run with the view of crossing the several railroads above or below grade wherever possible, believing that the increase of traffic of the railroads and the avenue, if constructed, would render crossings at grade out of the question, however inexpensive.

Two estimates have been made of each of the several lines, viz: For an 80-foot road-bed—60 feet of Telford roadway with 10 feet of parking on each side. (2) A 120-foot road-bed—60 feet of Telford roadway and 30 feet of parking on each side. From the formation of the country and the absence of all indications of rock, but two classes of material have been estimated upon, viz: Earth and stiff clay, the former at 30 cents per cubic yard and the latter at 50 cents, the cost of moving to include an average haul of 500 feet, the limit of free haul being taken at 200 feet. On account of a probable restricted right of way, borrowed material has been estimated at 40 cents per cubic yard, as material other than earth may have to be used. The prices for masonry, brick or stone, include the cost of cement, sand, and construction. The prices for excavation, embankment, the cost of construction of masonry, etc., are based on the cost of work of like character on the several railroads of the country, and it is believed that any of the lines can be constructed within the estimates at the present cost of labor and material.

In order to avoid repetition as far as possible only a general description of the three principal lines is given, and of the combined lines wherever they differ materially from those already described.

The various lines of survey for the Mount Vernon avenue have been designated in the field-notes by certain letters of the alphabet, and this nomenclature has been used for the profiles of the same. Thus A, or the middle, line extends from the Aqueduct Bridge to Mount Vernon. C line from station 10 plus 80 A line, by Fort Myer to station 131 plus 54 A line. E line from station 225 A line to station 93 N line. F line from station 233 A line, through Alexandria, to station 453 A line. H line from station 68 plus 80 C line to station 716 A line. I line from station 178 plus 30 H line to station 323 A line. K line from station 78 plus 60 H line to station 146 plus 97 H line. N line from station 26 plus 30 F line to station 211 plus 65 F line. O line from station 465 A line to station 552 A line. P line from station 211 plus 65 F line to station 435 plus 60 H line. R line from station 415 A line to station 335 H line. S line from station 300 A line to station 397 A line. T line from station 465 plus 60 H line to station 499 H line. V line from station 540 A line to station 777 A line. X line from station 453 A line to station 84 V line. Y line from station 235 V line to station 815 plus 50 A line.

THE EAST LINE.

Beginning at the south end of the Aqueduct Bridge it follows the bed of the old Alexandria and Georgetown Canal to Washington street, Alexandria (station 106 plus 40 F line of the field-notes); thence with that street produced to station 3 (X line of the field-notes); thence along the lowlands, between the river and Accotink pike to station 157 plus 93; thence bearing west it crosses Little Hunting Creek about 1 mile below Gum Spring, uniting with the middle line at station 777; thence by the middle line to Mount Vernon. From the Aqueduct Bridge to Prospect Hill, 2½ miles south of Hunting Creek, the country is comparatively level, and the grades correspondingly light. From thence to Mount Vernon in no instance will they exceed 3 feet per 100, and are generally far below that gradient. Excepting certain portions of the canal, which is more or less winding, the alignment is excellent. Portner's switch and the Baltimore and Ohio track in Alexandria are crossed at grade.

This estimate does not include 7,000 feet through the corporation limits of the city of Alexandria.

THE MIDDLE LINE.

Begins at the Aqueduct Bridge and follows the general direction of the public road east of the National Cemetery to station 131, Fort Albany. Thence along the narrow ridge between the river and north branch, descending by the old military road to the valley of Four Mile Run to station 233, from which point branch lines pass through and back of Alexandria. From station 233 the line ascends the ridge passing in front of Mr. Hume's residence. Thence across the Leesburgh pike, west of Shuter's Hill, it descends to the valley of Hunting Creek, crossing the Little River pike and the tracks of the Richmond and Danville, and Alexandria and Fredericksburg railroads near the Episcopal Chapel. Thence bearing eastward, crossing the gravel road near Oliver Pullman's to station 453 on the Accotink pike. Thence with the general direction of said pike to Gum Spring. From Gum Spring the line takes the ridge just east of the public road and parallel with it to station 796, the north boundary of the Mount Vernon Association's property. From this point the line was extended to the Mansion House, the estimates being made out only to station 796, the aforesaid boundary. From station 465 to station 552, two lines were surveyed up Prospect Hill. The one on which the estimates are based, to the west of the pike, is 300 feet longer, but has the advantage in grade. From the Aqueduct Bridge to station 180, the grades are generally good, for a short distance 3.6 feet per 100 being used to ascend the ridge to Fort Albany. The descent into the valley of Four Mile Run, and the ascent south, the maximum grade of 4.5 feet per 100 has been used. Thence to Hunting Creek the grades are reasonably good, with the exception of the maximum grade at the crossing of the several railroad tracks and the deep ravine back of Shuter's Hill. From Hunting Creek to Mount Vernon the grades are light and need not exceed 3 per cent., about that gradient being required to ascend and descend the ridge at Prospect Hill and the ridge south of Gum Spring. The alignment is generally good, except from Four Mile Run to the Little River pike, where, owing to improved property, the cemetery back of Shuter's Hill, and other obstacles, the preliminary line is more or less tortuous. All railroads are crossed overhead.

THE WEST LINE.

Beginning at the Aqueduct Bridge the west line follows Chadwick Avenue (Rosslyn) produced, thence up the valley of a small stream north of the National Cemetery to Fort Myer, reaching an elevation of 235 feet at station 7 (H line of the field-notes). From Fort Myer the line is perfectly straight to station 78 plus 60, south of the Columbia pike. To descend into the valley of Four Mile Run two lines were surveyed, uniting at station 146 plus 97. The first, straight down the bluff, was more direct by 350 feet, but requiring a steeper grade by 1 foot per 100. The second, upon which the estimates are based, follows the general direction of the Fairfax Seminary road. Ascending the ridge south of Four Mile Run the line crosses the Leesburgh pike near its junction with the Braddock road, and, passing east of the seminary, it descends to the valley of Hunting Creek. Thence from Hunting Creek, bearing eastward, the line ascends the valley of a small stream near Peter Pullman's, crossing the gravel and Mount Vernon roads near Spring Bank farm. Thence with the general direction of the Mount Vernon road, on the east side, it descends the ridge near Collard's to the valley of Little Hunting Creek. Thence to Gum Spring the line is practically straight, uniting with the middle line at station 716, just south of that stream. Thence with the middle line to Mount Vernon as before described.

From the Aqueduct Bridge to Fort Myer the grades do not exceed 3 feet per 100. Thence as far as the Seminary road the minimum grade is generally used. The descent into the valley of Four Mile Run, and the ascent south, 3 feet per 100 can be obtained. For a short distance 4 feet per 100 has been used. Across the plateau east of the seminary the grades are very easy. The descent to the valley of Hunting Creek the maximum grade is used. Thence as far as the ridge at Collard's the grades do not exceed 2.7 feet per 100. The ridge breaking off suddenly to the eastward the descent into the valley of Little Hunting Creek is abrupt, and the maximum grade has been used for nearly 3,000 feet. To obviate this a preliminary line was surveyed around the hill, increasing the distance but giving a lower gradient. Across the valley of Little Hunting Creek to Mount Vernon the grades are excellent. The alignment throughout is fairly good. All railroads are crossed overhead Begins at the Aqueduct Bridge and follows the east line through Washington street, Alexandria, to station 456 of the middle line south of Hunting Creek, thence by the middle line to Mount Vernon. The maximum grade is about 3 per cent., and the alignment fairly good. The Baltimore and Ohio Railroad and Portner's Switch are crossed at grade.

LINE NO. 1.

ESTIMATES.

For 80 feet of road-bed, with 60 feet Telford paving	$1,441,915
For 120 feet of road-bed, with 60 feet Telford paving	1,675,370
For 80 feet of road-bed, with 60 feet gravel	984,447

LINE NO. 2.

Beginning at the Aqueduct Bridge, follows the east line to Jefferson Street, crossing Hunting Creek near the site of the present bridge, thence up Spring Bank Run, east of the gravel road, to station 435 plus 60 of the west line; thence with the west line to Mount Vernon. The grades and alignment are those of the east and west lines as before described. The valley of Spring Bank Run is of very easy ascent, not requiring over 3 feet per 100. The Baltimore and Ohio Railroad and Portner's Switch are crossed at grade.

ESTIMATES.

For 80 feet of road-bed, with 60 feet Telford paving	$1,386,453
For 120 feet of road-bed, with 60 feet Telford paving	1,514,730
For 80 feet of road-bed, with 60 feet gravel	953,405
For 120 feet of road-bed, with 60 feet gravel	1,059,682

LINE NO. 3.

Begins at the Aqueduct Bridge, thence with the middle line to station 233, thence back of Alexandria, near the National Cemetery, to station 7 plus 50 (P line of the field notes), thence up the valley of Spring Bank Run, east of the gravel road to station 435 plus 60 of the west line, thence with the west line to Mount Vernon. All railroads are crossed under or above grade. The grades and alignment are those of the middle and west lines. From station 233 of the middle line to station 7 plus 50, P line, the country is comparatively level.

ESTIMATES.

For 80 feet of road-bed, with 60 feet Telford paving	$1,485,907
For 120 feet of road-bed, with 60 feet Telford paving	1,756,629
For 80 feet of road-bed, with 60 feet gravel	1,037,556
For 120 feet of road-bed, with 60 feet gravel	1,308,278

LINE NO. 4.

Begins at the Aqueduct Bridge, thence with the middle line to station 233, thence back of Alexandria, near the National Cemetery, to station 453 of the middle line, thence by the middle line to Mount Vernon. All railroads are crossed under or above grade. The grades and alignment are those of the middle line, excepting from station 233 to station 453, over a comparatively level country, and need not exceed 3 feet per 100.

ESTIMATES.

For 80 feet of road-bed, with 60 feet Telford paving	$1,541,493
For 120 feet of road-bed, with 60 feet Telford paving	1,774,202
For 80 feet of road-bed, with 60 feet gravel	1,063,513
For 120 feet of road-bed, with 60 feet gravel	1,296,221

LINE NO. 5.

Begins at the Aqueduct Bridge, follows the middle line to station 233, thence by St. Asaph's Junction, through Washington Street, Alexandria, to Station 453 of the middle line, thence by the middle line to Mount Vernon. The railroads at St. Asaph's Junction, Portner's Switch, and the Baltimore and Ohio tracks are all crossed at grade. The grades and alignment do not differ materially from line No. 4.

ESTIMATES.

For 80 feet of road-bed, with 60 feet Telford paving	$1,532,210
For 120 feet of road-bed, with 60 feet Telford paving	1,806,995
For 80 feet of road-bed, with 60 feet gravel	1,066,257
For 120 feet of road-bed, with 60 feet gravel	1,341,041

LINE NO. 6.

Beginning at the Aqueduct Bridge, follows the middle line to station 540, Prospect Hill, thence along the ridge between the river and the Accotink pike to station 158 of the east line, thence with the east line to Mount Vernon. The grades and alignment differ but little from the middle line. All railroads are crossed overhead.

ESTIMATES.

For 80 feet of road-bed, with 60 feet Telford paving	$1,569,646
For 120 feet of road-bed, with 60 feet Telford paving	1,816,753
For 80 feet of road-bed, with 60 feet gravel	1,072,129
For 120 feet of road-bed, with 60 feet gravel	1,319,236

LINE NO. 7.

Beginning at the Aqueduct Bridge follows the west line to Fort Myer, thence along the ridge west of the National Cemetery to Fort Albany, station 131, of the middle line, thence with that line to Mount Vernon. The only difference between this line and the middle line is that the former passes by Fort Myer. All railroads are crossed overhead.

ESTIMATES.

For 80 feet of road-bed, with 60 feet Telford paving	$1,519,925
For 120 feet of road-bed, with 60 feet Telford paving	1,801,632
For 80 feet of road-bed, with 60 feet gravel	1,012,314
For 120 feet of road-bed, with 60 feet gravel	1,294,022

LINE NO. 8.

Beginning at the Aqueduct Bridge follows the west line to station 335, south of Hunting Creek, thence along south side of said stream to station 415 of the middle line, thence with the middle line to station 540, Prospect Hill, thence along the ridge between the river and Accotink pike to station 158 of the east line, thence with that line to Mount Vernon. The grades and alignment are those of the various lines of which it is composed, heretofore described. All railroads are crossed overhead.

ESTIMATES.

For 80 feet of road-bed, with 60 feet Telford paving	$1,601,711
For 120 feet of road-bed, with 60 feet Telford paving	1,894,444
For 80 feet of road-bed, with 60 feet gravel	1,074,239

CHARTER OF THE MOUNT VERNON AVENUE ASSOCIATION.

AN ACT to incorporate the Mount Vernon Avenue Association.

1. Be it enacted by the general assembly of the State of Virginia, That John B. Smoot, E. W. Fox, Jefferson Chandler, M. B. Harlow, E. F. Beale, Jackson E. Sickles, Frank A. Reed, N. W. Pearson, Stacy Snowden, J. T. Beckham, W. E. Clarke, F. R. Windsor, Park Agnew, Frank Hume, George Johnston, Warrington Gillingham, H. A. Willard, W. M. Galt, Doctor G. Wythe Cooke, D. A. Windsor, Harrison Hatch, R. Portner, Walter Walton, Rozier Dulaney, H. H. Wells, L. L. Blake, R. L. Lacy, Captain Lawton, Francis Hufty, C. E. Stewart, J. Norman Gibbs, James M. Love, and James W. Roberts are hereby made and constituted a corporation and body politic, with power to increase the same, under the name and style of the Mount Vernon Avenue Association, by which name this corporation shall be known, and under which it may sue and be sued, contract and be contracted with, within the scope of its power as a corporation, and shall have perpetual succession.

2. Said corporation shall have the power to acquire right of way by condemnation, donation, or purchase for a public avenue and highway, not exceeding two hundred feet in width, from a point south of the Aqueduct Bridge or the northern boundary of the Government park, reservation, or cemetery, known as Arlington, on the Potomac River; thence through the county and city of Alexandria, passing through Washington Street of the said city of Alexandria, and through the county of Fairfax to the grounds inclosing the tomb of Washington, known as Mount Vernon, over the most practicable route to be selected by the trustees of said corporation, and to conduct and keep in repair a public avenue and highway thereon, and to adorn and beautify the same.

3. Said corporation shall be governed by the trustees herein named, a majority of whom shall constitute a quorum, and their successors in office. The said trustees, or quorum thereof, shall have power to fill all vacancies happening in their number by death, resignation, or otherwise.

4. Said association shall have power to receive subscriptions or contributions from the United States, the State of Virginia, or any State or Territory of the United States, or any county, corporation, person, or municipality thereof, to promote the accomplishment of the objects of this association.

5. Whatever is received by the association, from any source shall, without compensation to the trustees herein provided for, be expended to open, construct, build, keep in repair, and beautify the said avenue, and for such other charges as the said trustees may approve and determine.

6. The city of Alexandria is hereby authorized to aid the construction of said avenue in the city of Alexandria to the amount of twenty-five thousand dollars, to be paid either in cash or in the bonds of said city, as the city of Alexandria shall elect.

7. The counties of Alexandria and Fairfax are hereby, and each of them is, authorized to aid in the construction of said avenue, by issuing their respective bonds not exceeding two thousand dollars for each county per mile of said avenue, or by contributing the same amount in cash.

8. The said corporation shall have power to condemn land, as the power to condemn for public use is now defined and exercised for public purposes under and by virtue of the general laws of the State of Virginia, and in exercising said power in condemning lands for said avenue and highway, advantages and benefits accruing to the owner of adjoining lands whose land is condemned for said avenue and highway, by virtue of the increase in value of said adjoining lands, shall be considered and deducted from any damage which said party may sustain by virtue of the condemnation proceedings herein contemplated for the purpose of establishing said avenue or highway.

9. Said trustees are hereby authorized to permit, under restrictions, regulations, conditions, and terms as said trustees, or a quorum thereof, deem advisable, such means of carrying passengers over said avenue as will not disturb the enjoyment of said avenue by ordinary private vehicles and carriages and means of travel; provided steam shall not be used as a motive power for carrying passengers.

10. This association shall have jurisdiction and authority to keep the peace on and over the said avenue, and power to appoint special policemen with the advice and consent of the judge of the county or corporation courts in whose jurisdiction they shall be employed, and said policemen shall have and exercise the same powers now or hereafter conferred upon constables and municipal police officers conferred by the laws of the Commonwealth of Virginia.

11. Said trustees shall make to the government of Virginia a detailed annual report of the receipts and expenditures of this association.

12. The principal office of this association shall be in the city of Alexandria, and its annual meetings shall be held in said city on the last Tuesday in the month of May in each year.

13. All taxes, dues, or demands due the State, or to become due by this company to the State of Virginia, shall be paid in lawful currency of the United States, and not in coupons.

14. This act shall be in force from its passage.

Approved February 18, 1888.

JOINT RESOLUTION transferring a certain claim of the State of Virginia against the Government of the United States to the Mount Vernon Avenue Association, chartered by this State.

Whereas, by an act of the general assembly of this State, passed December twenty-seventh, seventeen hundred and ninety, there was loaned by this State to the United States the sum of one hundred and twenty thousand dollars, to be applied towards the erection of the public buildings at the permanent seat of the Government of the United States, which said money so loaned by this State was paid in person to the then President of the United States, General George Washington, and disbursed under his supervision for the purpose for which it was loaned; and

Whereas, by resolution number five, adopted by this assembly March fifteenth, eighteen hundred and fifty (acts of assembly of Virginia, eighteen hundred and forty-nine–fifty, page two hundred and thirty-five), the claim of this State against the United States for the return of said loan was transferred to the Orange and Alexandria Railroad Company under certain conditions and with power to said company to demand and receive the same and the interest thereon; and

Whereas, the said claim having remained in the hands of said railroad company for nearly twenty-eight years without an appropriation by the Congress of the United States to pay the same, and the said company having become insolvent, this assembly, by its joint resolution approved February twentieth, eighteen hundred and seventy-eight (acts of assembly of Virginia, eighteen hundred and seventy-seven-seventy-eight, chapter sixty-nine, page sixty), repealed the said resolution adopted March fifteenth, eighteen hundred and fifty, transferring said claim to said railroad company, and requested, by said resolution of February twentieth, eighteen hundred and seventy-eight, the Senators and Representatives of this State in the United States Congress to exert their best efforts to recover the amount of the claim aforesaid; and

Whereas, this State, by its act of assembly passed during its present session, has lately granted a charter to the Mount Vernon Avenue Association, the object of which is to make an avenue or road to the tomb of General George Washington, as specified in the said charter; and

Whereas, the said claim, now nearly one hundred years old, never having been paid, and this assembly deeming the objects of the charter to said Mount Vernon Avenue Association worthy of patriotic approval, and considering that the said one hundred and twenty thousand dollars was paid to, handled, and disbursed under the supervision of General George Washington, to whose tomb said avenue will lead: Therefore be it

1. Resolved by the general assembly, That the said claim of one hundred and twenty thousand dollars of this State against the United States, growing out of the loan aforesaid, under the act of this assembly passed December twenty-seventh, seventeen hundred and ninety, be, and the same is hereby, transferred to the said Mount Vernon Avenue Association, chartered as aforesaid by this State, and that said Mount Vernon Avenue Association be, and is hereby, empowered to demand, collect, and receive the said claim, and the interest thereon, from the Government of the United States; and when recovered or received from the United States the said Association shall pay, from the gross amount so recovered or received by it, to the special agent of this State, appointed by the governor thereof, under and in pursuance of the said act of this assembly, approved March third, eighteen hundred and eighty, the amount of the compensation of said special agent as agreed upon in his contract dated April twenty-eighth, eighteen hundred and eighty.

2. That the net balance of the recovery of said claim, left after the payment to any lawfully appointed agent of the State of Virginia now in charge of said claim of such commission as he is entitled to receive, shall be retained by said Mount Vernon Avenue Association and used by it for all the expenses incident to carrying out the objects and purposes of its charter, now granted, or as the said charter may hereaf ter be changed, modified, or amended by this assembly.

3. In consideration of the transfer of said claim hereby made, and upon its recovery, the avenue or road to be made by said association shall, upon its completion, be forever hereafter free from all charge of toll to the public, but under the control and supervision of said Mount Vernon Avenue Association.

4. This resolution shall be in force from its passage.

Approved March fifth, eighteen hundred and eighty-eight.

PETOSKEY HARBOR, MICHIGAN.

LETTER

FROM

THE SECRETARY OF WAR,

TRANSMITTING

Reports upon the survey and preliminary examination of Petoskey Harbor, Michigan.

JANUARY 14, 1890.—Referred to the Committee on Rivers and Harbors and ordered to be printed.

WAR DEPARTMENT,
Washington City, Jauuary 9, 1890.

The Secretary of War has the honor to transmit to the House of Representatives, in compliance with the requirements of the river and harbor act of August 11, 1888, a letter from the Chief of Engineers, together with the report of Maj. William Ludlow, Corps of Engineers, upon the survey of Petoskey Harbor, Michigan, for a breakwater and harbor of refuge, and also a copy of his report upon the preliminary examination of the same.

REDFIELD PROCTOR,
Secretary of War.

The SPEAKER OF THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES.

OFFICE OF THE CHIEF OF ENGINEERS,
UNITED STATES ARMY,
Washington, D. C., January 8, 1890.

SIR: I have the honor to submit herewith a copy of the report, dated December 21, 1889, upon the survey of "Petoskey Harbor, Michigan, for breakwater and harbor of refuge," made under the direction of Maj. William Ludlow, Corps of Engineers, to comply with the requirements of the river and harbor act of August 11, 1888, with accompanying map.

A report upon the preliminary examination of the locality, dated October 23, 1888, is also herewith.

The primary object to be obtained is the protection of the landing-wharf in front of the village of Petoskey, in the interest of shipments from and to adjacent localities, and the large number of passengers carried by the steamers which touch there. For the reason that the first wharf built at the locality was almost immediately destroyed by the sea, apprehensions are felt for the security of the existing one, the reconstruction of which, however, is not asked for. What is desired is the construction of an outer and detached work so designed as to shelter the landing and possibly furnish additional area within which vessels could take shelter when necessary.

The project proposed for improvement, shown upon the accompanying map, is to commence a breakwater at the projection of the shoreline where a line of detached cribs has been already built, which would afford a favorable starting-point. As indicated on the drawing, the work would be continuous, increasing in width and solidity as the depth increases, and reaching 26 feet of water. The breakwater proper would thence deflect eastward, approximately parallel to the contours, to a distance of 1,200 feet, where it would overlap the landing, inclosing an area of about 12 acres, open only to the eastward and leaving about 400 feet for passage past the end of the landing wharf into the sheltered angle. Owing to the hardness of the bottom the anchorage would necessarily be to the mooring posts built into the work.

The cost of the proposed improvement is estimated as follows:

Off-shore portion, 500 feet	$33,000
Breakwater proper	120,000
Contingencies, etc	17,000
Total cost	170,000

Very respectfully, your obedient servant,

THOS. LINCOLN CASEY,
Brig. Gen., Chief of Engineers.

Hon. REDFIELD PROCTOR,
Secretary of War.

PRELIMINARY EXAMINATION OF PETOSKEY HARBOR, MICHIGAN, FOR BREAKWATER AND HARBOR OF REFUGE.

UNITED STATES ENGINEER OFFICE,
Detroit, Mich., October, 23, 1888.

SIR: In compliance with the requirements of section 13 of the last river and harbor act, and letter from your office, dated August 28, 1888, I have the honor to submit the following report of an examination of "Petoskey Harbor, for breakwater and harbor of refuge."

I have had occasion to visit Petoskey several times during the past twelve years in connection with my duties on the east shore of Lake Michigan.

Petoskey is a small village of 3,500 people, occupying a picturesque site on the bluffs overlooking Little Traverse Bay, and near its head. The bluffs descend almost vertically to the narrow gravelly beach of the bay, which here is fully exposed to the winds from the north and northwest. The present and prospective business of the place is small and it is chiefly noted as a popular summer resort, and being at the terminus of an important railroad is a point of departure to numerous like resorts in the neighborhood of the Straits of Mackinac, between which places small steamers ply during the season, while during the past season one large steamer has made regular trips there from Chicago.

During high winds from the north and west these vessels find it difficult to make a landing at the one small dock at Petoskey, and at times find it impossible to do so and must seek shelter in the commodious natural harbor 3 miles across the bay.

This harbor at Harbor Springs is one of the finest harbors of refuge on the lakes, and therefore a harbor of refuge at Petoskey is not called for in the general interests of commerce; all that is desired is a breakwater to insure a safe and certain landing place in all weather for these vessels.

I consider this claim of Petoskey for a breakwater as a good one, and am not sure but that it is justified by the circumstances. All the facts bearing in the case are contained in the accompanying report of a personal examination made on the 12th instant by my assistant, Lieut. Joseph E. Kuhn, Corps of Engineers, and a document furnished him by leading citizens of Petoskey.

A comparatively cheap structure of timber cribs and stone, the material being abundant at the place, costing probably $75,000, could be built which would amply provide for quiet water at the wharf, and would enable vessels to take on and discharge their cargoes in all weather.

Such a breakwater need not be of any great length, nor need it be built in very deep water to meet all the desired requirements.

It is therefore recommended that a survey be made having this object in view. Said survey will cost about $600.

Very respectfully, your obedient servant,

S. M. MANSFIELD,
Lieut. Col. of Engineers.

The CHIEF OF ENGINEERS, U. S. A.

REPORT OF LIEUTENANT JOSEPH E. KUHN, CORPS OF ENGINEERS.

UNITED STATES ENGINEER OFFICE,
Grand Rapids, Mich., October 19, 1888.

COLONEL: I have the honor to state that in obedience to your instructions I made a personal examination of Little Traverse Bay, in the vicinity of the village of Petoskey, Mich., on the 12th instant, and now respectfully submit my report as follows:

The clause in the river and harbor act of August 11, 1888, calling for an examination or survey of this locality, states that the examination or survey is "for breakwater and harbor of refuge."

Little Traverse Bay is between 20 and 25 miles south of the western entrance to the Straits of Mackinac. Its general direction is east and west, and it is exposed directly to winds coming from the northwest and west. Its shores are bold and in most places rocky.

The village of Petoskey, with a population of 3,500, is situated on the south side and near the head of the bay. It is the northern terminus of the Grand Rapids and Indiana Railroad, at present the only railroad running to the village.

I do not consider a harbor of refuge at Petoskey as necessary, or even desirable, for the reason that on the north shore of Little Traverse Bay, and distant about 5 miles from Petoskey, there already exists a natural harbor of refuge which is practically sheltered on all sides and possessed of ample depth and area with a wide entrance marked by a light-house.

Furthermore, as stated by Maj. D. W. Lockwood, in a report by him on this subject dated October 25, 1884, Little Traverse Bay lies so far to the east of the course of vessels bound between the Straits of Mackinac and Lake Michigan ports that such vessels would find it more convenient to seek shelter under the lee of some of the islands near their course, or in Grand Traverse Bay, than in Little Traverse Bay.

In conversation with some of the representative citizens, I was informed that a harbor of refuge at Petoskey was not what was asked for, but a breakwater to insure a safe and certain landing place in all weather for vessels plying to the village.

During westerly and northwesterly winds vessels are prevented from lying at the dock and are compelled to make for the harbor of Harbor Springs, on the opposite shore. In the inclosed communication, submitted in behalf of the citizens of Petoskey by three of their representatives, the necessity of a breakwater is made to rest on the necessity for a safe and secure landing place, and on the necessity for protection to the dock from destruction by storms. In my opinion the first necessity is the only one possessing any weight, as the dock itself can be constructed sufficiently strong to resist destruction by any storms that may visit Little Traverse Bay. The present dock at Petoskey is not adapted to withstand any very heavy storms, being built of cribs formed of logs, notched at the ends and insufficiently bolted together. The cribs are placed at intervals on the natural bottom and covered with a decking.

A comparatively cheap breakwater, costing probably $75,000, could be built which would amply provide for quiet water at the wharf, and would enable vessels to take on and discharge their cargoes in all weather. Such a breakwater need not be of any great length nor need it be built in very deep water to meet all the desired requirements. The inclosed document from the citizens of Petoskey gives all the resources of the village and country tributary to it, as well as the present commerce. From this document it appears that 104 landings per week are made by boats in the summer-time at the Petoskey dock. These boats are mostly engaged in the passenger business. For the year 1887 the following commercial statistics are given, showing the business over the dock:

General merchandise	tons..	5,000
Fish	pounds..	1,000,000
Cedar, tan-bark and lumber	cargoes..	25

Petoskey is an important distributing point for the numerous summer resorts about Little Traverse Bay, which depend on the village for their supplies. Large forests of hemlock, cedar and hard wood abound around Petoskey, and an increase of commerce may be reasonably looked for from the shipment of the products of these forests.

Very respectfully, your obedient servant,

JOSEPH E. KUHN,
First Lieutenant of Engineers.

Lieut. Col. S. M. MANSFIELD,
Corps of Engineers U. S. A.

COMMUNICATION FROM CITIZENS OF PETOSKEY, MICH.

PETOSKEY, MICH., October 15, 1888.

SIR: In the matter of a breakwater at Petoskey.

In compliance with your request for information relative to the commercial necessities of Petoskey, as requiring the need of Government aid in the construction of a breakwater at this point, we have the honor to submit the following:

Up to the year 1875 the lands all about Little Traverse Bay were embraced within an Indian reservation and not open for sale or settlement. During that year the Grand Rapids and Indiana Railroad completed its line and began running regular trains to Petoskey, the terminus and objective point fixed by the act of Congress of 1856, aiding and encouraging its construction through leagues of unbroken forest.

About this time the reservation of lands in Emmet and Charlevoix Counties expired, and settlers poured into every part of these counties, starting out from Petoskey, then but a railroad station and post-office.

Homesteads were selected and rude houses erected and improvements begun by men, as a general rule, without means enough to carry themselves and families through the first winter. From these beginnings, though retarded and delayed by lack of means, have steadily grown and developed thrifty farms and comfortable houses, scattered through the woods in all directions from Petoskey, the central supply and trading point.

A glance at the map of northern Michigan will show how naturally travel and trade concentrated at this point from all along the shores of Lake Michigan southwesterly, including the traffic seeking the railroad from all Charlevoix County by boat from Pine Lake, the channel of Pine River having been opened and protected by Government aid.

The trade of Petoskey has steadily grown from that date till now.

Our mercantile community now embraces five dry goods and general stores, four boot and shoe stores, three clothing stores, three furniture stores, two hardware stores, fourteen grocery stores, two flour and feed stores, four drug stores, two harness shops, two agricultural implements sales-rooms, three livery stables, one book and stationery store, two jewelry stores, four millinery, and other shops and lines of business usually represented in towns of this size.

In 1876 the Methodist denomination in this State conceived the purpose of securing a State camp-ground for religious meetings and health-resort purposes. A committee finally decided upon a spot on the shore of the bay a mile northeasterly from Petoskey. The railroad company purchased and presented them with a magnificent tract with nearly a mile frontage on the bay, on condition that camp meetings should be held for ten successive years. The people of Petoskey graded the highway and railroad track to the resort.

The growth of this resort has been phenomenal, a surprise alike to its projectors and the transportation companies. Others have sprung up around the bay, at Harbor Point and We-que-ton-sing, others at Charlevoix and Bear Lake.

The Michigan branch of the Chautauqua educational work has been located and is now in full working operation at Bay View every summer.

This has attracted other educational interests, till Bay View is and promises to be as well known and established as the eastern and original Chautauqua. The permanent summer cottage population of Bay View amounts to 2,500, not including the crowds who are there temporarily.

No traffic of any account is permitted on the grounds, so that all the trade and supplying of this population becomes a part of the established business of Petoskey.

The regular all the year round population of Petoskey proper must now reach 3,500. The school census this year was nearly 800. The public schools of the village employ one superintendent and principal, two assistants, and nine grade and primary teachers. The cost of maintaining the schools for 1887–'88 exceeded $6,000.

Churches are well represented and supported, there being nine organizations, eight church edifices, and six resident clergymen.

In addition to the thousands of people who come to Bay View and the other resorts for educational and other advantages, great numbers come every season for health and recreation, so that large hotel accommodations have been required and provided. Petoskey already has nine regular hotels, to say nothing of numerous private boarding-houses, and more are required each year. And we neither exaggerate nor misrepresent the fact when we say that Petoskey is the radiating point and port of the tourist and resort travel of Northern Michigan.

The railroad company's records show a total of * passengers landed into Petoskey during the season of 1887 (the official reports of 1888 are not yet accessible).

The steam-boats running on the bay from Petoskey to Bay View, We-que-ton-sing, Harbor Springs, and Harbor Point removed and landed at the Petoskey dock over 50,000 passengers in the same year.

Steamers running from Petoskey to Pine Lake via Charlevoix handled, say, 15,000. Hannah, Lay & Co's line of boats the same or more, and the Manistique Line, say, 10,000. In all 80,000 or 90,000 people. This year the Petoskey, a large new steamer plying between here and Chicago, has been added, but official figures as to passengers and freight for this season are not complete nor obtainable.

In order to understand the situation and peculiar needs of Petoskey in the way of transportation facilities, and to explain the past and prospective growth of the substantial and permanent industries of the town, allow us again to refer to any map of the region. The town grew up at the terminus of the railroad and about the mouth of Bear River, a stream heading in Bear Lake, a body of water of 6 miles in length, flowing thence through a heavy forest for nearly 20 miles to the bay. Down this stream are annually floated thousands of pieces of cedar for shipment over the Petoskey docks. Hemlock and elm in immense quantities is standing untouched waiting to be floated from the shores of Bear Lake and River to Petoskey for manufacture and shipment.

The stream, with a fall of nearly 75 feet within a mile of its mouth, furnishes motive power already for a number of substantial manufactories, among which we would mention William L. McManus, saw and planing mills, Birkett Brothers' wood pulp mill, Hankey & Riggs' cable and flouring mills, F. G. Winsor's wooden-ware works, Petoskey Electric Light and Power Company, and the city water-works.

The lake forms an immense storage reservoir, maintaining an adequate and uniform supply through the year.

In addition to these manufactories we already have others operated with steam. The Bauerle and Fay Wooden Ware Company are just completing a large plant; the "Kegomic Tanneries," owned and operated by W. W. Rice, just above Bay View; the Newberry Mill, in same vicinity; M. S. Plank's handle factory, at Carpenter, shipping point at Petoskey, as well as other smaller manufacturing industries, employing an aggregate capital of $250,000, and employing upwards of 370 men, turning out a product of nearly $400,000 annually.

The product of many smaller mills and factories located inland, back from the bay, should also be taken into account, as Petoskey is their nearest and most natural shipping point, as no other passenger and freight dock is maintained between Charlevoix and Harbor Springs.

The farm products are gradually increasing from year to year. The wheat product now supplies the requirements of the country, and soon will be exported in increasing quantities. Potatoes are a large article of export from this port, one firm having shipped by rail and water during the season of 1886 upwards of 35,000 bushels. The potato season of 1888 is just opening and promises to be a good percentage larger than that of 1886.

For years to come the manufactured and crude forest products will require larger shipping facilities from this point. The immense body of heavy timber south and east of the bay will naturally come to the water at this point for shipment.

Immense quantities of cedar and hemlock every year go from this port to Chicago and other lake markets. Hemlock bark is shipped largely every season.

The report of the Petoskey Dock and Warehouse Company shows handled over this stock during 1887 upwards of 5,000 tons of general merchandise, 1,000,000 pounds of fresh fish, and 25 full cargoes of cedar, tan-bark, lumber, etc., and although a full report of the season of 1888 is not obtainable as yet, their books show a satisfactory increase of income and business over last year.

The fish business above referred to has been developed to an industry of considerable importance already. Connable and Sons fish with two steam-tugs from this point, and they and other dealers purchase, cure, and ship also the catch of a considerable number of men fishing on their own account.

The celebrated Petoskey lime is produced and shipped from here. H. O. Rose manufactures now about 35,000 barrels yearly, and the Petoskey Lime Company a less quantity. Large shipments of the rock for building purposes are also made.

The convenience and cheapness of excellent building material, brick, stone, lime, and lumber has contributed to and stimulated the erection of many substantial brick business blocks in Petoskey.

The following steam-boat lines have run regularly to this port during the season of 1888:

	Boats	Landings per week.
Northern Michigan Line	2	4
Hannah Lay & Co. Line	1	6
Chicago and Little Traverse Line	1	4
Pine Lake Line	2	12
Caskey's Line:
Beaver Island and Mackinaw	1	6
Harbor Springs Ferry	1	24
Crysler Line, Harbor Springs Ferry	2	48

Other transportation companies have contemplated coming here and establishing regular lines to Chicago and Milwaukee, but have as yet not done so, giving as a reason that they do not feel assured that our dock facilities are secure and permanent. In explanation of this, and to illustrate what has been required of the citizens of this village in constructing and maintaining docks at this point, it may not be out of place to mention what has actually been done and expended.

The first dock at this point was built by private parties at an expense of, say, $3,000 as early as 1874 or 1875. This was swept away by the storms. Next, H. O. Rose, esq., constructed one in 1876 at an expense of about $7,000. This stood till the fall of 1883, when the waves destroyed it.

No private capital seemed available to supply another to take its place; so the village voted to bond itself to erect a dock to furnish shipping facilities, which were imperatively demanded not only for the prosperty of the village but for the surrounding country at large.

The indebtedness of $8,000 was incurred (and is not yet all paid) and the dock erected and used only for the season of 1884, when it, too, was strewn along the beach by a furious storm from the west.

During the winter following, enterprising public-spirited citizens contributed $5,000 to erect the present dock, which has, fortunately, withstood the storms thus far, though, judging from the past, its destruction may be but the pastime and sport of November storms.

We, therefore, representing the citizens of Petoskey, and in behalf of its present substantial industries and the undeveloped resources of the country surrounding, appeal to the Government to aid us in securing and protecting landing and transportation facilities for our products as well as for the thousands of travelers who come to us every year.

We do so very earnestly, and yet boldly, because we are compelled to do so from our position and situation.

The hasty examination of the shore and bay at this point that you were able to make during your recent visit must have disclosed to you the difficulty of maintaining a dock or wharf on the rock-bottomed shore adjoining Petoskey. And the facts just mentioned show what has been done by our citizens. The village has yet the burden of paying for one dock destroyed before hardly complete.

There is no provision under which the county or townships, interested in a general way in common with our village, can raise money to assist in building and maintaining wharves to furnish shipping facilities for the forest and farm productions of the country. Then when local, municipal, and private enterprise have been taxed beyond its reach, and beyond its interest as well, what shall be done?

We have the docks constructed, and, without doubt, would be able to maintain ample wharfage for even prospective commerce were it not for our peculiarly exposed shore. What we want, and all we ask, is some kind of protection to our wharves and to shipping while landing and lying at the wharf for passengers and freight.

We believe that we were but discharging our duty as citizens of the United States in thus laying before you, as the proper representative of the department of the Government for the expenditure of money for the improvement of harbors, information as to the needs not only of the village of Petoskey, for they are not limited to the town but of the country back of us, for such protection for our wharves as will assure and encourage capital and labor in development of trade, manufactures, agriculture, lumber, fruit, and in short every resource of the country.

Beyond the limits of the village, the imperative necessitities of the country tributary can only appeal to the General Government for aid.

There is no help elsewhere. So far as those interests are concerned we simply come to you with the facts from which you may be able to determine whether the aid of the Government shall be extended in the development of the resources of the country by protecting facilities for its travel and commerce.

There is no equality nor justice in heaping upon the citizens and property of this village the burden and responsibility of providing wharves and protecting them from destruction for the general benefit of the country surrounding it for miles in all directions. So far as our own interests go there would, of course, be no injustice, provided we could accomplish it, but there is no more reason for the municipality or citizens of this village being required to do this simply because we are located at the point where the commerce of the country naturally concentrates, than there would be in requiring the owner of the land around the mouth of Pine River at Charlevoix to dredge out its channel to permit the passage of vessels to carry through the commerce of all the country back of and surrounding Pine Lake. The principle is the same.

The circumstances only, requiring the reasonable expenditure of Government aid, are different; the object, in both cases, the same.

Assistance has been granted liberally, and we believe wisely, at Charlevoix and Cheboygan. We believe that our needs are as great and that the benefit that would result from a reasonable work such as we have mentioned, at Government expense, would be equally as extensive and expense much less.

We probably are ourselves at fault for not presenting sooner a full and fair statement of our situation and necessities.

A survey alone, we suppose, will conclusively determine the feasibility and cost of constructing a breakwater for such purpose. We believe the matter feasible, and know that the materials required for its construction are convenient and cheap. Sawed hemlock, sawed timbers, and planking can be delivered on the beach at $6.50 per thousand, in large quantities. Excellent rock for all cribbing purposes can be put into the cribs at from $4.50 to $5 per cord, in any quantity required.

We therefore most earnestly ask and hope that the matter may receive a patient, candid, and just consideration at the hands of the Department, with the hope and belief that our prayer will be granted, a survey made, and that an appropriation may follow adequate to what your office may find our needs to be.

We are yours, most respectfully,

HENRY T. CALKINS,
President of the Village.

SURVEY OF PETOSKEY HARBOR, MICHIGAN, FOR BREAKWATER AND HARBOR OF REFUGE.

UNITED STATES ENGINEER OFFICE,
Detroit, Mich., December 21, 1889.

SIR: In compliance with letter of April 1, 1889, allotting $600 for the purpose of making a survey of Petoskey Harbor, Little Traverse Bay, Michigan, I have the honor to forward herewith a chart of the survey, and to report as follows with reference thereto:

According to the river and harbor act of August 11, 1888, the survey was to have for its object the preparation of a project for the construction of a "breakwater and harbor of refuge," designed, presumably, for the benefit of the general lake commerce.

The relation of Petoskey to the general navigation is indicated in the tracing by a copy of the official State map of Michigan on a scale of 12 miles to the inch, covering the vicinity of Little Traverse Bay between the Straits of Mackinac and Sleeping Bear Point, from which it appears that, taking into account the numerous indentations of the coast and the facilities for anchorage under the lee either of the mainland or the outlying islands, this portion of the lake is already tolerably well supplied with natural harbors of greater or less security and readiness of access.

Little Traverse Bay, upon the south shore of which Petoskey is situated, lies open to the winds from west to northwest, and the landing in front of the village is directly exposed to the fierce gales from that quarter; but immediately across the bay, and but 4 miles distant from Petoskey, is the excellent natural harbor of Harbor Springs, affording perfect security in any weather. It is evident, therefore, that so far as the general navigation is concerned, there is no need for the construction of an artificial harbor of refuge in front of Petoskey.

On this point Captain Lockwood, in pursuance of a provision in the river and harbor act of July 5, 1884, for an examination of Petoskey, "with a view to constructing a harbor of refuge," reported as follows under date of October 25, 1884:

Little Traverse Bay is between 20 and 25 miles south of Waugoshance Light, which marks the western entrance to the Straits of Mackinac. Its general direction is east and west, and it is exposed directly to winds from the northwest around to southwest. The shores are bold and in most places rocky.

I do not consider the locality worthy of improvement for the following reasons:

(1) There already exists on the north shore of the bay, and about 5 miles from Petoskey, a natural harbor of refuge, which is sheltered from winds from the north around to southwest. During the past summer a light-house was built to mark the entrance, which is an easy one, with a sufficient depth of water to admit the largest vessels on the lake.

(2) Little Traverse Bay is so far to the east of the course taken by vessels bound from the Straits of Mackinac to the different ports of Lake Michigan, or vice versa, that in nearly if not in all cases such vessels would find it more to their advantage to seek shelter under the lee of the islands or in Grand Traverse Bay than in Little Traverse Bay, even if an additional place of refuge existed at its head.

The harbor at Harbor Springs is sufficient for the present needs of commerce, and as its use is, and will continue to be, confined to vessels engaged in the coasting trade only, there is little fear but that it will answer for years to come all the demands that may be made upon its capacity.

To establish a harbor of refuge on the south shore of the bay near Petoskey would require the construction of an extensive breakwater, which would have to be built in deep water in order to secure the requisite area for shelter. If located at Petoskey it would serve to protect the piers used by steam-boats during the summer; but, except in special cases, would offer no advantages over Harbor Springs Harbor as a refuge in bad weather.

Following the provisions of the act of August 11, 1888, Lieutenant Colonel Mansfield reported October 23, 1888, as follows:

Petoskey is a small village of 3,500 people, occupying a picturesque site on the bluffs overlooking Little Traverse Bay and near its head. The bluffs descend almost vertically to the narrow gravelly beach of the bay, which here is fully exposed to the winds from the north and northwest. The present and prospective business of the place is small, and it is chiefly noted as a popular summer resort, and being at the terminus of an important railroad, is a point of departure to numerous like resorts in the neighborhood of the Straits of Mackinac, between which places small steamers ply during the season, while during the past season one large steamer has made regular trips there from Chicago.

During high winds from the north and west these vessels find it difficult to make a landing at the one small dock at Petoskey, and at times find it impossible to do so, and must seek shelter in the commodious natural harbor 3 miles across the bay. This harbor at Harbor Springs is one of the finest harbors of refuge on the lakes, and therefore a harbor of refuge at Petoskey is not called for in the general interests of commerce.

All that it requires is a breakwater to insure a safe and certain landing place in all weather for these vessels.

In the general view indicated by these reports I concur. In fact, it is evident from the communication from the village authorities, dated October 15, 1888, which was originally forwarded with Colonel Mansfield's report, and a copy of which is inclosed herewith, that the primary object sought is the protection of the landing wharf in front of the village, in the interest of the considerable shipments from and to adjacent localities and the large number of passengers carried by the steamers that touch there.

From the fact that the first wharf built was almost immediately destroyed by the sea and that apprehensions are felt for the security of the existing one, it would seem that the methods of construction were too economical, considering the rocky slope of the bottom and the exposure to northwest gales. Since, no doubt, a landing wharf, if built out from the shore of solid crib-work, properly ballasted, with a return or "L" at its outer end, extending eastward, of such length as to furnish shelter against a sea running from the north and west, and reliable means of making fast, should be at least as stable as a "breakwater" of similar construction in deeper water, and exposing the full length of its side to the impact and action of the sea.

Were the question one merely of furnishing safe landing facilities at Petoskey, the most obvious and least expensive method would be to rebuild the existing wharf as above indicated. What is asked, however, is not the reconstruction of the present wharf, but the construction of an outer and detached work, so designed as to shelter the landing and possibly to furnish additional area within which vessels could take shelter on occasion.

I have indicated on the tracing a means of doing this.

Westward from the landing wharf is a projection of the shore-line where a line of detached cribs has been already built, and which would afford a favorable starting-point for the "breakwater."

As shown on the tracing, the work would be continuous, increasing in width and solidity as the depth increases, and reaching 26 feet of water. The "breakwater" proper would thence deflect eastward, approximately parallel to the contours to such distance as to overlap the landing. As drawn, this length is 1,200 feet, with an inclosed area of about 12 acres, open only to the eastward, and leaving about 400 feet for passage past the end of the landing wharf into the sheltered angle.

The bottom being hard, the anchorage would of necessity be to mooring-posts built into the works.

The cost of these constructions is estimated as follows:

For the off-shore portion, 550 feet, 11 cribs 50 feet long, increasing in width to 24 feet, at an average of $60 per foot	$33,000
For the breakwater proper, 1,200 feet, 24 cribs 50 feet by 24 feet, at an average of $100 per foot	120,000
Contingencies, etc	17,000
Total cost	170,000
To rebuild the outer 500 feet of the landing wharf would cost, at $60 per foot.	30,000
To construct 300 feet of an "L" northeasterly from the outer end of the wharf would cost, at $100 per foot	30,000
Total cost, with allowance for contingencies, etc., say	70,000

ADDITIONAL APPROPRIATION FOR THE WASHINGTON AQUEDUCT.

LETTER

FROM

THE ACTING SECRETARY OF THE TREASURY,

TRANSMITTING,

With accompanying papers, an estimate from the Commissioners of the District of Columbia of an additional appropriation for the Washington Aqueduct.

JANUARY 14, 1890.—Referred to the Committee on Appropriations and ordered to be printed.

TREASURY DEPARTMENT, January 13, 1890.

SIR: I have the honor to transmit herewith, for the consideration of Congress, copy of a communication from the Commissioners of the District of Columbia of the 9th instant, and accompanying papers, submitting an additional estimate in the sum of $5,500 for the Washington Aqueduct.

Respectfully yours,

GEO. S. BATCHELLER,
Acting Secretary.

The SPEAKER OF THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES.

OFFICE OF THE COMMISSIONERS,
DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA,
Washington, January 9, 1890.

SIR: In compliance with the request of the Secretary of War, contained in the second indorsement upon the letter of Lieut. Col. Geo. H. Elliot, Corps of Engineers, dated December 26, 1889, which is herewith returned with all papers, the Commissioners of the District of Columbia have the honor to submit an additional estimate of $5,500 for the Washington Aqueduct, to be expended in the purchase of land to protect the water in the distributing reservoir from contamination.

The necessity for this appropriation is fully set forth in the letter of Lieutenant-Colonel Elliot, and his recommendations, which are concurred in by the Chief of Engineers, are fully approved by the Commissioners.

They therefore request that this estimate may be transmitted to Congress.

Respectfully,

J. W. DOUGLASS,
President.

Hon. WILLIAM WINDOM,
Secretary of the Treasury.

OFFICE OF THE WASHINGTON AQUEDUCT,
Washington, D. C., December 26, 1889.

GENERAL: In the gore or angle between the Conduit road and the New Cut road west of this city are the pens of the Drovers' Rest cattle market, the land occupied by which is separated from the distributing reservoir of the Washington Aqueduct only by the width of the Conduit road, or about 60 feet.

The conduit connecting the influent gate-house with the auxiliary gate-house underlies the Conduit road, which was constructed and is owned by the United States.

All the rain-water which falls into and around the pens of the cattle market flows down to this road, and sometimes it overflows the road and is only kept out of the reservoir by the base board of the reservoir fence, so that there is a constant danger that in some exceptional storm or shower it will get into the reservoir and contaminate the water supply of the city.

In my judgment it would be wise to avert this danger by the purchase by the United States of the land occupied by these cattle-pens.

In the speculative condition of lands in the vicinity of Washington it is difficult to estimate the value of this land, but I do not believe that a jury of condemnation would assess it at more than $800 per acre, if as much. Improvements have been less rapid on this than on other approaches to the city, and I am told that as a cattle market the Drovers' Rest has been declining for some years; that, while formerly there were sometimes as many as 1,000 cattle, 4,000 sheep, and 150 hogs brought to this market the nights before market days (Mondays), most of the cattle coming to Washington for slaughtering are now taken to the new stock-yard near Benning's, and that rarely more than 250 cattle and 800 sheep are brought to the Drovers' Rest.

The area of land occupied by the pens at Drovers' Rest, together with a small area of wet land adjoining it on the city side, which should also be purchased, for the purpose of controlling the drainage from one or more slaughter-houses lying on the northerly side of the New Cut road, which drainage also flows to the Conduit road opposite the reservoir, does not exceed 5 acres.

In view of the facts herein presented, I respectfully recommend that Congress may be asked to appropriate for the purchase of this land the sum of $4,000, or such sum as a jury of condemnation, to be appointed by the court in the usual manner, may consider its value; and that for the cost of a survey by a sworn surveyor, for jury fees and other expenses of condemnation, for removing the cattle-pens, clearing up and fencing the ground, for the works for controlling the drainage, and for other necessary improvements, the further sum of $1,500 be appropriated, making for all the purposes mentioned the sum of $5,500.

Section 15 W. of the map of the recent topographical survey of the District of Columbia, on which I have shown in red lines the boundaries of the land recommended to be purchased, is herewith inclosed.

Very respectfully, your obedient servant,

GEORGE H. ELLIOT,
Lieutenant-Colonel of Engineers, U. S. Army.

The CHIEF OF ENGINEERS, U. S. ARMY,
Washington, D. C.

[First indorsement.]

OFFICE CHIEF OF ENGINEERS, U. S. ARMY,
December 26, 1889.

Respectfully submitted to the Secretary of War, inviting attention to the report within, the recommendations of which are concurred in.

THOS. LINCOLN CASEY,
Brigadier General, Chief of Engineers.

[Second indorsement.]

WAR DEPARTMENT, January 2, 1890.

Respectfully referred to the honorable Commissioners of the District of Columbia, for their action and submission to the honorable Secretary of the Treasury, as per act of June 11, 1878 (20 Stat., 104).

REDFIELD PROCTOR,
Secretary of War.

Respectfully forwarded to the Engineer Commissioner, District of Columbia.

It is highly desirable that this piece of ground should be purchased and improved as recommended by Colonel Elliot.

I recommend that special estimate be made for the purpose.

JAS. L. LUSK,
Captain of Engineers, U. S. Army.

Estimates of appropriations required for the service of the fiscal year ending June 30, 1891.

Washington Aqueduct, District of Columbia:

For the purchase of 5 acres of land near the distributing reservoir, or such sum as the jury of condemnation, to be appointed by the supreme court of the District of Columbia in the usual manner, may consider its value (March 2, 1889; vol. 25; p. 800; sec. 1)	$4,000
For the cost of a survey by a sworn surveyor; for jury fees and other expenses of condemnation; for removing the cattle-pens, clearing up and fencing the ground; for the works for controlling the drainage, and for other necessary improvements (March 2, 1889; vol. 25; p. 800; sec. 1)	1,500

ACTS.

No. 1.

AN ACT to locate the capital of the Territory of Arizona permanently at the city of Phœnix, in the county of Maricopa.

Be it enacted by the legislative assembly of the Territory of Arizona, That on and after the fourth day of February, in the year of our Lord eighteen hundred and eighty-nine, the permanent seat of government and capital of this Territory shall be, and the same is hereby, located and established at the city of Phœnix, in the county of Maricopa.

SEC. 2. All acts and parts of acts inconsistent with this act are hereby repealed.

SEC. 3. This act shall take effect and be in force from and after its passage.

Approved January 26, 1889.

No. 2.

AN ACT defining certain offenses against the public peace.

Be it enacted by the legislative assembly of the Territory of Arizona, If any person or persons shall willfully and maliciously make any assault upon any railroad train, railroad cars, or locomotive within this Territory for the purpose and with the intent to commit murder, robbery, or any other felony upon or against any passenger on said train or cars, or upon or against any engineer, conductor, fireman, brakeman, or any officer or employé connected with said locomotive, train, or cars, while in the performance of his duty as such engineer, conductor, fireman, brakeman, officer, or employé, or upon or against any express-messenger or mail-agent on said train, or in any of the cars thereof, on conviction thereof shall be deemed guilty of a felony and shall suffer the punishment of death.

SEC. 2. Any or all persons who shall counsel, aid, abet, and assist in the perpetration of any of the offenses set forth in the preceding section on conviction thereof shall be deemed to be principals and shall suffer the punishment therein prescribed.

SEC. 3. Upon the trial of any and all persons charged with the violation of this act it shall not be necessary to prove, nor shall it be deemed material to a conviction, that the defendant or defendants specifically intended to commit the offenses, or any of them, herein set forth, upon or against any particular person, but it shall be sufficient if it is proven to the satisfaction of the court and jury trying the cause, as the result of such unlawful assault some person or persons was killed, robbed, or injured, as the case may be, or that such assault was perpetrated with the design to commit some felony.

SEC. 4. This act shall be in full force and effect from and after its passage.

Approved February 28, 1889.

No. 3.

AN ACT to amend paragraph seven hundred and seventy-six of the Revised Statutes.

Be it enacted by the legislative assembly of the Territory of Arizona, That paragraph seven hundred and seventy-six of the Revised Statutes of Arizona be amended so as to read as follows, to wit: Either party may, before the argument closes, present to the judge in writing such instructions as he desires to be given to the jury, and the court shall pass on the same, and give, refuse, or modify the same, on the margin of such instruction, marking over the name of the judge "given" or "refused," as the case may be. The instructions given may be used by the party or his attorney during the argument and shall be read to the jury by the judge at the close of the same.

SEC. 2. All acts and parts of acts in conflict with this act be, and the same are, hereby repealed.

No. 7.

AN ACT to amend paragraph sixteen hundred and two, the same being section two of chapter five, title twenty-one, entitled "Elections," of the Revised Statutes of Arizona, eighteen hundred and eighty-seven.

Be it enacted by the legislative assembly of the Territory of Arizona: Paragraph sixteen hundred and two, the same being section two, of chapter five, title twenty-one, entitled "Elections," is hereby amended to read as follows:

The board of supervisors of each county of the Territory of Arizona shall, at the regular April meeting of said board preceding any general election, by order, require a reregistration of the voters of said county, which order shall be published in at least one newspaper published in such county, or if none be published, one having a general circulation therein, for not less than four months preceding the next ensuing election.

SEC. 2. All acts and parts of acts in conflict with this act are hereby repealed.

SEC. 3. This act shall take effect and be in force from and after its passage.

Approved March 13, 1889.

No. 8.

AN ACT to provide against conflagrations in towns and villages.

Be it enacted by the legislative assembly of the Territory of Arizona: Hereafter any constable who has been duly elected, appointed, and qualified within the limits of any sanitary district shall, during his term of office, perform the duties of fire marshal of said district, and his oath of office as such constable shall include his declaration that he will also well and faithfully perform the duties of fire marshal in the sanitary district in which he may have been elected or appointed.

SEC. 2. It shall be the duty of every person who owns or erects any structure or building in which fire is or may be used for any purpose within the limits of any sanitary district in which the flues thereof are not constructed of stone, brick, adobe, or other fire-proof material, to provide said structure or building with metallic or fire-proof flues so constructed or ventilated as to prevent the ignition of any material adjacent to said flue, and in all cases in which the person who owns or erects such building within such district fails or neglects to provide such flues, he shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and on conviction thereof shall be fined the sum of ten dollars, besides the costs of the criminal action in which he is so complained of. If within twenty-four hours after conviction of any person of a misdemeanor, as herein provided, such person shall fail, neglect, or refuse to provide such flues in the building owned by him, as by this act are required, such person shall be guilty of a further misdemeanor, upon conviction of which he shall be fined the sum of ten dollars and the costs of the criminal action in which he is so complained of, and a like fine and costs may be imposed upon conviction of such misdemeanor for every twenty-four hours thereafter that such person shall fail, neglect, or refuse to comply with the provisions of this act.

SEC. 3. The collection and payment of the fines and costs imposed under the provisions of this act may be enforced by execution in the same manner as upon judgments in civil actions in justices' courts.

SEC. 4. It shall be the duty of the fire marshal to inspect all buildings or structures in which fire is or may be used within the limits of the sanitary district where he performs the duty of constable, and in every case of a violation of the provisions of this act he shall immediately make a complaint before any justice of the peace in said district and such justice shall have jurisdiction to issue a warrant for the arrest of the person so complained of and cause such person to be brought before him, and may then hear and determine such complaint as in other criminal actions. All fines collected under the provisions of this act shall be paid by such justice at the end of each month to the county treasurer and shall be paid by him into the general fund of the county.

SEC. 5. This act shall take effect and be in force thirty days from and after its passage.

Approved March 13, 1889.

No. 9.

AN ACT To provide sanitary regulations for towns and villages.

Be it enacted by the legislative assembly of the Territory of Arizona, Each unincorporated town and village of the several counties of the Territory of Arizona, within the limits of which there shall reside qualified electors to the number of fifty and upwards, shall constitute a sanitary district.

SEC. 2. The duly elected or appointed and qualified constable residing within the limits of any sanitary district shall be the sanitary inspector thereof, and upon the expiration of the office of any such constable he shall cease to perform any of the duties of sanitary inspector.

SEC. 3. It shall be the duty of the sanitary inspector of each sanitary district created under the provisions of this act to make an inspection once in each week, and oftener, if he shall deem such inspection necessary, of the premises surrounding or adjoining the dwelling-house, place of business, or other structure, owned, used, or occupied by each inhabitant within said district, and in all cases where he shall find upon such premises any filth, garbage, or other matter, injurious to the public health or likely to produce sickness or disease, he shall serve a written or printed notice upon the owner, occupant, or person using such premises, requiring him forthwith to remove from such premises the filth, garbage, or other matter deemed by such inspector injurious to the public health or likely to produce sickness or disease, and upon the service of such notice, it shall be the duty of such owner, occupant, or person using said premises, to cause the said filth, garbage, or other matter referred to in such notice, to be removed within six hours from the time of receiving said notice, to some place which shall be at least one mile beyond the limits of such sanitary district; and upon the failure of such owner, occupant, or person using such premises, to make such removal within the time specified in such notice, such owner, occupant, or person using such premises, shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction thereof shall be fined the sum of ten dollars, together with the cost of prosecution, which shall include the costs of the complaint and all proceedings in relation thereto. The payment of such fine and costs may be enforced by execution in the same manner as in executions issued upon a judgment in civil actions in justices' courts.

SEC. 4. The continuance of the said filth, garbage, or other matter complained of, upon the premises of any person charged with a misdemeanor, as in the preceding section provided, for the period of six hours after the expiration of the first six hours following the notice requiring the removal of the matter referred to in such notice, shall constitute a misdemeanor, and each additional six hours that the matter complained of is not removed from the premises of the person complained of, shall constitute a separate misdemeanor, for which a separate fine may be imposed and the payment thereof enforced as provided in the first instance.

SEC. 5. It shall be the duty of the boards of supervisors of the respective counties of the Territory to prescribe and define the limits of the sanitary districts within their respective counties.

SEC. 6. Any justice of the peace residing within the sanitary district where a misdemeanor is alleged to have been committed in violation of the provisions of this act, shall have jurisdiction to issue a warrant for the arrest of any person charged by complaint with the commission thereof, and to hear and determine all matters in relation thereto. The proceedings in relation thereto shall be the same as in trials of criminal action in justices' courts.

SEC. 7. All fines collected under the provisions of this act shall be paid by the justice of the peace receiving the same to the county treasurer of the county at the end of each month; and by said treasurer shall be paid to the county.

SEC. 8. Any constable who shall perform the duties of sanitary inspector shall receive for his services the sum of four dollars per day for each day actually occupied by him in making the inspection provided by this act. And his account of said services, verified by his oath, shall be submitted by him to the justice of the peace residing in said sanitary district for his approval and audit, and when so approved and audited shall be a county charge and shall be paid by the board of supervisors by warrant drawn upon the general fund of the county: Provided, That no more than four dollars shall be allowed for each and every week during his term of office.

Nothing contained in this act shall exclude the board of supervisors from the right of determining upon the validity of said audited accounts.

SEC. 9. This act shall take effect and be in force thirty days from and after its passage.

Approved March 13, 1889.

No. 10.

AN ACT to establish liens for salaries and wages.

Be it enacted by the legislative assembly of the Territory of Arizona, In all assignments of property made by any person to trustees or assignees on account of the inability of the person at the time of his assignment to pay his debts, or in proceedings in insolvency, the wages of the miners, mechanics, salesmen, clerks, or laborers employed by such person to the amount of two hundred dollars each and for services rendered within sixty days previously, are preferred claims and must be paid by such trustees or as ignees before any other creditor or creditors of the assignors.

SEC. 2. In case of the death of an employer the wages of each miner, mechanic, salesman, clerk, servant, and laborer for services rendered within sixty days next preceding the death of the employer, not exceeding two hundred dollars, rank in priority next after the funeral expenses, expenses of the last sickness, the charges and expenses of administering upon the estate, and the allowance to the widow and infant children, and must be paid before any other claims against the estate of the deceased person.

SEC. 3. In cases of execution, attachments, and writs of a similar nature, issued against any person except for claims for labor done, any miners, mechanics, salesmen, servants, and laborers who have claims against the defendant for labor done, may give notice of their claims and the amounts thereof, sworn to by the person making the claim, to the creditor, and the officer executing either of such writs at any time before the actual sale of the property levied on. And such officer shall file such sworn statement with the clerk of the court in which the cause is pending; and unless such claim is disputed by the debtor or a creditor before such sale, such officer must pay such person out of the proceeds of the sale the amount each is entitled to receive for services rendered within sixty days next preceding the levy of the writ, not exceeding the sum of two hundred dollars. If any or all of the claims so presented, and claiming preference under this section, are disputed, either by a debtor or a creditor, the person presenting the same must commence an action within ten days after notice in writing of such fact served upon him by such disputing debtor or creditor for the recovery thereof, and must prosecute his action with due diligence or be forever barred from any claim of priority of payment thereof, and the officer shall retain possession of so much of the proceeds of the sale as may be necessary to satisfy such claim until the determination of such action; and in case such judgment be had for the claim, or any part thereof, carrying costs, the costs taxable therein shall likewise be a preferred claim, with the same rank as the original claim.

SEC. 4. All acts in conflict with the provisions of this act are hereby repealed.

SEC. 5. This act shall take effect and be in force from and after its passage.

Approved March 18, 1889.

No. 11.

AN ACT providing for the sale of certain real estate in the city of Prescott, belonging to the Territory.

Be it enacted by the legislative assembly of the Territory of Arizona, That the Territorial auditor is hereby directed to sell the following described real estate in the city of Prescott, county of Yavapai, and Territory of Arizona, viz: Lots twenty-seven (27) and twenty-eight (28) in block thirteen (13), known as the Jackson estate property, and which escheated to the Territory by decree of the district court of said Territory, in and for the county of Yavapai.

SEC. 2. Such sale shall be made at public outcry, for cash, in front of the court-house door in the city of Prescott after twenty days of public notice of the time, terms, and place of sale and description of the property to be sold, published by said auditor in a newspaper printed in the city of Prescott. The said auditor shall have the right to reject any and all bids, and after making such sale the said auditor, if he accepts the same, shall report his proceedings to the governor, and if the same are approved by the governor, the said Territorial auditor shall make conveyance to the purchaser or purchasers in the name of the Territory, otherwise he shall re-advertise the same. The proceeds of sale, after paying the expenses thereof and the commissions now allowed sheriffs to the said auditor for his services, shall be paid to the Territorial treasurer and by him placed to the credit of the Territorial school fund as required by law in relation to escheated estates.

SEC. 3. This act shall take effect from and after its passage.

Approved March 18, 1889.

No. 12.

AN ACT concerning the transaction of judicial business on legal holidays.

Be it enacted by the legislative assembly of the Territory of Arizona, No court of justice shall be open, nor shall any judicial business be transacted on any legal holiday, except for the following purposes:

1. To give, upon their request, instructions to a jury when deliberating on their verdict.

2. To receive a verdict or discharge a jury.

3. For the exercise of the powers of a magistrate in a criminal action, or in a proceeding of a criminal nature: Provided, That the supreme court shall always be open for the transaction of business: And provided further, That injunctions, attachments, claim and delivery, and writs of prohibition may be issued and served on any day.

SEC. 2. All acts and parts of acts in conflict with this act are hereby repealed.

Approved March 18, 1889.

No. 13.

AN ACT defining and punishing certain offenses against the public peace.

Be it enacted by the legislative assembly of the Territory of Arizona, If any person within any settlement, town, village, or city within this Territory shall carry on or about his person, saddle, or in his saddle-bags, any pistol, dirk, dagger, slung-shot, sword-cane, spear, brass knuckles, bowie-knife, or any other kind of knife manufactured or sold for purposes of offense or defense, he shall be punished by a fine of not less than twenty-five nor more than one hundred dollars; and in addition thereto, shall forfeit to the county in which he is convicted, the weapon or weapons so carried.

SEC. 2. The preceding article shall not apply to a person in actual service as a militiaman, nor as a peace officer or policeman, or person summoned to his aid, nor to a revenue or other civil officer engaged in the discharge of official duty, nor to the carrying of arms on one's own premises or place of business; nor to persons traveling; nor to one who has reasonable ground for fearing an unlawful attack upon his person, and the danger is so imminent and threatening as not to admit of the arrest of the party about to make such attack upon legal process.

SEC. 3. If any person shall go into any church or religious assembly, any school-room, or other place where persons are assembled for amusement or for educational or scientific purposes, or into any circus, show, or public exhibition of any kind, or into a ball-room, social party, or social gathering, or to any election precinct on the day or days of any election, where any portion of the people of this Territory are collected to vote at any election, or to any other place where people may be assembled to minister or to perform any other public duty, or to any other public assembly, and shall have or carry about his person a pistol or other fire-arm, dirk, dagger, slung-shot, sword-cane, spear, brass knuckles, bowie-knife, or any other kind of a knife manufactured and sold for the purposes of offense or defense, he shall be punished by a fine of not less than fifty nor more than five hundred dollars, and shall forfeit to the county the weapon or weapons so found on his person.

SEC. 4. The preceding article shall not apply to peace officers, or other persons authorized or permitted by law to carry arms at the places therein designated.

SEC. 5. Any person violating any of the provisions of articles one and three may be arrested without warrant by any peace officer and carried before the nearest justice of the peace for trial; and any peace officer who shall fail or refuse to arrest such person on his own knowledge, or upon information from some credible person, shall be punished by a fine not exceeding three hundred dollars.

SEC. 6. Persons traveling may be permitted to carry arms within settlements or towns of the Territory for one-half hour after arriving in such settlements or town, and while going out of such towns or settlements; and sheriffs and constables of the various counties of this Territory and their lawfully-appointed deputies may carry weapons in the legal discharge of the duties of their respective offices.

SEC. 7. It shall be the duty of the keeper of each and every hotel, boarding-house, and drinking saloon, to keep posted up in a conspicuous place in his bar-room, or reception-room, if there be no bar in the house, a plain notice to travelers to divest themselves of their weapons in accordance with section nine of this act, and the sheriffs of the various counties shall notify the keepers of hotels, boarding-houses, and drinking saloons in their respective counties of their duties under this law, and if, after such notification, any keeper of a hotel, boarding-house, or drinking saloon, shall fail to keep notices posted as required by this act, he shall, on conviction thereof before a justice of the peace, be fined in the sum of five dollars, to go to the county treasury.

SEC. 8. All acts or parts of acts in conflict with this act are hereby repealed.

SEC. 9. This act shall take effect upon the first day of April, eighteen hundred and eighty-nine.

Approved March 18, 1889.

No. 14.

AN ACT to amend paragraph one hundred and sixty-nine, of title seven, penal code of the Territory of Arizona.

Be it enacted by the legislative assembly of the Territory of Arizona, That paragraph one hundred and sixty-nine, section one hundred and sixty-nine, title seven, of the penal code of the Territory of Arizona be amended to read as follows, to wit: "Whenever a trial shall be had by any person under any of the provisions of sections one hundred and sixty-three and one hundred and sixty-four, this code, and whenever a convict in the Territorial prison shall be tried for any crime committed therein, the clerk of the court where such trial is had shall make out a statement of all the costs incurred by the county for the trial of such case, and of guarding and keeping such convict, properly certified to by the judge of said court, which statement shall be sent to the board of prison directors or commissioners for their approval, and after such approval, said board shall cause the amount of such costs to be paid out of the money appropriated for the support of the Territorial prison, to the clerk of the district court where such trial was had, to be paid out by him to the persons entitled upon order of the judge of said court.

SEC. 2. This act shall take effect and be in force from and after its passage.

Approved March 19, 1889.

No. 17.

AN ACT to amend chapters four and five, title twenty-one, entitled "Elections," of the Revised Statutes of Arizona, eighteen hundred and eighty-seven.

Be it enacted by the legislative assembly of the Territory of Arizona: Paragraph fifteen hundred and ninety-nine, being section one of chapter four, title twenty-one, Revised Statutes of Arizona, is hereby amended so as to read as follows:

1599 (Sec. 1). Every male citizen of the United States, and every male citizen of Mexico, who shall have elected to become a citizen of the United States under the treaty of peace exchanged and ratified at Quintero on the thirtieth day of May, eighteen hundred and forty-eight, and the Gadsden treaty of eighteen hundred and fifty-four, of the age of twenty-one years, who shall have been a resident of the Territory six months next preceding the election, and of the county or precinct in which he claims his vote ten days, and whose name is enrolled on the great register of such county, shall be entitled to vote at all elections which are now or may be hereafter authorized by law.

SEC. 2. Subdivision three, paragraph sixteen hundred and six, being section six, title twenty-one, Revised Statutes of Arizona, is hereby amended so as to read as follows:

3. If a naturalized citizen upon the presentation of his certificate of naturalization, or upon his own affidavit of its loss, together with the affidavit of a registered voter to the effect that the applicant is a naturalized citizen and has resided in this Territory for six months next preceding the time of application and is reported to be a citizen and that the deponent believes him to be a citizen and together with proof by the affidavit of the party that he is an elector of the county.

SEC. 3. All acts and parts of acts in conflict with this act are hereby repealed.

SEC. 4. This act shall be in force and effect from and after its passage.

Approved March 19, 1889.

No. 18.

AN ACT to encourage the Sinking of artesian wells.

Be it enacted by the legislative assembly of the Territory of Arizona: The board of supervisors of the various counties are hereby authorized and required to offer as a reward any sum they deem just, not exceeding three thousand dollars, to any person or persons who shall be first in obtaining a flowing stream of not less than seventeen thousand five hundred gallons of water every twenty-four hours for ten days by means of an artesian well at any point in their respective counties, not upon a United States military or Indian reservation, railroad lands or land grants, or within ten miles of any flowing artesian well or one mile of any permanent flowing stream of water.

SEC. 2. Any person or persons who would avail themselves of the provisions of this act shall, on the completion of said well, give notice of the same to the clerk of the board of supervisors of the county in which said well shall be situated. Upon receipt of said notice the board of supervisors shall immediately cause due examination to be made of said well, and if satisfied that the requirements of the first section of this act have been complied with, they shall draw their warrant on the county treasurer in favor of the person or persons so obtaining flowing water for the sum to which he or they shall be entitled to under the provisions of this act.

SEC. 3. All expenses by any board of supervisors under the provisions of this act shall be chargeable to the county and shall be audited and paid by the board as other claims against the county.

Approved March 19, 1889.

No. 19.

AN ACT to provide for a llen on stock for the charges of pasturing and feeding the same by farmers, ranchmen, and others.

Be it enacted by the legislative assembly of the Territory of Arizona: All farmers, ranchmen, and others, who shall furnish pasture, hay, or other feed for any cattle, horses, or other stock, to be fed on the premises of such person or persons furnishing such pasture, hay, or feed, shall have a lien on such stock for the amount of the charges due and unpaid for such pasturage, hay, or other feed, and shall have the right to take possession of and retain such stock until such charges are paid by the owner or owners thereof, as provided in the next section.

SEC. 2. Whenever any pasture, hay, or other feed shall be furnished for stock, as provided in the preceding section, and possession has been taken of said stock on account of the non-payment of the charges due for the pasturage, hay, or other feed furnished them as aforesaid, and such possession has continued for twenty days after the accruing of such charges, and the charges so due have not been paid, it shall be the duty of the person taking possession of such stock to notify the owner of such stock in writing, if he be in the county, where the stock is located, and is known to the person holding such possession of said stock, to come forward and pay the charges due on said stock, and on his failure within ten days after such notice has been given him to pay such charges, the holder of said property, after five days' notice, posted in three public places at the county seat of the county wherein said stock shall be located, shall proceed to sell said property, or so much thereof as may be necessary to pay all charges and costs as herein provided for, at public auction, and out of the proceeds thereof pay said charges, together with the costs and charges of making such sale, and shall pay over the balance, if any there be, to the person entitled to the same.

SEC. 3. If the owner or owners of the stock do not reside in the county where said stock is retained for such charges, or is not known by the person holding possession of such stock for such charges, the person holding such stock shall, instead of the service or the notice, as required in the preceding section, before proceeding to sell, publish said notice at least three times in some newspaper published in the county where said animals are held, if there be one. If there be no newspaper published in the county, then in some newspaper published in the Territory, having a general circulation in said county.

SEC. 4. This act to take effect and be in force from and after its passage.

Approved March nineteen, eighteen hundred and eighty-nine.

No. 20.

AN ACT Repealing chapter one, title twenty-six, of the Revised Statutes of the Territory of Arizona, approved March first, eighteen hundred and eighty-seven, entitled "Executions," and substituting this act to take the place of same.

Be it enacted by the legislative assembly of the Territory of Arizona: The party in whose favor a judgment is given may at any time within five years after entry thereof have a writ of execution issued for its enforcement.

SEC. 2. The writ of execution must be issued in the name of the Territory of Arizona, subscribed by the clerk and sealed with the seal of the court and be directed to the sheriff of the county where it is to be served, and must refer intelligibly to the judgment, stating date of entry, name of court and county where the judgment is filed, and if it be for money, the amount thereof, costs, interest, and amount actually due thereon, and must require the officer serving the same substantially as follows:

1. If it be against the property of the judgment debtor, it must require the officer to satisfy the judgment with interest out of the personal property of such debtor, and if sufficient personal property can not be found, then out of his real property, or if the judgment be a lien upon real property, then out of the real property belonging to him on the day when the judgment became a lien, or at any time thereafter; or if the execution be issued to a county other than the one in which the judgment was recovered, on the day when the abstract of the judgment was filed in the office of the recorder of such county.

2. If it be against real or personal property in the hands of the personal representatives, heirs, devisees, legatees, tenants or trustees, it must require the officer to satisfy the judgment out of such property.

3. If it be for the delivery of the possession of real or personal property it must require the officer to deliver the possession of the same, describing it, to the party entitled thereto, and at the same time require the officer to satisfy any costs, damages, rents or profits recovered by the same judgment out of the personal property of the person against whom it was rendered, and the value of the property for which judgment was rendered, to be specified therein if a delivery thereof can not be had; and if sufficient personal property can not be found, then out of the real property, as provided for in the first subdivision of this section.

SEC. 3. The execution may be made returnable at any time not less than ten nor more than ninety days after its receipt by the sheriff or other officer to whom directed, to the clerk of the court issuing it. When the execution is returned the clerk must note on the judgment book the amount made by the officer, and to whom paid, and attach the execution to the judgment roll. If any real estate be levied on, the clerk shall note the fact on the judgment book with a description of such real estate as shown by the return.

SEC. 4. When the judgment requires the performance of any other act than above designated, a certified copy of the judgment shall be served upon the party against whom the same was rendered, or upon the person or officer required thereby, or by law, to obey the same, and obedience thereto may be enforced by the court as in other cases of contempt.

SEC. 5. The judgment may be enforced or carried into execution after the lapse of five years from the date of its entry, by application to and leave of the court, and upon a hearing had thereon notice being given thereon to the parties interested in manner as may be directed by the court or judge at the time of the application.

SEC. 6. No execution shall issue after the death of the judgment debtor, except it be for the recovery of real or personal property or the enforcement of a lien thereon.

SEC. 7. When the execution is against the property of the judgment debtor, it may be issued to the sheriff of any county in the Territory. When it requires the delivery of real or personal property it must be issued to the sheriff of the county where the property or some part thereof is situated. Executions may be issued at the same time to different counties.

SEC. 8. All goods, chattels, moneys, and other property, both real and personal, not exempt by law, and all property and rights of property seized and held under attachment in the action, are liable to execution. Shares and interests in any corporation or company, and debts and credits, choses in action, and all other property, both real and personal, or any interests legal or equitable in either real or personal property not capable of manual delivery, may be levied upon and sold under execution.

SEC. 9. The officer to whom the writ is directed shall make the levy as follows:

1. In order to make a levy on real estate it shall not be necessary for the officer to go upon the ground, but it shall be sufficient for him to indorse such levy on the writ and file with the county recorder of the county where such real property is situate, a copy of said writ with the indorsement of levy thereon.

2. A levy on personal property is made by taking possession thereof, when the defendant in execution is entitled to the possession; when the defendant in execution has an interest in personal property but is not entitled to the possession thereof, a levy is made thereon by giving notice thereof to the person who is entitled to the possession, or one of them where there are several.

3. A levy upon horses, mules, jacks, jennets, horned cattle, or hogs running at large in a range and which can not be herded or penned without great inconvenience and expense, may be made by designating, by reasonable estimate, the number of animals and describing them by their marks and brands, or either. Such levy shall be made in the presence of two or more credible persons, and notice thereof shall be given in writing to the owner, or his herder or agent, if residing within the county and known to the officer making the levy, and a copy of such notice attached to a copy of the writ shall be filed by the officer with the county recorder of the county wherein the levy is made.

4. A levy on the stock of any corporation or joint stock company may be made by leaving a notice thereof with secretary or other officer of the company upon whom service of process against the company is authorized by law.

5. A levy upon the interest of a partner in partnership property is made by leaving notice with one or more of the partners, or with a clerk of the partnership.

SEC. 10. If the property levied on be claimed by a third person as his property, the right to same may be tried in the manner as provided by chapter two, title sixty-one, Revised Statutes of Arizona.

SEC. 11. The property mentioned in titles twenty-seven and thirty-three of the Revised Statutes shall be exempt from such execution except in the manner in said titles specified, and as to all property so exempt the proceedings on such execution shall be in accordance with the provisions of said titles.

SEC. 12. The sheriff or other officer must execute the writ against the property of the judgment debtor by levying on a sufficient amount of property, if there be sufficient; collecting or selling the things in action, and selling the other property and paying to the plaintiff or his attorneys so much of the proceeds as will satisfy the judgment. Any excess in the proceeds over the judgment and accruing costs must be returned to the judgment debtor, unless otherwise directed by an order of the court. The judgment debtor may point out to the levying officer such property as he may wish to be levied on, and if the officer deems the same sufficient to satisfy the execution he shall make levy on no more.

SEC. 13. Notice of sale under execution shall be made as follows:

1. In case of perishable property, by posting written notice of the time and place of sale in three public places, two of which shall be in the precinct, and one at the door of the court-house of the county in which the sale is to take place, for such a period of time before the sale as may be reasonable considering the character and condition of the property.

2. In case of other personal property, by posting a similar notice in three public places in the county, one of which shall be at the court-house door and two in the precinct where the sale is to take place, for not less than ten days successively before the day of sale.

3. In case of real property, by posting notices in three public places in the county, one of which shall be at the court-house door, and publishing a copy thereof in some newspaper printed within the county, if there is one, for three weeks before the day of sale. Such notices shall notice the judgment, parties, amount, and court in which it was rendered, and particularly describe the property to be sold.

SEC. 14. Real property taken in execution shall be sold at the court-house door of the county wherein situated. Personal property shall be sold on the premises when it is taken in execution, or at the court-house door of the county, or at some other place, if, owing to the nature of the property, it is more convenient to exhibit it to purchasers at such place.

SEC. 15. All sales under execution must be made at public auction to the highest bidder, between the hours of nine in the morning and five in the afternoon. After sufficient property has been sold to satisfy the judgment and costs no more shall be sold. No person making the sale, or his deputy, can become a purchaser or be interested in such sales. When the sale is of personal property, capable of immediate delivery, it must be within view, and be sold in parcels so as to bring the highest price; the judgment debtor or creditor may direct the selling officer in such cases. Shares of stock in joint stock and incorporated companies, partnership interests and all interests in personal property without right to exclusive possession may be sold without the presence or the delivery of the property; when the sale is of property levied on under subdivision three of section ten of this act, it is not necessary that such stock or any part thereof shall be present at the place of sale, and the purchaser at such sale is authorized to gather and pen such stock and select therefrom the number purchased by him. When the sale is of real property, consisting of lands or parcels of lands that may be sold in parcels, they may be sold separately at direction of judgment debtor, he having the option of designating the order in which parcels may be sold. When property is held in common, the interest of the judgment debtor shall be sold as a whole.

SEC. 16. If a puchaser refuse to pay the amount bid by him for property struck off to him at the sale under execution the officer may again sell the property at any time to the highest bidder, and if any loss occur thereby the officer may recover such loss with costs from such bidder in any court of competent jurisdiction, but such selling officer shall not be responsible for any such loss and shall not be required to commence suit unless he be indemnified for costs of same.

SEC. 17. When the purchaser of any property capable of manual delivery pays the purchase money, the officer making the sale must deliver to the purchaser the property, and if desired, execute and deliver to him a certificate of sale. Such certificate conveys to the purchaser all the right which the debtor had in such property on the day the execution or attachment was levied.

SEC. 18. When the purchaser of any personal property not capable of manual delivery, or which, under section fifteen of this act, may be sold without the presence or delivery of the same, pays the purchase money, the officer making the sale must execute and deliver to the purchaser a certificate of sale. Such certificate conveys to the purchaser all the right which the debtor had in such property on the day the execution or attachment was levied.

SEC. 19. Upon a sale of real property, the purchaser is substituted to and acquires all the right, title and interest and claim of the judgment debtor thereto; and when the estate is less than a leasehold of two years unexpired time, the sale is absolute. In all other cases, including sales under order of court in foreclosure suits, the property is subject to redemption as provided in the following sections.

The officer selling real estate must give to the purchaser a certificate of sale, in which he shall set forth:

1. Full description of the real estate sold.

2. The price bid and paid for each parcel, if sold in lots or parcels.

3. Whether subject to redemption or not. A duplicate of such certificate must be filed by the selling officer in the office of the county recorder of the county.

SEC. 20. Property sold subject to redemption, as provided in the last section, or any part sold separately, may be redeemed in the manner hereinafter provided by the following persons, or their successors in interest:

1. The judgment debtor, or his successor in interest, in the whole or any part of the property.

2. A creditor having a lien by judgment or mortgage on the property sold, or on some share or part thereof, subsequent to that on which the property was sold. The persons mentioned in the second subdivision of this section, are, in this act, termed redemptioners.

SEC. 21. The judgment debtor or redemptioner may redeem the property from the purchaser any time within six months after the sale, on paying the purchaser the amount of his purchase, with nine per cent. added thereto, together with the amount of any assessment or taxes which the purchaser may have paid thereon after purchase, and interest on such amount, and if the purchaser be also a creditor having a prior lien to that of the redemptioner other than the judgment under which such purchase was made, the amount of such lien with interest.

SEC. 22. If property be so redeemed by a redemptioner another redemptioner may, within sixty days after the last redemption, again redeem it from the last redemptioner on paying the sum paid on such last redemption, with four per cent. thereon in addition, and the amount of any assessment of taxes which the last redemptioner may have paid thereon after the redemption by him, with interest on such amount, and in addition the amount of any liens held by said last redemptioner prior to his own, with interest, but the judgment under which the property was sold need not be paid as a lien. The property may be again, and as often as a redemptioner is so disposed, redeemed from any previous redemptioner, within sixty days after the last redemption, on paying the sum paid on the last previous redemption with four per cent. thereon, in addition, and the amount of any assessment or taxes which the last previous redemptioner paid after the redemption by him, with interest thereon, and the amount of any liens, other than the judgment under which the property was sold held by the last redemptioner previous to his own, with interest. Written notice of redemption must be given to the sheriff and a duplicate filed with the recorder of the county; and if any taxes or assessments are paid by the redemptioner, or if he has or acquires any lien other than that upon which the redemption was made, notice thereof must in like manner be given to the sheriff and filed with the recorder, and if such notice be not filed, the property may be redeemed without paying such tax, assessments, or lien. If no redemption be made in six months after the sale, the purchaser or his assignee is entitled to a conveyance; or if so redeemed, whenever sixty days have elapsed, and no other redemption has been made and notice thereof given, and the time for redemption has expired, the last redemptioner or his assignee is entitled to a sheriff's deed, but in all cases the judgment debtor shall have the entire period of six months from the date of the sale to redeem the property. If the judgment debtor redeem he must make the same payments as are required to effect a redemption by a redemptioner. If the debtor redeem, the effect of the sale is terminated and he is restored to his estate. Upon a redemption by the debtor, the person to whom the payment is made must execute and deliver to him a certificate of redemption, acknowledged or proved before an officer authorized to take acknowledgments of conveyance of real property. Such certificates must be filed and recorded in the office of the recorder of the county in which the property is situated, and the recorder must note the record thereof in the margin of the record of the certificate of sale.

SEC. 23. The payments mentioned in the last two sections may be made to the purchaser or redemptioner, or for him, to the officer who made the sale. When the judgment under which the sale has been made is payable in a specified kind of money or currency, payments must be made in the same kind of money or currency, and a tender of the money is equivalent to payment.

SEC. 24. A redemptioner must produce to the officer or person from whom he seeks to redeem and serve with his notice to the sheriff:

1. A copy of the docket of the judgment under which he claims the right to redeem, certified by the clerk of the court or the county where judgment is docketed, or if he redeem upon a mortgage or other lien, a note of the record thereof certified by the recorder.

2. A copy of any assignment necessary to establish his claim, verified by the affidavit of himself, or of a subscribing witness thereto.

3. An affidavit by himself or his agent, showing the amount actually due on the lien.

SEC. 25. The purchaser, from the time of the sale until a redemption, and a redemptioner, from the time of his redemption until another redemption, is entitled to receive from the tenant in possession the rents of the property sold or the value of the use and occupation thereof; but when any rents or profits have been received by the judgment creditor or purchaser, or his or their assigns, from the property thus sold, preceding such redemption, the amounts of such rents and profits shall be a credit upon the redemption money to be paid; and if the redemptioner or judgment debtor, before the expiration of the time allowed for such redemption, demands in writing of such purchaser or creditor, or his assigns, a written and verified statement of the amounts of such rents and profits thus received, the period for redemption is extended five days, after such sworn statement is given by such purchaser or his assigns to such redemptioner or debtor. If such purchaser or his assigns shall, for a period of one month from and after such demand, fail or refuse to give such statement, such redemptioner or debtor may bring an action in any court of competent jurisdiction to compel an accounting and disclosure of such rents and profits, and until fifteen days from and after the final determination of such action the right of redemption is extended to such redemptioner or debtor.

SEC. 26. Until the expiration of the time allowed for redemption, the court may restrain the commission of waste on the property by order granted with or without notice, on the application of the purchaser or the judgment creditor, but it is not waste for the person in possession of the property at the time of sale, or entitled to possession afterward, during the period allowed for redemption, to continue to use it in the same manner in which it was previously made; or to use in the ordinary course of husbandry; or to make the necessary repairs of buildings thereon; or to use wood or timber on the property therefor, or for the repair of fences or for fuel in his family, while he occupies the property.

SEC. 27. The act approved March first, eighteen hundred and eighty-seven, entitled "Executions," title twenty-six, of the Revised Statutes of the Territory of Arizona, eighteen hundred and eighty-seven, or such parts therof as conflict with this act, are hereby repealed, and this act shall take the place of same and be known under same title.

SEC. 28. This act shall be in force and take effect on and after its passage and approval.

Approved March 20, 1889.

No. 21.

AN ACT to regulate lawful fences and trespass within the same.

Be it enacted by the legislative assembly of the Territory of Arizona: Every inclosure shall be deemed under a lawful fence when the said fence is constructed as follows: All fences not less than fifty-four inches high, consisting of boards firmly fastened to posts well set, not more than nine feet apart, the space between the ground and bottom board and each space between the boards, not more than eight inches, shall be considered lawful and sufficient fence, and all fences fifty-four inches high, consisting of four barbed wires firmly fastened to posts well set, not more than thirty feet apart, with good stays extending from the top wire to the ground, placed every eight feet between the posts, each wire being firmly fastened to such stays, the bottom wire being placed not less than eighteen inches from the ground and the other three wires about equi-distant apart from the bottom wire to the top of the fence, shall be deemed a legal and sufficient fence. When barbed wire is used for a fence, a board or pole may be used in place of the top wire when properly and securely fastened and stayed; and all fences consisting of rails, timbers, stone walls, brush, hedge, adobe, or other material, which shall be equivalent to the board or barbed-wire fence herein described, shall be deemed a legal and sufficient fence.

SEC. 2. No persons or person shall be entitled to damages for stock trespassing upon cultivated or improved land unless such land is inclosed within a lawful fence.

SEC. 3. When any stock shall break into any inclosure inclosed by a lawful fence and damage the crops or property in any way, including the breaking of the fence, the said stock shall be liable to the owner of the said premises for the said damages, and may be held, advertised, and sold for the same, the damages to be assessed by three uninterested persons, and notice of sale to be posted in three public places in the precinct where such damage occurs, for at least five days prior to such sale.

SEC. 4. The board of supervisors of the counties of the Territory are hereby empowered, authorized, and it is made their duty, within thirty days after the passage of this act, at a special meeting called for that purpose, to designate districts within their respective counties within which owners or persons in possession of lands shall or shall not fence the same. They shall designate such districts by numbers and well-marked boundaries, according to natural objects or Government lines, which action shall be spread upon their minutes and become a part of the records of the board.

SEC. 5. After they have designated and marked the exterior boundaries of said districts they shall cause to be published in some newspaper published in the county a copy of such proceedings as are provided for in the preceding section once a week for four successive weeks, after which last said publication said fence districts or no-fence districts as established by the board of supervisors under this act shall be the law of this Territory governing the same, and in all suits, civil or penal, that may arise after said publication shall be the law to govern the courts in which such suits may be brought under this act.

SEC. 6. All acts and parts of acts in conflict with the provisions of this act, so far as they affect any county or part thereof designated by order of the board of supervisors to come within the provisions of this act, are hereby repealed.

SEC. 7. This act shall take effect and be in force from and after its passage.

Approved March 19, 1889.

No. 22.

AN ACT to amend paragraph four hundred and fifty-seven, being section four, chapter three, title thirteen, Revised Statutes of Arizona, 1887.

Be it enacted by the legislative assembly of the Territory of Arizona: Paragraph four hundred and fifty-seven, being section four, chapter three, title thirteen, Revised Statutes of Arizona, 1887, is hereby amended so as to read as follows: The officers of precincts are, one justice of the peace, one constable, one coroner, and such other inferior and subordinate officers as are provided for elsewhere in this act or by the board of supervisors, and in each precinct containing more than eight hundred inhabitants, to be ascertained by the board of supervisors, there shall be two justices of the peace and two constables.

SEC. 2. The board of supervisors of the proper county shall forthwith appoint for each precinct entitled to the same under this act an additional justice of the peace and constable to hold office until their successors are duly elected and qualified according to law.

SEC. 3. All acts or parts of acts in conflict with this act are hereby appealed.

SEC. 4. This act to take effect and be in force from and after its passage.

Approved March 19, 1889.

No. 23.

AN ACT relating to judgments and to provide for the entry thereof without suits upon bonds or notes.

Be it enacted by the legislative assembly of the Territory of Arizona: A judgment on a bond or note, with or without a warrant of attorney, may be rendered without action either for money due or to become due, or to secure any person against contingent liability on behalf of the defendant, or both, in the manner prescribed in the next section.

SEC. 2. The plaintiff shall file with his complaint an answer, signed by the defendant or some attorney in his behalf, confessing the amount claimed in the complaint or some part thereof, and in case such answer is signed by an attorney an instrument authorizing judgment to be confessed or entered shall be produced to the court, judge, or justice of the peace signing the judgment, and shall be made a part of the judgment roll or judgment. The plaintiff or some one in his behalf shall make and annex to the complaint an affidavit stating the amount due or to become due on the note or bond, or if such note or bond is given to secure any contingent liability the affidavit must state concisely the facts constituting such liability and must show that the amount confessed does not exceed the same. No other affidavit shall be necessary: Provided, however, That no judgment shall be rendered in the manner as provided in this act on any note or bond which is over three years past due. The judgment shall be signed by the court or judge thereof or by a justice of the peace where the amount confessed does not exceed his jurisdiction, and in vacation the clerk of a court of record may sign the judgment and the same shall be as valid as though it had been signed by the court in term time, and the same shall be thereupon entered and docketed and enforced in the same manner as judgments in other cases.

SEC. 3. All acts and parts of acts in conflict with the provisions of this act are hereby repealed.

SEC. 4. This act shall take effect and be in force from and after its passage.

Approved March 20, 1889.

No. 24.

AN ACT to detach certain lands from the county of Yavapai and annex the same to the county of Gila.

Be it enacted by the legislative assembly of the Territory of Arizona, All that portion of the Territory of Arizona embraced within the boundaries of Yavapai County, and bounded as follows: Commencing at a point where the eastern boundary line of Yavapai County, which is also the western boundary line of Apache County, intersects the northern boundary line of Gila County, and running westerly along the southern boundary line of Yavapai County to the highest point of the Matazal Mountains intersected by said line; thence northerly and following along the summit of the Matazal Mountains to the summit of the mountain known as and called "North Peak;" thence due north to the center of the channel of the East Fork of the Verde River; thence westerly, following down the center of the channel of the said East Fork of the Verde River, to a point where the same intersects the center of the channel of the Verde River; thence northerly, following up the Verde River, to the center of the channel of the mouth of Fossil Creek; thence up Fossil Creek to the center of the channel of the head of the East Fork of Fossil Creek; thence due east to the rim rock of the Mogollon Mountains; thence following along the said rim rock of the Mogollon Mountains easterly to the western boundary line of Apache County; thence following along the said western boundary line of Apache County southerly to the northern boundary line of Gila County, at the point of beginning, be, and the same is hereby, detached from the county of Yavapai and removed from the jurisdiction of the government thereof and annexed to and included within the boundaries of the county of Gila, and the jurisdiction of the government of the said county of Gila is hereby extended over said territory.

SEC. 2. That all actions now pending in the third judicial district court in and for the county of Yavapai pertaining to property situated in or between citizens resident within the territory described in section one of this act are hereby transferred to the district court of the second judicial district in and for the county of Gila, and said district court of the third judicial district is hereby directed to order that such transfer be made upon application of any party to any such action, and thereafter said action shall be proceeded with and disposed of in the same manner and with the same force and effect as though said actions had originally been commenced in said second judicial district court in and for said county of Gila.

SEC. 3. That the records of all instruments which have heretofore been recorded in the office of the county recorder of the county of Yavapai relating to any lands, real estate, tenements, goods, chattels, or personal property of every kind and description, situated within the territory described in the first section of this act, or to the title thereto or liens or incumbrances thereon, shall hereafter have the same priority, force, and effect as though the several instruments whereof they are the records had been duly recorded in the office of the county recorder of the county of Gila at the date they were severally recorded in said county of Yavapai; and said records in said county of Yavapai shall hereafter continue perpetually to impart constructive notice and to have the same force and effect in said county of Gila as though the lands, real estate, tenements, goods, chattels, or personal property had always been within said county of Gila and as though said instruments had been originally recorded in the office of the county recorder of Gila County.

SEC. 4. That the county of Gila shall assume and pay eleven thousand dollars of the indebtedness heretofore incurred and now existing against said county of Yavapai.

SEC. 5. The board of supervisors of Gila County, at its first regular meeting hereafter, shall cause a warrant to be issued and signed as other county warrants of said county are, and bearing the same rate of interest from its issuance until paid, on the treasurer of said county, in favor of the treasurer of Yavapai County or order, for the sum of eleven thousand dollars, payable in installment, of two thousand dollars per year for the next ensuing four years, and three thousand dollars for the fifth year hereafter, the whole of said sum and interest to be paid before the year eighteen hundred and ninety-five, and shall deliver said warrant to the treasurer of Yavapai County, who shall take and receive the same as the property of the said Yavapai County, and to meet the payment of warrant and interest the said board of supervisors shall cause to be assessed and levied each year upon the taxable property of said Gila County, in addition to the levy for other authorized taxes, forty cents on each one hundred dollars' valuation of taxable property of said county, to be assessed, levied, and collected as other county taxes are, and if sufficient money shall not be realized each year from the collection of taxes to pay the said money and interest as herein stated, the deficiency shall be paid by the county treasurer out of the general fund of said county; if any money remains after paying said installment and interest out of the taxes collected each year, the surplus shall be paid by the treasurer into the general fund of said county.

SEC. 6. The treasurer of Gila County shall pay said money and interest to the treasurer of the county of Yavapai, at his office in Prescott, Ariz., annually, upon the first Monday in January, commencing on the first Monday in January, eighteen hundred and ninety.

SEC. 7. The board of supervisors of Gila County shall have power to levy a special tax, not to exceed twenty-five cents on each one hundred dollars of valuation of taxable property of said county, to be assessed and collected as other taxes. The fund arising from such special tax shall be applied, in addition to the twenty per cent. specified in the preceding section, to the liquidation of the said debt due to Yavapai County.

SEC. 8. All acts and parts of acts in conflict with this act are hereby repealed.

SEC. 9. This act shall take effect and be in force from and after its passage.

Approved March 21, 1889.

No. 25.

AN ACT to reimburse C. A. Luke for expenses incurred by him in representing the Territory of Arizona at the Vienna Exposition in 1873.

Be it enacted by the fifteenth legislative assembly of the Territory of Arizona, That the sum of two thousand four hundred dollars be appropriated for the return to C. A. Luke of the expenses incurred by him in representing the Territory at the Vienna Exposition, held at Vienna, Austria, in eighteen hundred and seventy-three.

SEC. 2. That the auditor of the Territory is hereby authorized and directed to draw his warrant on the Territorial treasurer in favor of C. A. Luke for said sum of two thousand four hundred dollars, which warrant shall be paid out of any funds in the hands of said treasurer not otherwise appropriated.

SEC. 3. This act shall take effect and be in force from and after its passage.

Approved March 21, 1889.

No. 26.

AN ACT to amend an act entitled "An act to establish a Territorial normal school."

Be it enacted by the legislative assembly of the Territory of Arizona, That paragraph twenty-five hundred and thirty-nine (section twenty-five) of the act creating a normal school for the Territory of Arizona, approved March tenth, eighteen hundred and eighty-seven, be, and the same is hereby, amended to read as follows:

"The right to nominate a pupil biennially is secured to each member of the house and council of the legislative assembly of Arizona, preference to be given for the space of sixty days next after the qualification of said member to pupils of the county from which said member is elected, after which time (no pupil accepting) he may nominate a pupil from any other county of this Territory. Pupils provided for in this section who pass the required examination shall be admitted into said normal school for the term of two years free of tuition."

SEC. 2. That this act take effect on and after its passage."

Approved March 21, 1889.

No. 27.

AN ACT to amend section ninety-seven of chapter nine, title fifty-six, of the Revised Statutes of Arizona.

Be it enacted by the legislative assembly of the Territory of Arizona, That section ninety-seven of chapter nine, title fifty-six, of the Revised Statutes of Arizona be amended to read as follows:

"Each male inhabitant of this Territory, whether a citizen of the United States or an alien, excepting active members of all organized fire companies in cities and towns, who shall be able to produce and exhibit a certificate of such active membership signed by the chief of the fire department, if there be such officer, if not, then by the foreman of the company of which he is a member (and also excepting Indians), over the age of twenty-one years and under the age of sixty years, and not otherwise by law exempt, shall be liable to pay such poll tax as is by this act provided, and shall pay the same to the poll-tax collector upon demand, between the first day of March and the first day of June in each year: Provided, however, That in case of his neglect to pay such poll tax within the time specified, or the failure of the poll-tax collector to demand or collect the same during that time, he shall be liable to pay such poll tax at any time thereafter during the balance of the year."

SEC. 2. This act shall take effect and be in force from and after its passage.

Approved March 21, 1889.

No. 28.

AN ACT to encourage the construction of railroads to the Grand Canyon of the Colorado.

Whereas there is contained within the borders of this Territory one of nature's most wonderful and stupendous productions, far excelling in magnificence and grandeur even the world-renowned Falls of Niagara; and

Whereas it is almost impossible to visit this marvelous exhibition of the handiwork of the great Creator, owing to the long distance the same is situated from the line of any railroad and the rough and rugged roads that have to be traveled in reaching the same; and

Whereas the citizens of our own Territory, savants, tourists, and travelers are desirous of visiting that remarkable locality, the Grand Canyon of the Colorado:

Be it enacted by the legislative assembly of the Territory of Arizona, That any corporation duly organized and incorporated under the laws of this Territory which shall construct a railroad from some point upon the line of the Atlantic and Pacific Railroad, in this Territory, to some suitable point upon the Grand Canyon of the Colorado, shall be exempted, and every species of property, real, personal, and mixed, owned, held, used, or occupied by said company for the purpose of constructing, operating, and maintaining said road, shall be exempt from taxation of every kind and description whatsoever within said Territory during the process of construction and for the period of six years from and after the completion of said railroad: Provided, however, That this act shall not apply to any corporation which does not in good faith commence the construction of said railroad within two years from the date of the passage of this act, and have the same fully completed and in operation, and equipped with at least one locomotive engine and one passenger coach, operating at least one train per day between the points aforesaid, before the first day of January, anno Domini eighteen hundred and ninety-three.

SEC. 2. All acts and parts of acts in conflict with this act are hereby repealed, and this act shall take effect and be in force from and after its passage.

Approved March 21, 1889.

No. 29.

AN ACT to provide for the expenses of shipping the Territorial library and other property of the Territory from Prescott to Phœnix.

Be it enacted by the legislative assembly of the Territory of Arizona, That the sum of one thousand seven hundred and fifty dollars is hereby appropriated to pay the freight and expenses of shipping the Territorial library and other property from Prescott to Phœnix.

SEC. 2. That the Territorial auditor is hereby directed to draw his warrant on the general fund in favor of S. P. Behan for the said sum of one thousand seven hundred and fifty dollars.

SEC. 3. That this act take effect and be in force from and after its passage.

Approved March 21, 1889.

No. 30.

AN ACT to amend paragraphs twenty-six hundred and eighty-nine and twenty-six hundred and sixty-three of the Revised Statutes of Arizona Territory.

Be it enacted by the legislative assembly of the Territory of Arizona, That paragraph twenty-six hundred and sixty-three be amended to read as follows (twenty six hundred and sixty-three, section thirty-seven): The collector, immediately after the receipt of the "duplicate assessment roll," must publish an official notice specifying, "first," that the "duplicate assessment roll" of the county for the year eighteen—(blank) is now in his possession for collection of the taxes levied therein; "second," that taxes will be delinquent on the third Monday of December next thereafter and that unless paid on that day, or prior thereto, one and one-half per centum per month, during the time the said taxes shall be delinquent, will be added to the amount thereof as penalty; "third," the time and place at which payment of taxes may be made.

SEC. 2. That paragraph twenty-six hundred and eighty-nine be amended to read as follows (twenty-six hundred and eighty-nine, section sixty-three): In cases where the tax on personal property becomes a charge on the real estate of the person assessed the collector shall select for that purpose some particular tract or parcel of real estate owned by the person owing such personal tax, and in his advertisement for judgment and sale shall designate the particular tract or parcel of real estate against which said personal property tax is charged, and in the list filed for judgment the same facts shall be shown, and the court shall take cognizance thereof and give judgment against said tract or parcel of real estate for such personal property tax: Provided, That the collector shall apportion said personal property tax to the different parcels or tracts of real estate of such owner appearing on the delinquent list and to be selected by such collector when no particular parcel or tract thereof is of sufficient value to secure the whole personal property tax due. Against each piece of real estate, lot, or parcel of land separately assessed, and on each assessment of personal property, the tax on which is a lien on the real estate, for which judgment is asked at the trial, the court shall give judgment for one and one-half per centum per month for the time the said taxes were delinquent and unpaid as penalty for delinquency and also for one dollar, which shall cover the costs in the proceeding, one-fourth of which one dollar, when collected, shall go to the collector for preparing the delinquent roll, one-fourth to the clerk of the district court in which judgment is recovered, when such clerk receives his compensation in fees, and the balance of said one dollar to the county.

SEC. 3. The provisions of this act shall only apply to taxes which shall hereafter become delinquent.

SEC. 4. All acts and parts of acts in conflict with this act are hereby repealed.

SEC. 5. This act shall take effect and be in force from and after January first, eighteen hundred and ninety.

Approved March 21, 1889.

No. 31.

AN ACT to amend paragraph twenty-six hundred and forty-seven, section twenty-one, chapter three, title fifty-six, Revised Statutes, "relative to the taxation of water ditches."

Be it enacted by the legislative assembly of the Territory of Arizona, That paragraph twenty-six hundred and forty-seven, section twenty-one, chapter three, title fifty-six, Revised Statutes of Arizona, be, and the same is hereby, amended so as to read as follows:

"Twenty-six hundred and forty-seven, section twenty-one. Water ditches constructed for mining, manufacturing, or irrigating purposes, and wagon, turnpike, or toll roads, or telegraph lines, must be assessed the same as real estate by the assessor of the county at a rate per mile for that portion of such property as lies within his county, and must be by him listed as a whole without separating the land and franchise and improvements, either in the description or valuation of the same: Provided, That private irrigating ditches, wholly owned by the parties using the water therefrom on their own land, shall be exempt from assessment and taxation, except in so far as such ditches enhance the value of the land upon which they conduct the water.

SEC. 2. All acts or parts of acts in conflict with this act are hereby repealed.

SEC. 3. This act shall take effect and be in force from and after its passage.

Approved March 21, 1889.

No. 32.

AN ACT to amend section twenty-six hundred and ninety-one of the Revised Statutes of Arizona of eighteen hundred and eighty-seven.

Be it enacted by the legislative assembly of the Territory of Arizona, That paragraph twenty-six hundred and ninety-one (section sixty-five, of title fifty-six, revenue, approved March ten, eighteen hundred and eighty-seven) of the Revised Statutes of the Territory of Arizona, of eighteen hundred and eighty-seven, on page four hundred and eighty-two, be, and the same is, amended hereby so as to read as follows, to wit:

Twenty-six hundred and ninety-one (section sixty-five). Appeals from the judgment of the court may be taken to the supreme court of the Territory on the party taking the appeal filing an affidavit that the appeal is not taken for the purpose of delay, but in order that justice may be done and because the affiant believes that the taxes charged and sought to be enforced by such suit are illegal and unjust. And where such affidavit is filed and it appears from the assessment roll that the party sought to be charged with such tax is the owner of real estate or other property permanently located in the county in which such suit is brought, sufficient in value to cover the amount of the tax sought to be collected, an appeal shall forthwith be granted to the supreme court and all proceeding in said cause stayed until the final determination thereof in the supreme court, and should the judgment of the court below be affirmed ten per centum damages shall be added to the amount of such judgment upon the amount of taxes so appealed from as fixed and liquidated damages, together with interest at the rate of one per centum per month on the amount of taxes found to be due from the date upon which they become delinquent, should it appear that such appeal was taken without good cause, and such judgment shall be a first lien upon all other property, real and personal, owned by such person within the Territory of Arizona. In all cases where it shall appear from the delinquent list that the property against which the tax is sought to be enforced is movable personal property and the owner thereof has no real estate or other property permanently located within the county against which said taxes might be enforced, then, in addition to the affidavit aforementioned, the party taking the appeal shall, within ten days after the rendition of the judgment against him, unless the court shall for good cause extend the time, file a bond in a reasonable amount, in no case exceeding double the amount of the taxes sought to be enforced against such personal property, conditioned that he will pay the amount of such tax and the costs and per centum thereon should the judgment of the lower court be affirmed.

SEC. 2. All acts and parts of acts in conflict with this act are hereby repealed, and this act shall take effect and be in force from and after its passage.

Approved March 21, 1889.

No. 33.

AN ACT in relation to the qualifications of persons elected or appointed to office.

Be it enacted by the legislative assembly of the Territory of Arizona, No person who can not read and write in the English language shall be eligible to hold any Territorial, county, precinct, or district office in the Territory of Arizona, whether the same be elective or appointive, and no certificate of election or commission shall issue to persons so disqualified.

SEC. 2. Boards of supervisors shall be sole judges of the qualifications required by section one of this act when the question arises over the election or appointment of county, precinct, or district officers or deputies; and the governor shall be the judge in cases arising from the election or appointment of Territorial officers, subject, however, in all instances to a review on appeal or certiorari to the district court of the proper county.

SEC. 3. All acts and parts of acts in conflict with this act are hereby repealed.

SEC. 4. This act shall take effect and be in force from and after its passage.

Approved March 21, 1889.

No. 34.

AN ACT defining the rights of parties owning private or lateral ditches.

Be it enacted by the legislative assembly of the Territory of Arizona, That any person, firm, or association owning an interest in common with another person, firm, or association, any lateral ditch, constructed and used for irrigating, mining, milling, or other useful and lawful purpose, shall have the right to widen, deepen, border up, or extend said lateral ditch by paying to his or their associate or associates and to the owner or owners of the land through which said lateral ditch passes a just compensation for any damages to the land, growing crop, or crops, that may be occasioned by widening, deepening, bordering up, or extending said lateral ditch. Such damage, in disputed cases, may be ascertained and adjusted in the manner prescribed by title twenty-two, Revised Statutes.

SEC. 2. A lateral ditch, as referred to in this act, is defined to be a private ditch leading out of a main ditch or any of its branches, taken from a river or original source of water supply.

SEC. 3. This act shall take effect and be in force on and after its passage.

Approved March 21, 1889.

No. 35.

AN ACT to amend section eighteen hundred and sixty, Penal Code.

Be it enacted by the legislative assembly of the Territory of Arizona, That section eighteen hundred and sixty of the Penal Code be amended so as to read as follows:

1860 (section 1860). In all criminal actions the Territory may appeal to the supreme court on questions of law alone, and shall be taken, if from a judgment, within one year from its rendition, and from an order, ruling or otherwise, within twenty days after the same is made. The district attorney, without summons or notice, shall pray the appeal during the term and the clerk shall make a transcript of the record, inclusive of bill of exceptions and statement of facts (if prepared), to be settled in the manner provided by section eighteen hundred and seventy, and deliver the same to the district attorney, to be by him forwarded to the attorney-general. If the attorney-general, after inspecting the record, is of the opinion that error has been committed to the predjudice of the Territory, which is important to a correct and uniform administration of the criminal law that the supreme court should decide, he shall file the transcript forthwith in the clerk's office of the supreme court and the hearing be had as in other cases of appeal by defendant: Provided, That the supreme court shall not reverse a judgment in favor of a defendant which operates as a bar to future prosecutions for the offense.

SEC. 2. All acts and parts of acts in conflict with this act are hereby repealed.

SEC. 3. This act shall take effect and be in force from and after its passage.

Approved March 21, 1889.

AN ACT to prevent trespassing and providing a penalty therefor.

Be it enacted by the legislative assembly of the Territory of Arizona: Any person who shall, knowingly, close herd any horses, mules, asses, goats, sheep, hogs, or cattle, on the land of another, not public lands of the United States, without the consent, in writing, of the owner of such lands, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor. Upon conviction thereof, such person shall be fined not less than five dollars, nor more than fifty dollars, or be imprisoned in the county jail not less than five days, nor more than thirty days, or by both fine and imprisonment; upon conviction of another like offense, such person may be fined not exceeding one hundred dollars or be imprisoned in the county jail not exceeding five months, or by both such fine and imprisonment.

SEC. 2. This act shall take effect and be in force from and after its passage.

Approved March 21, 1889.

No. 37.

AN ACT to amend paragraphs twenty-seven hundred and forty-three, section eight, twenty-seven hundred and forty-four, section nine, twenty-seven hundred and forty-five, section ten, twenty-seven hunnred and forty-seven, section twelve, chapter one, title fifty-seven, Revised Statutes, relative to roads and highways.

Be it enacted by the legislative assembly of the Territory of Arizona, That paragraph twenty-seven hundred and forty-three, section eight, chapter one, title fifty-seven of the Revised Statutes of Arizona, be, and the same is hereby, amended so as to read as follows:

2743 (section 8). The clerk of the board of supervisors, immediately after the road overseers shall have entered upon the discharge of their duties, shall issue to each road overseer as many receipts, signed, as he may require, taking his receipt for the same, and the receipts so delivered to such overseer shall be accounted as so much cash paid him at two dollars each. The road overseer shall settle quarterly with the clerk of the board of supervisors, to wit: On the first Monday in January, April, July, and October, and all road receipts returned by them to the clerk of the board of supervisors shall be deducted from the amount issued to each overseer as aforesaid, and the overseers shall account to the board of supervisors, at each settlement, for all receipts not returned by them, and for all moneys received by them from the board of supervisors belonging to their respective road districts.

SEC. 2. That paragraph twenty-seven hundred and forty-four, section nine, chapter one, title fifty-seven, Revised Statutes of Arizona, be and the same is hereby amended so as to read as follows:

2747 (section 9). Every male resident of the Territory over twenty-one and under fifty years of age shall be required to perform, either in person or by substitute, two days' labor on the highways in their respective road districts, which labor shall be performed at any time when required by the road overseer, or, in default of performing such labor, shall pay to the road overseer of his district the sum of two dollars, for the benefit of the highways of the district. Whenever the labor required by this section has been performed by any person, or, instead thereof, money paid, the road overseer shall deliver to the person entitled thereto a proper recept signed by the clerk of the board of supervisors and countersigned by himself, specifying in said receipt whether received in money or labor, and no receipt shall be given for labor performed upon the roads, unless two full days' work has been performed to the satisfaction of the road overseer.

SEC. 3. That paragraph twenty-seven hundred and forty-five, section ten, chapter one, title fifty-seven, of the Revised Statutes of Arizona, be, and the same is hereby, amended so as to read as follows:

2745 (section 10). The road overseer shall give at least three days' notice, in writing, to each person resident of his district subject to road tax, to appear on a certain day and hour named, and at a certain place in his district, to do and perform the labor required by him by section nine of this chapter, and any person thus notified who shall fail to appear, either in person or by substitute, at the day, hour, and place designated in said notice, or, who appearing, shall refuse to perform the labor required of him shall be considered as delinquent and shall be proceeded against as such, and the road overseer shall proceed to collectof him, in money, the sum of two dollars, in manner and form as hereinafter provided: Provided, That nothing herein contained shall be so construed as to prevent the road overseer from accepting labor at any time from the delinquent, if he shall deem the same advisable; any person who shall be prevented by sickness from appearing pursuant to notice, and who shall present to the clerk of the board of supervisors of his district a certificate from any physician or three respectable citizens of his district certifying to his disability to perform the required labor, shall not be liable as a delinquent under the provisions of this chapter.

SEC. 4. That paragraph twenty-seven hundred and forty-seven, section twelve, chapter one, title fifty-seven, Revised Statutes of Arizona, be, and the same is hereby, amended so as to read as follows:

2747 (section 12). Moneys, credits, and effects of the delinquent may be seized or attached in the hands of third parties by the road overseers by delivering to the party having such credits, moneys, or effects of the delinquent, a written notice, requiring said party to pay to him the sum of money due by delinquent, and if the person thus served with notice shall pay the amount demanded the road overseer shall deliver to him a receipt therefor, including the costs and charges allowed by the overseer, viz, three dollars, and the receipt thus delivered shall be a legal offset to any claims existing against the party paying in favor of the delinquent. If the person on whom the notice is served should neglect or refuse to pay to the road overseer the sum demanded of him within five days after receiving said notice, the road overseer shall apply to any justice of the peace of his precinct for an order requiring said person, so served as aforesaid, to be and appear before him forthwith, or on a certain day named in said order, to answer under oath concerning any moneys, credits, or effects in his hands belonging to the delinquent, and if it shall appear by the answer of the party, to the satisfaction of the justice, that he has moneys, effects, or credits in his hands belonging to the delinquent, the justice shall enter in his docket a judgment against the party thus examined for the sum of five dollars and costs, two dollars of which shall be paid to the road overseer and applied by him upon the construction and repairs of the highways in his district, and three dollars to the road overseer for his services. Upon receiving the sum of five dollars the overseer shall execute a receipt for the sum of two dollars, signed by the clerk of the board of supervisors, and a receipt for the remainder signed by himself. The judgment rendered against the person served with notice shall be collected in the same manner as other judgments in justices' courts and shall be a legal offset against the delinquent in favor of the judgment debtor.

SEC. 5. All acts or parts of acts in conflict with this act are hereby repealed.

Approved March 21, 1889.

AN ACT for the relief of Winslow school district, No. 20, of Apache County.

Be it enacted by the legislative assembly of the Territory of Arizona, That whereas the county superintendent of schools, ex-officio, of Apache County, in the year anno Domini eighteen hundred and eighty-five, under a mistaken construction of the school laws then in force, wrongfully apportioned and divided among the different school districts of said Apache County moneys to the amount of one hundred and twenty-seven and seventy-five one-hundredths dollars standing to the credit of and belonging to said Winslow school district, number twenty, at the close of the school year ending June thirty, anno Domini eighteen hundred and eighty-five:

SEC. 2. And whereas said Winslow district has never been reimbursed for such loss:

SEC. 3. The county superintendent of Apache County is hereby authorized and instructed, at the time of making the first apportionment of school funds made after the passage of this act, to set apart, first, before the apportionment, for the benefit of and to the credit of said Winslow school district, number twenty, the sum of one hundred and twenty-seven and seventy-five one-hundredths dollars, apportioning the remaining apportionable funds among all the districts, including said Winslow district, in the manner provided by law.

SEC. 4. Any moneys placed to the credit of said Winslow school district, under and by virtue of this act, shall be used by the trustees of said district, first, for the payment of any debts that may be outstanding against said district, and that were contracted previous to December thirty-first, eighteen hundred and eighty-five, and second, if there be a remainder, said remainder may be used by the trustees for the current legitimate expenses.

SEC. 5. This act shall take effect and be in force from and after its passage.

Approved March 21, 1889.

No. 41.

AN ACT to prescribe additional duties to the board of supervisors.

Be it enacted by the legislative assembly of the Territory of Arizona, That in all counties of this Territory the care of the indigent sick of the county, including medical attendance, food, medicine, and lodging, shall be let to the lowest qualified bidder therefor, by the board of supervisors, after due publication asking for sealed proposals, to be published for ten days successively next before the awarding of the contract, in some daily paper published in such county.

SEC. 2. That no person shall be a qualified bidder who is not a regularly licensed physician and surgeon or who has not complied with the laws of this Territory relating to the practice of his profession.

SEC. 3. That the physician and surgeon to whom such contract shall be awarded shall give to such county a good and sufficient bond with at least two sureties, in the sum of five thousand dollars, for the faithful performance of such contract, which bond shall be approved by the board of supervisors.

SEC. 4. Each bid and proposal shall specify distinctly the price proposed to be charged for each day's attendance upon each indigent sick person, including medical attendance, medicine, food and lodging, and no bid shall be received which does not comply fully with the provisions of this act.

SEC. 5. That no person other than indigent, that is, absolutely without property or money, shall receive public aid or be admitted into any hospital the expenses of which are paid by taxation. And any manager, superintendent, or other persons having charge of any hospital who shall receive into the same, for medical attention or subsistence, any person other than such as are hereinbefore specified and described, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and punished by fine not exceeding three hundred dollars.

SEC. 6. That all persons who are applicants for public or official charity in any way whatsoever, as by admission to county hospitals or out-door relief, shall make an affidavit before a justice of the peace that he is a citizen of the United States, sick or disabled, and that he is utterly destitute of the means to pay for his subsistence, care, and medical attention. If from illness the applicant is unable to make such affidavit, any one knowing the facts may do so for him. The officer taking such affidavit shall charge no fee for his services. The affidavit shall be presented to the acting chairman of the board of supervisors of the county in which the hospital is situated, who shall thereupon, if satisfied of the truth of the same, admit the applicant to said hospital or out-door relief.

SEC. 7. In any county owning or possessing a building used for hospital purposes, it shall be understood that the contractor shall have the use of said building, with all appurtenances.

SEC. 8. And it shall be the duty of the board of supervisors to have an inventory made of all medical stores, instruments, furniture, and bedding of whatsoever kind belonging to the county, and said contractor shall be responsible for the same.

SEC. 9. All acts and parts of acts in conflict with this act are hereby repealed.

SEC. 10. This act shall take effect and be in force from and after its passage.

Approved March 21, 1889.

No. 42.

AN ACT empowering the boards of supervisors of the the several counties in the Territory to authorize a survey to define the boundaries and make a correct map of the said several counties.

Be it enacted by the legislative assembly of the Territory of Arizona, Whenever, in the judgment of any board of supervisors of any county in this Territory, it may be deemed necessary that the boundary line separating said county from any other county should be defined so that it may easily be determined, then said board of supervisors may notify the board of supervisors of the contiguous county, in their discretion, and, within thirty days after said notice, the county surveyors of both said counties, shall proceed to survey said boundary line and establish posts thereon one mile apart.

SEC. 2. The expense of making said survey shall be borne equally between the counties interested, and the said expense shall be paid out of the general fund of the counties interested.

SEC. 3. The boards of supervisors of the counties ordering said survey shall have a map made of said survey, and each board of supervisors shall have a map made of its respective county defining the boundaries of road and school districts, voting precincts, and the exterior boundaries of the county, which said maps shall be filed with the clerk of the board of supervisors.

SEC. 4. The expense of making said maps and surveys shall be borne by the respective counties and paid out of the general fund of such counties, as determined by the boards of supervisors of said counties.

AN ACT to provide for the holding of a convention for the purpose of framing a State constitution to be submitted to the people for their approval or rejection.

Be it enacted by the legislative assembly of the Territory of Arizona, That an election shall take place in the various precincts in the several counties in this Territory on the fifth day of November, anno Domini one thousand eight hundred and eighty-nine, for the choice of delegates to a convention to frame a form of a State constitution to be submitted to the legal voters in this Territory for their approval or rejection.

SEC. 2. The number of delegates chosen at said election shall be forty-two, who shall be chosen from the counties as follows: Three delegates shall be elected by the voters of the county of Mohave, but no elector of Mohave County shall vote for more than two persons for delegates to such convention; six delegates shall be elected by the voters of the county of Yavapai, but no elector of Yavapai County shall vote for more than four persons for delegates to such convention; three delegates shall be elected by the voters of the county of Apache, but no elector of Apache County shall vote for more than two persons for delegates to such convention; three delegates shall be elected by the voters of the county of Graham, but no elector of Graham County shall vote for more than two persons for delegates to such convention; three delegates shall be elected by the voters of the county of Gila, but no elector of Gila County shall vote for more than two persons for delegates to such convention; three delegates shall be elected by the voters of the county Pinal, but no elector of Pinal County shall vote for more than two persons for delegates to such convention; six delegates shall be elected by the voters of the county of Maricopa, but no elector of Maricopa County shall vote for more than four persons for delegates to such convention; three delegates shall be elected by the voters of the county of Yuma, but no elector of Yuma County shall vote for more than two persons for delegates to such convention; six delegates shall be elected by the voters of the county of Pima, but no elector of Pima County shall vote for more than four persons for delegates to such convention; six delegates shall be elected by the voters of the county of Cochise, but no elector of Cochise County shall vote for more than four persons for delegates to such convention.

SEC. 3. The delegates required to be elected by the provisions of this act shall possess the qualifications of electors, and no person shall be chosen to represent any other county than that in which he has resided for at least thirty days next preceding the election. All male persons over twenty-one years of age, exceping Indians not taxed, who shall not have been convicted of any capital or infamous crime and who shall be citizens of the United States, and who shall have actually resided in the Territory for sixty days and in the county for ten days next preceding the election, shall be qualified electors for the purpose of voting at the election herein provided for, and no registration of electors shall be required for the purpose of voting at the election herein provided for.

SEC. 4. For the purpose of choosing the delegates aforesaid, polls shall be opened on said fifth day of November, anno Domini one thousand eight hundred and eighty-nine, in the various precincts in all the counties in this Territory in the manner directed for holding general elections in this Territory, and it shall be the duty of the board of supervisors of each county in this Territory, at their regular meeting next preceding said fifth day of November, anno Domini one thousand eight hundred and eighty-nine, to appoint one inspector and two judges of each election precinct in their respective counties, whose duty it shall be to attend, at the usual hour and place of holding general elections in the precinct, on said fifth day of November, one thousand eight hundred and eighty-nine, and receive tickets, either written or printed, from all persons qualified to vote, as hereinbefore provided, and to deposit such ballots in ballot-boxes to be provided them for that purpose, and said election shall in all respects, except as herein otherwise provided, be conducted and returns thereof made and transmitted, as now provided by law in case of general elections for Delegate to Congress, and the clerk of the board of supervisors in the several counties shall certify the names of all persons who shall have been voted for at said election for delegates, with the number of votes cast for each person, to the secretary of the Territory, and the persons who shall receive the largest number of votes in any of said counties, as provided in this act, shall be declared elected delegates for such county, and the secretary is hereby required to issue a certificate of election to such persons.

SEC. 5. It shall be the duty of the delegates elected as aforesaid to assemble at the city of Phœnix on the first Tuesday of January, anno Domini one thousand eight hundred and ninety, at twelve o'clock meridian, and organize by electing one of their number president, and after said convention shall have so organized they may elect such other officers as they shall deem necessary for the convenient transaction of their business, and they shall determine what shall be the duty of such officers, and shall make all necessary rules and regulations proper for the government and the transaction of any business of said convention. Such convention shall be the final judge of the election returns and qualification of its own members, and shall cause a record of all its proceedings to be kept. A majority of the whole number of delegates elected and sworn shall constitute a quorum to do business.

SEC. 6. Every delegate to said convention shall, before entering upon the discharge of his duties, take an oath that he will faithfully discharge the duties of his office to the best of his ability.

SEC. 7. When the convention shall have assembled, organized, and been duly sworn, it shall proceed to frame a form of a constitution for a State, which constitution shall be submitted to the voters of the Territory for their ratification or rejection, and said convention shall, if it see fit, frame and propose any article for separate submission to said electors, and may provide that such articles shall constitute a part or parts of said proposed constitution if approved by a majority of electors, but if any such article shall not be approved by said electors it shall not become a part of said constitution.

SEC. 8. The form of constitution framed by said convention as aforesaid, and any separate articles which may be proposed by said convention as aforesaid, shall be submitted to the voters of this Territory who are or may be qualified electors, for the purposes of this act, for their adoption or rejection, at such time and in such manner as the convention shall provide, and the convention may, in its discretion, provide for the election of all or any portion of the officers of a State government at the same time it provides for submitting the form of constitution for adoption or rejection; and all votes cast at such election for or against said constitution, and all votes cast at such election for candidates, for all or part of the officers of a State government, shall be counted and returned to the secretary of the Territory in the same manner as the votes for delegates to the convention, and he shall canvass and make known the result within sixty days after said election.

SEC. 9. It shall be the duty of the governor of the Territory to issue a proclamation calling a special election for delegates to a constitutional convention, as provided in this act, which proclamation shall be issued not less than sixty days before the fifth day of November, anno Domini one thousand eight hundred and eighty-nine, and the governor is required to declare the result of the vote cast and returned on the adoption or rejection of the constitution, by proclamation, when the same is certified to him by the secretary of the Territory.

SEC. 10. The delegates elected and qualified under the provisions of this act shall receive for their services the sum of five dollars per day while engaged in the transaction of the business of said convention, and actual traveling expenses from their respective homes to and from said convention: Provided, however, That no delegate shall receive pay for more than thirty days' services. The officers of the convention shall receive such compensation as the convention may deem just, and for incidental expenses of said convention, which amounts shall be certified to the Territorial auditor by the president of said convention, and the auditor is hereby required to draw a warrant for said amounts, certified as aforesaid, in favor of such persons, on the Territorial treasurer, and the treasurer is hereby required to pay the same out of any money not otherwise appropriated.

SEC. 11. Nothing in this act contained shall be intended or construed as altering or repealing any election or other law of this Territory, or affecting the qualifications of voters, except for the purpose of electing delegates to the convention and for the purpose of adopting or rejecting any form of constitution which may be framed.

SEC. 12. This act shall take effect and be in force from and after its approval by the governor.

Approved March 21, 1889.

Ingalls, chief clerk of the house of representatives of the fifteenth legislative assembly of the Territory of Arizona, do hereby certify that the within bill, being house bill number fifty-three, entitled "An act to provide for the further erection and maintenance of the University of Arizona," was duly passed by said house of representatives on the ninth day of March, anno Domini eighteen hundred and eighty-nine, and the same day sent to the council of said legislative assembly; that thereafter, viz, on the thirteenth day of March, anno Domini eighteen hundred and eighty-nine, said bill was returned by said council to said house with a report from said council that it had been passed by said council; that on the fourteenth day of said March said bill was enrolled and certified by the clerk of said house of representatives, and thereafter signed by the president of the council and speaker of said house, and that thereafter, to wit, on the nineteenth day of March, anno Domini eighteen hundred and eighty-nine, the said bill was duly presented to and left with the governor of said Territory of Arizona; that said governor or any governor of said Territory did not return said bill within ten days, Sundays excepted, after such presentation, and that the said legislative assembly did not adjourn sine die during said ten days above mentioned, after the said bill was so presented to and left with said governor.

JOHN Y. T. SMITH,
Speaker of the House of Representatives.
F. S. INGALLS,
Chief Clerk of the House of Representatives.

(Indorsed.)

We, Charles R. Drake, president, and J. H. Carpenter, chief clerk of the council of the fifteenth legislative assembly of the Territory of Arizona, do hereby certify that the within bill, being house bill number fifty-three, entitled "An act to provide for the further erection and maintenance of the University of Arizona," was duly received by said council from the house of representatives of said legislative assembly on the ninth day of March, anno Domini eighteen hundred and eighty-nine, and the same was duly passed by said council on the thirteenth day of March, anno Domini eighteen hundred and eighty-nine, and duly returned to said house of representatives; that thereafter, to wit, on the nineteenth day of March, anno Domini eighteen hundred and eighty-nine, said bill having been certified by the chief clerk of said house of representatives, was signed by the president of the council and the same day the said bill was duly presented to and left with the governor of the said Territory of Arizona; that said governor, or any other governor, did not return said bill within ten days, Sundays excepted, after such presentation, and that the said legislative assembly did not adjourn sine die during the said ten days above mentioned, after the said bill was so presented to and left with said governor.

CHAS. R. DRAKE,
President of the Council.
J. H. CARPENTER,
Chief Clerk of the Council.

No. 62.

AN ACT making appropriations for the current and contingent expenses of the civil government of the Territory of Arizona for the two years ending on the thirty-first day of December, anno Domini eighteen hundred and ninety, and for other purposes.

Be it enacted by the legislative assembly of the Territory of Arizona, That the following sums be, and they are hereby, appropriated for the several objects hereinafter named, and the Territorial auditor is hereby authorized and directed to draw his warrants for the said sums hereinafter mentioned and set forth, to wit:

Subdivision 1. To pay the salary of Territorial auditor two thousand dollars, one thousand dollars to be paid during each of the years eighteen hundred and eighty-nine and eighteen hundred and ninety, as provided by law.

Subdivision 2. For expenses of the supreme court, to be expended under the direction of two supreme justices of the Territory, for the years of eighteen hundred and eighty-nine and eighteen hundred and ninety, one thousand dollars.

Subdivision 3. For contingent expenses for the years eighteen hundred and eighty-nine and eighteen hundred and ninety, the sum of five thousand dollars, to be expended by the governor as rewards for the apprehension of criminals or escaped patients from Territorial insane asylum and other expenses incidental thereto, and the governor is hereby authorized and empowered to offer rewards in his discretion: Provided, That no reward offered or paid shall exceed five hundred dollars, and he may, in his discretion, pay for services rendered in arresting or pursuing criminals or escaped patients, when in his judgment the public good will be promoted thereby, in cases where no reward was previously offered by the Territory.

Subdivision 4. For paying subscriptions to the Territorial papers, to be kept on file in the Territorial library, and for binding the same each year, to be audited by the Territorial auditor upon proper vouchers, the sum of one hundred and fifty dollars, seventy-five for each of the years of eighteen hundred and eighty-nine and eighteen hundred and ninety.

Subdivision 5. The sum of two hundred and fifty dollars is hereby appropriated, to be expended under the direction of the Territorial auditor, for the printing of blanks to be used by the county assessors in taking the statistics of their counties, printing warrants, and the necessary postage.

Subdivision 6. That the sum of fourteen and seventy-five one-hundredths dollars is hereby appropriated to re-imburse W. A. Linn for conveying trunk, and incidental expenses thereof, from Prescott to Phœnix.

Subdivision 7. To pay the salary of the attorney-general, four thousand dollars, two thousand dollars to be paid during each of the years eighteen hundred and eighty-nine and eighteen hundred and ninety.

Subdivision 8. The sum of seventy dollars is hereby appropriated to pay for insurance for two years on the Territorial library, to be expended by the governor of the Territory.

MEMORIALS.

No. 1.

To the honorable members, Senate and House of Representatives of the United States, in Congress assembled:

Your memorialists, the legislative assembly of the Territory of Arizona, respectfully represent, that, inasmuch as there is from ten to fifteen millions of acres of land in this Territory that can only be made productive through the impounding of the storm floods and the diversion of the flowing streams for purposes of irrigation, and that to build and construct the works necessary for this purpose will require a vast outlay of money, the cost of water being from ten to fifteen dollars for every acre of land reclaimed, and that the building of reservoirs, digging of canals, etc., must be undertaken by men of means, and that it is desirable that Congress should undertake no legislation calculated to retard the reclamation and development of these arid lands and the postponement of the works of internal improvement necessary thereto, and as the desert land law operates as an incentive to men of capital to undertake such works of reclamation and development:

Now, therefore, your memorialists, knowing that the future growth and prosperity of Arizona is dependent to a great extent upon the reclamation and cultivation of her arid lands, to the end that they may become taxable and productive property, respectfully protest against any change or repeal of the desert land law, as restrictive and detrimental to the best interests of Arizona, calculated to postpone indefinitely the occupation of her desert lands and work incalculable injury to the material interests of the Territory, Therefore, be it

Resolved, by the legislative assembly of Arizona, That our Delegate in Congress be, and he is hereby, instructed to use all honorable means to defeat any legislation altering or repealing the present desert land law, and that the secretary of the Territory be directed to transmit by wire and by mail copies of this memorial to our Delegate in Congress, the President of the Senate, and the Speaker of the House of Representatives.

No. 2.

To the President of the United States:

Your memorialists, the legislative assembly of the Territory of Arizona, now in session assembled at Phœnix, most respectfully and earnestly represent that it is currently reported that it is the intention of the Interior Department of the Government to remove the hostile Chiricahua Apaches from Florida and locate them on the San Carlos Reservation, or on some other reservation in said Territory, and that some of said tribes have already been brought to said Territory;

That many years prior to the removal of Geronimo and his hostile tribe of Apache fiends, the people of said Territory suffered untold trials and hardships caused by a continued warfare against them by said tribe, which was universally attended by the most cruel atrocities which savages were able to conceive or invent;

That for years they invaded the Territory at pleasure, destroyed isolated settlements, slaughtered our peaceful citizens without regard to age or sex, interrupted travel, captured the mails, plundered and robbed the country of its cattle and other effects, prevented immigration, retarded our growth and development, and paralyzed business;

That for years said tribe set at defiance the powers of the General Government and that of this Territory, and were not captured until hundreds of lives had been lost, and thousands of dollars in money had been expended in resisting their inhuman onslaughts, and in finally securing their capture;

That since the removal of said tribe peace and quiet have reigned supreme in said

Territory, its great natural resources are being developed, and its citizens are now enjoying an era of prosperity never before surpassed by any Territory under the circumstances, and which would have existed long before had it not been for this tribe of fiends;

That the location of said Indians, or any of them, in the Territory of Arizona, would be a standing menace to the peace and well-being of its people, and will endanger the lives and property of its citizens, retard immigration, and destroy our prosperity;

That the location of said Indians in Arizona, with their terrible record of blood and rapine, thus endangering our numerous settlements, composed of towns, mining camps, farms, and ranches, where thousands of our people are engaged in peaceful pursuits, would be manifestly unjust and uncalled for, and would impose upon the people of said Territory the necessity of waging a war of extermination against those enemies of the human race;

Your memorialists will therefore ever pray that none of said tribe of Indians be removed to Arizona, and that if any of them have been located within the limits of said Territory that they be immediately removed therefrom:

Resolved by the legislative assembly of the Territory of Arizona, That our Delegate in Congress be, and he is hereby, requested to present this memorial to the President of the United States and the Secretary of the Interior, and take such action as will prevent, if possible, the bringing of any of said exiled band of Apaches to the Territory of Arizona.

Resolved, That the secretary of the Territory be, and he is hereby, requested to forward a copy of this memorial to our Delegate in Congress, and also one to the President of the United States.

No. 3.

To the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled:

Your memorialists, the fifteenth legislative assembly of the Territory of Arizona, beg leave to represent to your honorable bodies the following:

Whereas Captain William Harper was dismissed from the United States Army in eighteen hundred and seventy-six by the sentence of a court-martial; and

Whereas it is the opinion of many officers of the Army and civilians who are acquainted with the facts of said case, and the peculiar surroundings of that time, that the sentence was unjust; and

Whereas twelve years have passed since that event, during which long period of time Captain Harper has been engaged in business, most of the time in the Territory of Arizona, where his upright conduct and gentlemanly bearing has won for him hosts of friends who have become convinced of the injustice originally perpetrated by said sentence; and

Whereas he and his friends are anxious to vindicate his character from the odium of a trial and sentence, the undue severity of which is generally conceded; and

Whereas repeated efforts have been made to have the matter re-investigated in the interests of common justice;

Resolved, That we earnestly recommend that Congress take such action at once as will enable Captain William Harper to vindicate his character from the aspersions which his trial and sentence have necessarily cast upon it, and that he may be restored to his rank, pay, and emolument in the United States Army, without loss of honor or pecuniary sacrifice.

No. 4.

To the senate and house of representatives of the State of California in legislature assembled:

Your memorialists, the legislative assembly of the Territory of Arizona, beg leave to present to your honorable bodies the following:

Whereas it has been represented through the press that bills have been introduced and have been urged for passage in one or both of your honorable bodies, with the purpose of restricting the importation of cattle from Arizona into your State for the alleged reason that cattle from this Territory are diseased; and

Whereas frequent and constant inspection in the past and at the present time shows that there has been at no time, nor is there now, any infectious or other disease among the cattle of Arizona; and

Whereas the commercial relations existing between the State of California and the Territory of Arizona are close and intimate; and

Whereas this Territory is a heavy customer of your merchants for her supplies of provisions, clothing, agricultural and mining machinery; and believing that any legislation which would discriminate against our dealers in cattle and cut them off from your markets would destroy the amicable business relations at present existing:

Therefore your memorialists earnestly protest against such restrictive legislation as unjust and unnecessary.

Resolved, That the secretary of the Territory be, and is hereby, instructed to forward copies of this memorial, under seal of the Territory, to the honorable president of the senate and to the honorable speaker of the house of representatives of the State of California, to be by them laid before their respective bodies.

No. 5.

To the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled:

Your memorialists, the fifteenth legislative assembly of the Territory of Arizona, beg leave to respectively represent to your honorable bodies:

1. That John D. Dobbs, now residing at the city of Prescott, in the county of Yavapai, Territory of Arizona, was on the twenty-sixth day of February, anno Domini eighteen hundred and seventy-two, engaged in the employ of the United States Government in herding and delivering beef cattle at Camp Bowie, in said Territory, then and now a United States military post;

2. That on said date, while engaged in herding, and within one-half ($\frac{1}{2}$) mile of said military post, he, the said John D. Dobbs, was attacked by Apache Indians, the herd stampeded, his companion, John Williams, was instantly killed, and he, the said John D. Dobbs, was badly wounded by two rifle shots;

3. That by reason of said wounds said John D. Dobbs entirely lost the use of his arms. The bones of his left wrist, forefinger of left hand, and the elbow-joint of the right arm having all been removed by the United States army surgeon at Camp Bowie;

4. That the said John D. Dobbs has ever since been totally incapacitated from performing any manual labor, but has struggled and continued in various ways to support himself as best he could, notwithstanding such crippled condition;

5. That the said John D. Dobbs has only one relative residing in said Territory: Now, therefore, be it

Resolved by the legislative assembly of the Territory of Arizona, That our Delegate in Congress, M. A. Smith, be, and he is hereby, requested to respectfully present the foregoing statement of facts to Congress and to earnestly endeavor to procure and secure for said John D. Dobbs a special appropriation or a pension similar to pensions granted to disabled soldiers, sufficient to recompense him for the suffering entailed upon him and for his future support: And be it further Resolved, That the secretary of the Territory is hereby instructed to forward an engrossed copy of this memorial, duly attested under his hand and seal, to the honorable M. A. Smith, Delegate to Congress for Arizona Territory.

PRESCOTT, ARIZONA, January 28, 1889.

To the fifteenth legislative assembly of Arizona Territory:

This is to certify that we, the undersigned physicians and surgeons, residents of the city of Prescott, in the county of Yavapai, Territory of Arizona, are personally acquainted with John D. Dobbs, now a resident of Prescott, who in February, eighteen hundred and seventy-two, while in the employ of the United States Government at Camp Bowie, in this Territory, was shot and seriously wounded by the Apache Indians.

Our examination of Mr. Dobbs's person shows that the half of the elbow-joint and a portion of the bone above that joint, in his right arm, has been entirely removed; that the thumb and forefinger of the left hand have been amputated and a portion of the bones of the wrist removed, and that, in consequence of those wounds, he is incapacitated for any kind of manual labor.

We are informed that through a memorial to the fifteenth legislative assembly of this Territory, now in session, Mr. Dobbs is a petitioner to the Congress of the United States for relief, by a pension or otherwise, and we cheerfully add our testimony to the fact that Mr. Dobbs is a person deserving of the relief asked for in said memorial.

To whom the foregoing statement may concern.

Very respectfully,

J. N. MCCANDLESS, M. D.
GEO. W. VICKERS, M. D.

Subscribed and sworn to before me this second day of February, eighteen hundred and eighty-nine.

[SEAL.]

WM. WILKERSON,
Clerk District Court, Third District Arizona.

No. 6.

To the honorable members, Senate and House of Representatives of the United States, in Congress assembled:

Your memorialist, the legislative assembly of the Territory of Arizona, respectfully represents:

That the population of Arizona Territory is now nearly or quite one hundred thousand, and is rapidly increasing;

That the population of said Territory is mostly native-born citizens of the United States, and consists largely of farmers, stock-raisers, and miners,

That the inhabitants of said Territory are generally intelligent and enterprising, and the public-school system of said Territory is a subject of pride to all her citizens and an honor to the country at large;

That the taxable property of said Territory amounts to fully seventy-five million dollars cash value, and is increasing at the rate of not less than twenty-five per centum per annum;

That said Territory is crossed by two transcontinental railroad lines and other railroads, aggegating one thousand one hundred miles, constructed and in operation in said Territory, and many other roads are being planned for construction for the purpose of transportation to and from her immense mining regions and her twenty thousand square miles of lumber forests;

That there is contained in said Territory more than twenty million acres of tillable land, with and without irrigation, besides more than thirty million acres of grazing land;

That said Territory is not behind other sections in irrigating enterprises, there being more than two hundred miles of new canals now in process of construction in addition to the hundreds of miles already constructed and in operation;

That said Territory is not outranked by any other for the intelligence and enterprise of its citiz ns, the perfection of its educational system, and in its annual production of cattle, horses, and stock of every description, minerals, lumber, fruit, grain and the like.

That the advantages found in said Territory, both in the productiveness of its soil, the extent of its mineral wealth, its immense forests of timber, coupled with a climate unequaled in any part of the globe, is attracting the attention of the people in every section of our common country, and a tide of immigration heretofore unprecedented is about to pour into said Territory;

That the people of said Territory are heartily in sick and tired of her existence as a Territory, and recognize the fact that there is an urgent necessity for her early admission into the Union as a State, in order that she may better govern herself and better provide for the general weal of the commonwealth: Therefore, be it

Resolved, By the legislative assembly of the Territory of Arizona, that our Delegate in Congress be, and he is hereby, instructed to use all honorable means to bring this subject to the early and favorable consideration of Congress, that an act may be immediately passed enabling said Territory to call a constitutional convention for the purpose of framing a constitution to be submitted to the people for their adoption: And be it further

Resolved, By the council, the house of representatives and governor of the Territory of Arizona concurring, that the secretary of the Territory be, and he is hereby, directed to transmit a copy of the foregoing memorial to our Delegate in Congress, and also a copy to the President of the Senate and Speaker of the House of Representatives.

Approved March 13, 1889.

No. 7.

To the honorable Secretary of War:

Your memorialists, the fifteenth legislative assembly of the Territory of Arizona, respectfully ask as follows:

For better military protection on the San Carlos Reservation.

Whereas Chilchu-a-na, a renegade Tonto Apache, did escape from the Government authorities at Fort Grant in December last, and has since that time, together with fifty Indians entrenched on a rocky eminence, commanding the principal traveled road over the San Carlos Indian Reservation, defied all efforts to remove or capture them, causing by their defiant position a demoralizing effect upon all other Indians and a feeling of great insecurity for the lives and property of our settlers;

Whereas Gosper T. Freeman, a peaceable teamster, was recently killed in daylight by Apaches for the sole purpose of robbery: And be it Resolved, By the legislative assembly of the Territory of Arizona, that the honorable Secretary of War is respectfully memorialized through our Delegate in Congress, Hon.

Mark A. Smith, to immediately establish a military post near Gilson's Wells on reservations, where a preliminary survey was made for this purpose some months ago, the site being in the vicinity of all trouble referred to in this memorial, and wou'd command authority through a great country that has remained undeveloped solely by the many deeds of lawlessness that have been committed by these Indians: And be it further

Resolved, That a copy of this memorial be sent to the Secretary of War and our Delegate in Congress by the secretary of the Territory of Arizona.

No. 8.

To the honorable the Senate and House of Representatives in Congress assembled:

The legislature of the Territory of Arizona respectfully represent that,

Whereas the Colorado River is a portion of the boundary line between the United States and Mexico, and its navigation in case of what would be of paramount importance in the protection of our Territory and our people; and

Whereas it is now navigable to the junction of the Virgin and Colorado at Rioville during the highest stages of water; and

Whereas at proportionately small outlay asked by your petitioners, said Colorado River could be made, by the removal of obstructions, navigable during all seasons of the year for light tonnage craft of all kinds to a point thirty miles above Rioville, which can be verified by any practical and unprejudiced engineer; and

Whereas there are on both sides of said river mines of gold, copper, and other valuable metals, and in the interior large tracts of agricultural and grazing land along the course of said stream between the points above named, which are now sparsely settled and unproductive owing to the cost and difficulties of transportation, and which would become valuable land if said stream were made navigable; and

Whereas the principal obstructions to the navigation of said stream lie between a point thirty miles above Rioville and Fort Yuma, and consist principally of rocks and rifts and sand-bars, which could be easily removed without any great expense as measured by the benefit to be derived: Therefore, be it

Resolved, That our Delegate to Congress be requested to use every honorable effort to secure from the General Government an appropriation of one hundred and twenty-five thousand dollars to be used in improving the navigation of the Colorado River between Fort Yuma and a point thirty miles above Rioville, the junction of the Virgin and Colorado Rivers, under the proper management of competent engineers, for the purpose of making said stream permanently navigable between the points above named.

Resolved, That his excellency, the governor of the Territory of Arizona, be requested to forward a copy of this resolution to the honorable the Secretary of the Interior and our Delegate in Congress, asking their hearty support and earnest co-operation in obtaining said appropriation.

No. 9.

To the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled:

Your memorialists, the fifteenth legislative assembly of the Territory of Arizona, beg leave to respectfully represent to your honorable bodies:

That the Territory of Arizona has no building or buildings for the use of the Territorial legislature nor for offices for the governor or other officers of the Territory; and that the United States Government has no building for the use of the supreme court or other officers of the United States in the Territory;

That the capital of said Territory has now been permanently located at the city of Phœnix;

That the United States has not heretofore made any appropriation for the erection of any building within this Territory, except such temporary structures as are occupied for military purposes;

That the city of Phœnix, where the capital is now located, is growing so rapidly that the post-office at that point will very soon attain the magnitude of a first-class post-office:

In view of these facts your memorialists most respectfully and urgently pray that Congress do make an appropriation of two hundred thousand dollars out of the Treasury of the United States for the erection of said necessary buildings.

No. 10.

To the honorable the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled:

Your memorialists, the fifteenth legislative assembly of the Territory of Arizona, beg leave to represent to your honorable bodies that,

Whereas in the valley of the Gila River, in Pinal County, Arizona Territory, there are large tracts of public land which are desert in character, but which, by means of irrigation, can be reclaimed and made highly productive; and

Whereas the capital requisite for the reclamation of said land and the improvement of the necessary water supply is greater than our people can raise; and

Whereas there is in the Gila River a point called the "Buttes," twelve miles above the town of Florence, in said county of Pinal, a site admirably adapted by nature for the construction of a storage reservoir of sufficient capacity to reclaim and render fertile an area of land greater than the States of Massachusetts, Vermont, New Hampshire, and Connecticut combined:

Wherefore we most earnestly and respectfully ask that an appropriation be made for the construction of a dam across said Gila River at such point for the purpose of storing water to reclaim and irrigate said public lands.

Resolved, That our Delegate in Congress be, and he is hereby, instructed to use all honorable means to bring this subject to the early and favorable consideration of Congress.

Resolved further, That the secretary of the Territory be, and he is hereby, requested to forward copies of this memorial to the President of the Senate of the United States, the Speaker of the House of Representatives, and our Delegate in Congress.

No. 11.

To the honorable the Senate and the House of Representatives of the United States in Congress assembled:

Your memorialists, the fifteenth legislative assembly of the Territory of Arizona, beg leave to represent to your honorable bodies:

Whereas the Territory of Arizona is located inland and without sufficient river communication to the ocean; the Territory would be greatly benefited in commercial relations and internal importance by a port situated at tide water;

Whereas the proper development of the mining, agricultural, and stock-growing interests of the Southwest are largely dependent upon such facilities: Therefore, be it

Resolved, That the President and Congress of United States are respectfully memorialized to enter into a negotiation with the Republic of Mexico for the cession of sufficient territory joining Arizona on the southern boundary to secure a deep-water port upon the Gulf of California.

Resolved, That the secretary of the Territory of Arizona be, and he is hereby, requested to transmit a copy of the foregoing memorial to the President of the United States, the President of the Senate, the Speaker of the House of Representatives, and to our Delegate in Congress.

No. 12.

To Benjamin Harrison, President-elect of the United States:

Your memorialist, the fifteenth legislative assembly of the Territory of Arizona, respectfully represent:

That we have living within our Territory bona fide residents and citizens thereof, worthy and well qualified as to ability, character, and acquirements, to hold any office, whether political or judicial, within the Territory; and whose appointment thereto would be a guaranty that the duties of such offices would be faithfully, honestly, and intelligently discharged.

We further represent that men could be selected from our own people whose acquaintance with our wants, and with the affairs and needs of our Territory, is greater than could be acquired by strangers until they had spent months of experiment in office.

That among the practicing lawyers in Arizona are men of ripe years and good character who have sufficient legal acquirements, learning, tact, and ability to fill with honor and dignity any judicial position in the Territory.

We therefore beg of you, the President-elect of the United States, that the expression of the Republican national platform of 1888, as to "all officers, pending preparation for statehood, should be selected from the bona fide residents and citizens of the Territory wherein they have to serve," be given a practical application and effect, and that all nominations which may be made to offices within our Territory of Arizona, whether the same be executive, ministerial, political, or judicial in their character and classification, be made from such of said residents and citizens as are voters and electors in Arizona and have homes amongst us, and are a bona fide integral part of our population, and that no nominations be made from such as are political adventurers, nor from such as have sought Arizona only as a political or official field, and who have not yet voted at our elections.

No. 13.

To the Honorable the Secretary of the Interior:

Your memorialist, the fifteenth legislative assembly of the Territory of Arizona, would respectfully represent that:

Whereas your honorable predecessor has decided that any land whereon a crop of hay can be cut is to be exempt from the provisions of the desert-land act; and

Whereas under this ruling numerous bona fide entries under said desert-land act have been suspended by the General Land Office; and

Whereas by such aforesaid ruling of the General Land Office great hardship has been caused to bona fide settlers and the development of this Territory thereby been retarded:

Therefore, we respectfully request that your honor take action and modify the ruling of your honorable predecessor so as to exclude the grass known as "Sacaton" from the provisions thereof, and that the secretary of the Territory be requested to forward a copy of this memorial to the honorable Secretary of the Interior.

No. 14.

To the Commanding General of the United States Army:

We, your memorialists, the fifteenth legislative assembly, Territory of Arizona, respectfully represent that:

Whereas it is the first and highest duty of a nation to protect her people from foreign as well as domestic violence and wrong; and

Whereas during the recent Indian raids, in nearly every instance, the principal sufferers were the inhabitants along the line of the two republics; and

Whereas the evil-doers of both republics do congregate along the line and take advantage of the border to escape justice from the laws of the contiguous friendly republics; and

Whereas the military arm of all Governments is a power on neighboring Governments for good, as well as for the protection and the preservation of order at home: Therefore, be it

Resolved, That Nogales, Arizona Territory, is one of the principal ports on the line of the Republic of Mexico, and is without any natural or military protection, and we urge upon the commanding general of the Army of the United States of America to establish the necessary barracks and place therein such force as in his estimation he deems necessary for the safety and protection of the people.

Resolved, That the secretary of the Territory is hereby requested to forward to the proper person a copy of this memorial.

No. 15.

To his Excellency the President of the United States:

Your memorialist, the fifteenth legislative assembly of the Territory of Arizona, would respectfully represent that,

Whereas the sum of fifteen thousand dollars having been set aside for the benefit of the Territories of the United States to be expended and distributed under the supervision of the Department of Agriculture for the development of the agricultural interests of the several Territories; and

Whereas there being the sum of fifteen thousand dollars set aside for each of the years 1889 and 1890, in all thirty thousand dollars:

Your memorialist therefore respectfully asks that said sum be expended for the benefit of the Territory of Arizona.

And the governor of the Territory of Arizona is respectfully requested to forward a copy of this memorial to the President of the United States.

WOMEN'S SILK CULTURE ASSOCIATION.

LETTER

FROM

THE SECRETARY OF AGRICULTURE,

TRANSMITTING

Reports upon the operations of the Women's Silk Culture Association of the United States and of the Ladies' Silk Culture Society of California, and upon experiments made in the District of Columbia with silk-reeling machinery.

JANUARY 16, 1890.—Referred to the Committee on Agriculture and ordered to be printed.

DEPARTMENT OF AGRICULTURE,
OFFICE OF THE SECRETARY,
Washington, D. C., January 14, 1890.

SIR: The act of Congress approved July 18, 1888, requires, among other duties, that the Secretary of Agriculture shall transmit to Congress reports of the expenditures and the results obtained by the Women's Silk Culture Association of the United States, and by the Ladies' Silk Culture Society of California, in their experiments for the encouragement and development of the culture of raw silk. It also requires the Secretary to transmit a report of experiments made in the District of Columbia with automatic silk-reeling machinery, and also of all sales of silk and silk waste, and purchases of cocoons, with the names and residences of all producers of cocoons of whom purchases are made. In accordance with these requirements, I have the honor to transmit herewith copies of said reports for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1889.

The act of Congress approved March 2, 1889, requires that Joseph Neumann shall report to Congress through the Secretary of Agriculture, on or about the 1st day of January, 1890, the results of his experiments with the wild native silk-worm of California. I have the honor to transmit herewith the report of the said Joseph Neumann.

Very respectfully, your obedient servant,

J. M. RUSK,
Secretary.

Hon. THOS. B. REED,
Speaker House of Representatives.

REPORT OF EXPERIMENTS MADE IN THE DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA.

UNITED STATES DEPARTMENT OF AGRICULTURE, SILK SECTION,
Washington, D. C., January 6, 1890.

SIR: I have the honor to hand you herewith my report upon the experiments with automatic silk-reeling machinery which have been conducted in this Department, which should be forwarded to Congress in accordance with the provision of the act approved July 18, 1888, "making appropriation for the Department of Agriculture, and for other purposes."

The general object of the experiments which we have been making under the authority of that act has been to improve and make practicable for work in the United States the Serrell automatic silk-reel. This is the only automatic silk-reel which exists, and there was therefore no option on the part of the Department whether it or another should be adopted as a basis of experiments. At the beginning of the last fiscal year the experimental silk filature was at a standstill because the machine of which we had secured drawings from Europe had not succeeded as well as we had hoped, and experiments were then in train with a view to making it work. There are two main parts of the automatic silk-reel. The control movement measures the thread and, when the latter becomes too small, sets in operation an electric current by which the feed movement is put in motion and a cocoon added to the thread. The first object of my experiments was to produce a feed movement which should be absolutely automatic and do away with the great amount of labor which was entailed by filling by hand the magazine used in the original automatic reel. This object has been attained, and a feed movement which works successfully has been constructed and six of them are now ready to be put in operation. The control movement made during the previous fiscal year, while it works to a certain degree of satisfaction, was not all that could be desired, and a new one has therefore been designed which does much better. Two machines are now in operation with these new movements and they are doing satisfactory work. It is not improbable that there may yet be found some details which will need correcting, but as far as can be seen the main difficulties have been overcome.

It is important that it should be understood that the improvements which have been mentioned do not in any way involve any change of principle of invention. On the contrary, they are improvements of mechanical details, the principle of the original automatic machine having been adhered to, as it is felt that that principle is the only good one and the one upon which the automatic silk-reel of the future will be based. That a thoroughly automatic silk-reel is a possibility is a matter of which there can be no question. That it is a necessity for the United States is equally indisputable. It is important that the reels as now constructed should be given a thorough trial and that improvements of details should be continued until a machine is constructed which will be not only as nearly perfect as possible in the performance of its functions, but also as simple in its mechanical details and as difficult of derangement as it can be made. Under existing instructions I shall deem it my duty to follow out a line of experiments tending towards this end.

I transmit herewith a list of the names and addresses of all persons from whom we have purchased cocoons during the fiscal year ending June 30, 1889, and the amount purchased from each, together with a statement of the sales of raw silk and waste which have been made in accordance with law.

Yours respectfully,

PHILIP WALKER,
Chief of the Silk Section.

HON. J. M. RUSK,
Secretary of Agriculture.

Report of purchases of cocoons and sales of silk during the fiscal year 1888–'89.

REPORT OF THE WOMEN'S SILK CULTURE ASSOCIATION TO THE AGRICULTURAL DEPARTMENT, AT WASHINGTON, D. C., FOR THE FISCAL YEAR ENDING JUNE 30, 1889.

As continued almoners of the public money, which to the amount of $5,000 we receive annually from the Government of the United States, this association begs to report a careful and economic distribution of the same in the various channels of the silk industry, notably in the distribution of mulberry trees, the advisability of which plan was forced upon us by the fact that, in the first years of our work, hundreds of families rushed into the new industry, with such opportunities as a few odd mulberry trees here and there on the farm or the forest offered, to suddenly find that they could not increase their experiments owing to the lack of natural food for the silk-worm, and thus dropped out of the persistent and continued effort needed to successfully establish a new industry. This condition, forced on our notice by many facts, impressed us with the necessity of liberal and immediate planting of trees, and the following circulars were issued:

[Office of Women's Silk Culture Association of United States, 1224 and 1226 Arch street, Philadelphia.]

In accordance with the plans of the Women's Silk Culture Association, as suggested to the Congress of the United States, by whose dignified bodies the bill to appropriate $5,000 to the association to promote the industry of silk culture in the United States has passed into a law, the association desire to offer to the State agricultural schools, institutions, and reformatories, or to individuals who may have a purpose or desire to establish the culture of silk, a gratuity in mulberry trees, in lots not less than twenty-five nor more than one hundred. In every instance a guaranty must be given, signed by two vouchers, that the recipient who may accept these trees shall give them the proper attention required for their full fruition. It is desirable, in these days when the question of forestry has become such a momentous one, that we shall not only preserve the trees but increase them; and to this end the new movement of the association will be taking a step in the right direction.

The mulberry trees of many varieties, notably the Morus alba and Morus japonica, are clean, healthy trees, of large leaf, rapid growth, great age, and, most important, the product of leaves is of great commercial value. Further, from a small number of trees any quantity of cuttings can be taken during growth for a new nursery. It is hoped these claims to the planting of mulberry trees, which are without parallel, will encourage the planting of them without delay. A grove of such trees means wealth for the future.

The association, therefore, ask for orders for mulberry trees, the order stating the number, locality of planting, and the date at which they are required, as only two seasons are open for planting, autumn and spring. Prompt suggestions and orders are invited.

MRS. J. LUCAS,
President.
MRS. V. C. HAVEN,
Corresponding Secretary.

To applicants for trees to feed silk-worms :

In both of the appropriations made to the "Women's Silk Culture Association of the United States," 1886–'87, by Congress a stipulated sum was directed to be spent in senidng, to those who desired to plant, the proper trees for the food of the silk-worm free of charge. This we did last autumn and the present spring, and will continue to do the coming fall. The same clause is in the appropriation made to the California "Women's Silk Association" at San Francisco. We ask that orders for trees be sent not later than August for autumn planting and in the winter months for spring planting. This enables us to arrange orders so as to give time to the nurseryman to select his trees and ship at the proper time of planting. The first thing to be done towards the production of silk is a provision of food for the thrifty insect, which will take good care to perform its part if we are careful to perform ours, and its only proper and legitimate food is the leaf of the mulberry tree. This tree has been endowed with many properties, happily combining utility and pleasure independent of its primary purpose of production of an agreeable article of clothing; it leaves the surface much less impoverished than many other trees, its roots striking into the earth not obliquely but run deeply and perpendicularly. The ground between the rows of trees when planted in orchard form may be occupied with other products; neither the shade of the tree nor the dropping of rain from its leaves injures the plants growing beneath. It is also a matter of universal observation that no insect except the silk-worm feeds upon it. The experiment was tried by Monsieur Tullein, and it was satisfactorily proved that the product of this tree is the exclusive property of the silk-worm, the insect that apparently works only for man. The Morus alba, or "white mulberry," of which there are many varieties, has been generally adopted in America. The variety called Multicaulus is, in France and Italy, considered the best, but it has been found in this country too tender, even in the Southern States, to be always safe from our possible late frosts. It is natural to China.

The Morus alba has sound wood, beautiful leaves, and sweet fruit, and is mostly useful when its importance in silk culture is taken into consideration. The silk which it produces is of the finest quality. The fruit is white, roundish, oblong, and insipid. It is a tree of rapid growth. The bark, it is said, can be converted into a linen of the fineness of silk. One of its advantages is that its leaves come out earlier than any other, the silk-worms can be hatched earlier, and are thus saved from very hot weather.

Nurseries or plantations should have a sunny exposure, protected against strong winds. Any land suitable for raising corn is suitable to the mulberry. As fast as the fruit ripens it should be gathered. When a portion of the fruit is ripe, spread cloths under the trees and shake them gently every morning during the ripening season. One ounce of seed will give about 5,000 young trees.

Trees left to themselves are liable to assume forms as unsuitable to the taste of the horticulturist as inconvenient to those who gather the leaves. June is the best season for preserving, when the young twigs that are taken off may be given to the worms. Trees can be raised by suckers, separated from the tree early in the spring with some roots attached to them, treated as cuttings. In fact, the ways of increasing the quantity of food for the worm from a few good trees are various and too numerous to mention in small limits, but to any skillful farmer or tree raiser will suggest themselves.

When Providence does anything for man, it is his duty to co-operate.

The food plant of the silk-worm is the mulberry, of which two species are the best for this country—the white mulberry (Morus alba) and the Japan (Morus japonica.) The Morus multicaulis is not always hardy in this climate.

The mulberry grows readily and is easily propagated by cuttings, the easiest and surest method of planting to secure a stock. The cuttings should be planted in rows 4 to 6 inches apart, in light, rich soil, prepared by deep plowing and well pulverized. They should be about 6 inches long, and each to have not less than two eyes; three are more certain of growth. They should be almost entirely buried, leaving one bud above ground; the rows should be about three feet apart, which will give sufficient room to pass between them.

The quickest way to get a supply of leaves is to grow dwarfs. Set out the young trees from the nursery in rows 12 to 15 feet apart, and let the rows be 6 to 8 feet apart. Cut the tree down to about 15 to 18 inches from the ground. The height of the tree is easily regulated. The process of pruning not only promotes a strong and vigorous growth, but keeps the foliage within reach of easy picking for feeding purposes

The best time for planting cuttings or trees is in either March or April. The cuttings should not be transplanted before the second year.

The planting of mulberry trees in the hedge form will be found very advantageous; the same quantity of land will thus produce more leaves than from the standard trees, and the labor of gathering full one-half less. In the country and villages, where every family has plenty of ground by their dwellings, trees may be planted by the fences, so as to let the children pick the leaves to feed the worms. This is what may be termed cottage culture, and every family of four or five children, in six weeks, can earn more than all the clothes they wear would cost.

As the best and first thing to be done by a silk-grower is to cultivate the kinds of mulberry trees or plants which will give the largest yield of silk, we know that the Morus alba, or white mulberry, and the Morus japonica, or Japanese mulberry, are certain to produce the best silk, and experiment will only increase expenses and render the value of your crop uncertain.

The Morus japonica has the largest leaves, and is so easily picked that the French breeders prefer it to any other as a cheap silk producer. Its standing well the winters of the North is proved by five years' growth in Kansas. It grows easily by cuttings, and many stems grow 6 feet high the first year.

We are all aware that climate is a matter of first importance in the growth of the mulberry tree. The great metropolis of China, Peking, 39° 54′ latitude, about three miles south of Philadelphia, may be quoted as her northern extremity of the silk-growing country, which extends as far south as the twentieth parallel of north latitude. It is in her central province, between the twenty-fifth and thirty-fifth degrees of latitude, that the greater part of her silk is produced. The eastern shore of North America is, in this respect, so similarly situated to the same shore of the Asiatic continent that the mean annual temperature of any given degree of latitude on our Atlantic shores will be found very nearly to correspond with the same degree of latitude in China, near the Pacific. China, also, in point of extent of surface and territory very much resembling those of the United States, it is evident that we of all nations under the sun have the best chance to equal that eminent nation as to the "golden fleece." Nature has done all she can for us; will a sound policy effect the rest? This question was asked in regard to the special industry of silk raising in 1623, and is not yet answered. In 1783 the legislature of Connecticut granted a bounty on mulberry trees and raw silk. In 1810 the sewing and raw silk of New London, Windham, and Tolland were valued by the United States marshal at $28,503, exclusive of the amount of "domestic fabrics." In 1837 it was announced that the "mulberry will grow and the silk-worm thrive throughout the whole length and breadth of the United States."

A few acres of land of ordinary fertility and a few dollars in money for the purchase of seeds and plants will enable a silk-grower to buy the foundation of a plantation on a considerable scale, and the first thing to be done towards the production of silk is a provision of food for the worm, that will take due care to perform its part if only we are careful to perform ours.

The quality of the silk does not entirely depend upon the food; general care throughout the entire progress, from the egg to the cocoon, is very essential to secure good cocoons. The general experience teaches that the best condition of the leaves for feeding is when they are free from dew or rain. The stripping of the leaves should not be begun until the dew has been absorbed by the heat of the sun, and ought to be finished before sunset. Wet leaves produce diarrhea, and it is important to have a supply of dry leaves. To avoid accident, and to secure a supply for rainy days, a stock should be kept on hand; they will keep for a couple of days in a cool, dry cellar; a brick or stone floor is best, or on a clean linen sheet in a cool, dark room. Do not let them be too much heaped together, and do not allow a change of temperature in the "leaf store," tending to promote fermentation if gathered in hot weather or left too long in a state of compression in bags and baskets. Dusty leaves must be wiped with a soft linen cloth. Accurate thermometers are very needful in silk culture, and every room in which the work is carried on should have several.

It should be impressed upon children, and all who are employed to pick leaves, to pass the hands up from the lower part to the top to strip off the leaves upward, not downward, as the latter may injure the buds. The picking of leaves requires great caution to prevent injury to the trees; nature never intended that they should be violently stripped of their foliage. All climbing of young trees should be avoided. Pruning-shears are very needful for tall trees. A pair can be attached by one of the handles to a pole any height most convenient, say ten feet, which, whilst it is held in one hand, is worked by means of a cord passing through a pulley, and attached to the other handle by the other hand. In the cities we see the tree trimmers using them in the streets every spring. My own preference would be for dwarf trees or hedges, if I were undertaking silk culture as a business, because the silk-worms, when preparing to spin, eat an immense quantity of food, and the easier the gathering of leaves is made, the better for all concerned in the feeding process.

As a rule, keep back the first hatching until the first leaves are developed sufficiently for food, but it is not always possible to do this in the variable climate of our Northern springs. Last spring the association received from Georgia specimens of cocoons, before the first leaf had appeared in the park, which shows that south of forty degrees should be the headquarters of silk culture, where the climate renders the work easier and certain of success.

To be provided with a resource against a backward spring, those who have space will find that a small hedge—the width of a garden border will answer—planted in a southern exposure, sheltered by a building. Early in the spring, cover the hedge with straw or matting to protect it from the frost at night. A small space is sufficient, as in their "first age" the worms require very little food. I have heard that by careful gathering of the leaves in the early autumn, before they begin to fall, they can be dried and preserved, so that by carefully soaking them in pure cold water, and drying with a linen cloth, they can be fed to the early hatch quite acceptably.

Under the heading "Mulberry Leaves and Statistics," in the last edition (1839) of the best book on the "Mulberry Tree and Silk-worm," by Mr. J. Clarke, I find that in silk culture abroad there is a "division of labor." The "renting of trees and selling of leaves" is a business for a farmer or owner of land; it is one branch of the work, that of "producing silk" is another, and the connecting link is a "leaf market."

A leaf market in a city renders it quite possible for otherwise unemployed women and children whose houses have more rooms than are occupied to raise silk. If the children only are employed, it would be a great benefit; but there are women, old and young, incapable of heavy work, in all our populous cities, whose success in silk-raising would not only support themselves, but enrich the nation.

If productive labor is a source of wealth, both to nations and individuals, it is desirable that it should be increased to its greatest possible extent. This can only be done by seeking out objects to which the labor of the young, old, and infirm is adapted, and among these is none more appropriate than the culture of silk. The same remarks are substantially true with respect to its manufacture.

Leaf markets are established facts, not only on the continent of Europe, but in Asia. I quote from an eye-witness: "On all the roads and avenues to Broosa we saw mules, camels, asses, with all manner of conveyance, freighted with mulberry leaves for the leaf market. In the city itself we saw many families, on the approach of the silk-raising season, on the move to clear and make ready, for the labors of the silk-worm, every spare apartment in the house. Two-thirds of every house is a cocoonery." In the town there is the leaf market every day, and in the houses are the worms feeding—a combination of town and country through the leaf market.

Suppose this example be followed in America, and enable all to profit who will.

Let the farmers enrich their hedges and fields with the wealth-giving tree, send its leaves by wagon, boat, or railroad, and enable every citizen, who is tied by his business to the city, to utilize every idle hand in his family and empty room of his house, by providing the silk-worms and the food for them, and mark out a way to industry, morality, and health by raising silk.

At the close of the thirteenth century, the celebrated traveler Marco Polo, in his narrative of travels in the Celestial Empire, says: "No fewer than one thousand carriages and pack horses, loaded with raw silk, make their daily entry into Cambula, where silk of various textures are manufactured to an immense extent.

Two essentials to success, at the present time, are quantity and quality of cocoons Quantity of cocoons will open filatures in many directions, and make the supply of raw silk equal to the demand of the manufacturers; and quality will secure the sale of all the raw silk produced at fair prices.

A cocoonery for 1 ounce of eggs, 40,000, will cost about $57—and 1 ounce is amply sufficient to begin with. Any room that can be well ventilated and kept at a regular and moderate temperature will make a cocoonery.

Twenty frames or hurdles, with twine, tacks, and time, will cost about	$13.00
Racks for the frames	5.00
Ounce eggs (40,000)	5.00
One boy for four weeks	10.00
Man for two weeks	20.00
	$53.00

For the first week any woman or child in the house can easily pick the leaves and feed the worms.

With patience and perseverance the mulberry leaf becomes silk.

MRS. V. CAREY HAVEN, Corresponding Secretary.

These circulars were issued in the summer of 1887, and in the space of two years we have distributed in nearly every one of the States of the Union large numbers of trees, aggregating 27,624 trees, and have many orders for trees standing for the autumn of 1889.

This association feels it to be a matter of deep regret that this effort was not put forth in the first years of their work; but until the Government aid came to their assistance, this was not practicable, owing to a lack of funds and the necessity for seeking, from private sources, support for the association. Already we observe the increased interest thus awakened.

The class of people calculated for this industry, and among whom only it can take deep root, the agriculturists looking for new sources of income, live largely remote from the opportunities of knowing where and how to increase their possibilities of the new industry, and hail our offer of trees with great satisfaction.

We have experienced some difficulty in procuring good trees, in a proper state of cultivation for transplanting, but all these difficulties will yield to demand, and thus a new and healthy stimulus be given to this branch of silk culture.

We are gratified with the quality and quantity of cocooons coming into the Philadelphia filature at this early date of 1889, as a slow and gradual improvement.

Many other stations for the purchase of cocoons have been opened, notably at the sericulture department at Washington, Kansas, and California, and we have much correspondence with these stations in reference to reeling their product, evidently with a view of having it done at less cost than they seem able to do it.

In many places there are calls for the establishment of new auxiliary associations, and one has been formed at Boston to represent the State of Massachusetts. It would be well for the more rapid advancement of the industry if every State had its Women's Silk Culture Association. We are pleased to call your attention to the successful reeling of silk, on simple American reels, at the Philadelphia filature. We have this year carried out a successful education of silk-raising under the care of our American reelers, with a view of teaching them ali the branches, that they may in turn teach others. Our best reelers, with fairly good cocoons, can turn out one pound of raw silk daily, and with six girls and six reels we run 24 skeins of raw silk at one time.

California, Kansas, Illinois, Delaware, Massachusetts, and many other States are in special correspondence with us in reference to reeling and the establishment of auxiliary associations, thus showing continued interest in the development of silk culture throughout the States.

In the South of Ireland, too, an association of ladies interested in silk culture has been formed, largely through the influence of this association, under the patronage of the Earl of Bandon. Dora de Blaquiere, one of their associates, states in her circular "that through the kindness of the Women's Silk Culture Association of the United States, at Philadelphia, I have been supplied with information up to date of all their proceedings, anxieties, and successes from 1880 to 1888." This association bids fair, under liberal patronage, to succeed in its effort.

The Serrell reels, which are in place at the silk department at Washington, are marvels of automatic machinery, and may, in their fully perfected condition, work a revolution in the filatures of the world, especially as the industry increases in our own country, where, through the genius of the people and the freedom of our institutions, every industry reaches the highest stage of progress and perfection, and this Association, as the pioneers in the newly awakened interest in silk culture, regard with pleasure and satisfaction the liberal methods of the Government in thus developing all the best and newest appliances, to place silk culture prominently before this nation as one of its future industries.

A country with a rapidly increasing population and advanced status in arts and manufactures; a people second to none in refined and elegant tastes and with its coffers, both public and private, full to overflowing, can not afford to eliminate from its varied avenues of wealth and production the marvelous beauty and elegance of the products of the silk industry; and no higher channel can be found for the judicious expenditure of a portion of the nation's wealth than the fostering care of such industries as give scope and opportunity to the skill and labor of its people, thereby animating the man to the production of new matter for the use of others, and illustrating the life of the silk-worm in the axiom of the silk industry, in which is embodied the highest principles of life:

Not for ourselves work we.

Respectfully submitted. Mrs. JOHN LUCAS.
JULY, 1889.

Treasurer's report of the Women's Silk Culture Association, of the United States, to the Agricultural Department at Washington, D. C., for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1889.

[Under authority of the act "Making an appropriation for the Department of Agriculture and other purposes." October 6, 1888, received from United States Treasurer, Draft No. 16610, Treasury Warrant, No. 652, October 4, 1888, $5,000.]

Hon. JEREMIAH RUSK, Secretary of Agriculture:

DEAR SIR: In accordance with request for detailed information concerning the "expenditures and results obtained under this appropriation," we beg to make the following statement for this fiscal year:

The filature was in operation during the fiscal year 459 days; 4 reels in operation two months; 2 reels in operation seven months. There were about 536 pounds of cocoons used, yielding 104 pounds 1 ounce of silk.

Received for sale of pierced and waste cocoons	$334.18
Received for sale of dress and flag silk	791.99

Cost of labor employed in reeling, sorting, etc.:

Salary of superintendent	$480.00
For reelers and sorters	390.81
Engineer	55.00

Reelers and sorters, average pay 90 cents per day.

To this summary we beg leave to add the following allied and necessary expenses:

Purchase of cocoons	$1,536.96
Rent, including steam-power employed	750.00
Repairs and incidentals to silk and reel room	64.71
Purchase of trees and freight	1,550.32
Printing postals, circulars, advertising for cocoons	232.90
Postage	59.50
Experimental school at Fairmount Park	133.97
State exhibits, auxiliaries, etc	124.25
Silk-worm eggs, Milan	13.80
Committee to Washington, D. C	27.55
Weaving dress and flag silk	1,351.08

We have paid $1,536.96 for the purchase of 2,040 pounds and 1¼ ounces of reelable, pierced, and waste cocoons from over 123 persons of the following States: Alabama, Arkansas, Connecticut, Delaware, Florida, Georgia, Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, Kansas, Kentucky, Maryland, Massachusetts, Michigan, Missouri, Nebraska, New Jersey, New York, North Carolina, Ohio, Pennsylvania, South Carolina Virginia, Utah.

We have distributed 17,801 mulberry trees to 28 States, as follows:

Alabama	25	Missouri	2100
Arizona	200	Montana	50
Delaware	350	Nebraska	11,200
Florida	1,115	New Jersey	500
Georgia	50	New York	125
Illinois	100	Ohio	175
Indiana	100	Oregon	100
Iowa	25	Pennsylvania	88
Kansas	5	South Carolina	5
Maine	25	Tennessee	50
Maryland	775	Texas	100
Massachusetts	85	Virginia	113
Michigan	125	Washington	75
Minnesota	50	Wisconsin	50

Instructions are given to any one choosing to take advantage of the opportunity. During the year we have had many visitors to the rooms, making inquiries in regard to silk culture and reeling.

We freely distribute circulars in regard to tree culture, and give full information on producing good cocoons.

The experimental school at the Park was entirely in the charge of young American women, their first effort in silk culture, and was very satisfactory. There were many visitors to the school, who expressed much interest in the industry, several persons taking object-lessons.

Managers of some reformatory schools are taking an interest in the work, hoping to make it an industry for the children. Trees have been planted, and next year those in charge expect to experiment in silk culture.

RECAPITULATION.

RECEIPTS.

Government Treasury	$5,000.00
Accrued interest on same	65.99
	5,065.99
Sale of Silk, etc.	791.99
Sale of waste cocoons, etc.	334.18
Total	6,192.16

EXPENSES.

Purchase of reliable, pierced and waste cocoons	1,536.96
Wages of reelers and sorters	390.81
Salary of superintendent	480.00
Salary of engineer	55.00
Rent, with steam-power employed	750.00
Repairs, incidental to reels, reel-room, etc	64.71

FOURTH ANNUAL REPORT OF THE LADIES' SILK CULTURE SOCIETY OF CALIFORNIA.

The DEPARTMENT OF AGRICULTURE AT WASHINGTON, D. C.:

In accordance with the requirements of law, I have the honor herewith to submit the annual report of the Ladies' Silk Culture Society of California for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1889. Owing to the fact that the appropriation for the year did not become available until February, 1889, the operations of the society at its silk culture station were suspended during the months of August, September, and October. On the 1st of November, as there was a pressing necessity that work should be resumed, arrangements were made by which the receipt of the appropriation was anticipated with that end in view. This work consisted chiefly in sinking a well from which water might be obtained for irrigation purposes and for domestic use. Work upon this well had been commenced the previous year, as briefly alluded to in our last report, and had been pushed until a depth of about 50 feet had been reached, when operations were suspended without any available supply of water having been reached. Soon after resuming this work in November last, the difficulties encountered were such that the then president of the society, Dr. W. P. Gibbons, in accordance with the views of the board of directors, again suspended the work in order that the superintendent at the station might direct his attention to the care of the orchard.

Dr. Gibbons having handed in his resignation as president of the board of directors, on April 4, 1889, Mr. W. B. Ewer was elected to fill that office.

By a vote of the board of directors, it was decided not to resume work upon the well, but to rely upon winter irrigation and more thorough cultivation for the growth of the orchard. The success which has thus far attended this experiment has been most eminently successful. The dry season has now fairly passed and the orchard never looked better. With more careful attention to winter irrigation during the coming season, it is confidently believed that it can be entirely dispensed with.

During the past season, in addition to our experimental and usual routine work, the society has taken upon itself a portion of the work of the State board of silk culture. That association has for many years been in the annual receipt of an appropriation from the California State legislature, which was expended largely in purchasing and reeling the cocoons which were produced by the people of this State and in giving instruction in filature work.

The last legislature passed the usual appropriation, but for some reason it did not obtain the approval of the governor. Soon after it became time to commence the usual work of hatching and feeding throughout the State, the State board issued circulars, stating that in consequence of the failure to receive the usual appropriation, the board would be unable to purchase cocoons as they had heretofore done. Upon receipt of these circulars, many who had commenced feeding stopped their work and destroyed their worms.

At this juncture, the Ladies' Silk Society, seeing the disaster which would be inflicted upon the industry if the feeding was stopped altogether, immediately issued other circulars, offering to take up the work of the State board in purchasing cocoons and advising those engaged in the business to continue their work as usual. Those who received the circulars in season did so, but the result has been quite a falling off in the number of cocoons produced the past season. The assurance, however, which has been given that all proper encouragement will hereafter be extended to the industry by our society until such time as the State board may be able to again resume its work will, no doubt, prevent any permanent detriment to the future progress of this interesting and useful industry in California.

This work appeared to the management most imperative, as it was evident to all that if such a step was not promptly taken, most of the work of the promoters of a new industry and most of the expenditure of both State and National Government in that direction in California would have come to naught, and the important and promising interest of sericulture would have been strangled in its infancy in the very locality, of all others, where costly experiments had proven it capable of being most readily carried to the highest point of success.

THE WORK ALREADY DONE IN CALIFORNIA.

True, the silk industry in California is still in its infancy; but enough has been done to show that there are "millions in it," if properly conducted and patiently prosecuted. European silk culturists who have visited our State are unanimous and enthusiastic in pronouncing the conditions of California superior to those of the best silk regions of Europe for prosecuting this industry.

Mistakes were made in the early history of the industry in this State which will not be repeated. But within the past few years much actual progress has been made and enough has been done to prove that, if our present efforts are continued, it will not be long before sericulture will become an established and profitable industry in California.

It requires several years after a mulberry orchard has been planted before the trees attain sufficient growth to produce any considerable number of cocoons. During the last five or six years nearly or quite every agricultural county in the State has planted great numbers of mulberry trees—in some counties aggregating into thousands. During those years experiments, mostly conducted by women and children, by utilizing the few leaves which the young trees have produced, are such as to greatly encourage a more extensive feeding as the trees increase their leafy product. And now, with the further assurance that a ready market for the cocoons will be kept up, these trees will be more fully utilized, and a large increase in cocoons may be expected.

THE SILK CULTURE EXPERIMENTAL STATION.

The Ladies' Silk Culture Society, which makes this report and which is working under the auspices of the General Government, is making steady progress in its experimental work. The station for this work consists of 15 acres of ground, and is located at Piedmont, just out of the city of Oakland—a locality in every way well fitted for the work. It has already been of much value in advancing silk industry in this State.

The uses of an experimental silk culture station are various and important. Among them may be named cultivating, testing, and determining the best varieties of food trees for the silk-worm and their adaptation to the peculiarities of soil and climate; the breeding of the best varieties of silk-worms, and obtaining the best eggs for distribution; studying the diseases of silk-worms and making known the remedies for the same. All these objects are being carried out as far and as rapidly as our limited means will admit.

In addition to the objects above named a silk culture station should constitute an educational center, where persons desiring information upon any subject relating to silk culture may be able to find it. In its widest aspect, instruction should be given in all the details of hatching and feeding the worms, producing and preserving cocoons and silk-worms' eggs and in reeling the cocoons. To accomplish the latter purpose a filature would be required. Heretofore all filature work in California has been done by the State board.

In order to reach complete success in silk culture all the provisions named should be carried out at the experimental station. Stations of this kind have long been established in all the large silk-producing localities of Europe at government expense, and the fact is there universally acknowledged, that without such aid the silk industries of those localities could not be kept up.

The station at Piedmont is somewhat limited in extent, but much can and is being done on that area. Hitherto our trees have not been sufficiently matured to enable us to carry on the work of feeding to the extent and in the manner to accomplish the best results. But the orchard has now reached a degree of maturity which will enable us to attain better results in the future. The experiments of the present year, however, have been quite successful and complete, as will be fully shown by the annexed reports of the secretary and the chairman of the experimental committee. The exhaustive and scientific report of Professor Rivers testifies to the diligence, skill, and patience with which he has done his important work.

WILL SILK INDUSTRY PAY IN CALIFORNIA?

As a commercial or agricultural industry on a large scale, conducted by companies or capitalists, we answer "no."

As a home, family, or a cottage industry, we most emphatically answer "yes."

Neither this society nor intelligent advocates of silk industry anywhere in this country have ever claimed that it would pay when conducted on a large scale, as is pursued in raising cotton or wheat.

Filatures may thus be carried on by capitalists; but the raw material—the cocoons—should be produced as a family or a cottage industry. That is the way it is done in Europe. The business of producing cocoons should be introduced into families as an auxiliary to their slender incomes, whether on the farm or in towns and villages. It requires only a very small amount of means, just a little piece of cheap land planted with mulberry trees. After a little instruction it can be managed by any person of ordinary intelligence. Small boys and girls are quite competent to attend to the entire work of producing cocoons, as has been fully proven in numerous instances in this State.

It is well known that the business conducted in this manner in France and Italy is a paying industry. Experiments have shown that we can produce better silk in California than can be produced in Europe, on account of the superiority of our climate and the higher mental condition of our people. Moreover the ingenuity and inventive spirit of our working people is always improving on the worn-out and crude methods of the Asiatics, or even those of Europe. Our workmen and workwomen are always quicker and more skillful than the same class of people in Europe. We find this especially true through every class and character of mechanical and all other producers. These manifold advantages, taken in consideration with the far cheaper lands and lower taxes in this country, will more than counterbalance the cheaper labor of Europe. Especially is this the case when we propose to employ only the labor of children and women in families who have no other employment on their hands at the time.

In pursuing this industry we do not propose that a day's labor shall be taken from the farm or vineyard. All the work of producing cocoons may be done, especially in this State, at a time when the farmer and his boys have nothing else to do, and when the household labor is at its lightest.

Stock companies organized for silk culture and managed by agents, clerks, overseers, and large forces of hired men or boys have almost or quite always failed in Europe, as well as in this country. Neither this society nor the consistent advocates of silk culture anywhere throughout the United States have ever as to great profits and immense fortunes being realized from the industry. Those in this State and elsewhere who have opposed the encouragement of silk culture by State or national governments have done so without due knowledge or consideration of the methods proposed by such promoters of the industry as have looked carefully into the subject, and acted upon mature reflection and careful consideration. It is confidently believed that whoever will read this report thoroughly and carefully consider all the conditions, advantages, and consequences involved must come to a firm conviction of the fact that silk culture can be made to pay in this State and in many other portions of the country as well.

THE MORAL AND HUMANITARIAN ASPECT OF THE INDUSTRY.

We have thus far confined our observations to the pecuniary phases of the industry under discussion. Let us now pass in brief review its moral and humanitarian aspect, which is believed by many to be of the highest importance to the welfare of any community in which the industry may be practically established.

Silk culture is essentially an educational industry and the one best calculated to help on the great humanitarian work of bettering the condition of poor and needy families and providing easy and profitable work for the women and the younger members of such families. It is essentially woman's work. It is elevating in its tendency. In all European and Asiatic countries where it has been introduced it is studiously made elevating and respectable, as well as profitable. In France it is made a part of the education of every young lady, whether in the common school, the academy, or the convent. It is countenanced and made popular in many countries by the exceptional and warm interest taken in it by well-to-do ladies who move in the highest and most refined society, not excepting even royalty itself.

The object of all this is largely humanitarian. "There are so few industries in which women, children, and infirm persons can profitably engage," says a writer, "that this enterprise would seem to be a godsend to them." There is no hard work about it. Every man who owns a little patch of ground can plant a few mulberry trees upon it. They will arrive at a reasonable state of maturity in four or five years with very little care or cost. That done, let the industry be handed over to the women and children of the household. Three or four persons who may have nothing else to do can then take up the work, and in four or five weeks earn what will contribute materially to the prosperity and happiness of the family and home. If poor, it will well pay the husband and father to help his wife and children to earn a few dollars in this way; if not in need of such earnings, such an example of thrift and industry will tell upon his less fortunate neighbors and largely add to his own and the happiness and prosperity of the neighborhood.

Let such a course as this become general, and bye and bye an industry will be built up in the State and nation which will rank among the leading industries of the country and add thousands and millions annually to the aggregate of wealth. Silk culture in Europe and Asia has long been one of the chief sources of income of those countries, and there is no reason why our own country should not share in such a benefit.

We owe something to our children, and the generations which are to succeed them. There are thousands on all sides who are crying out "give us work." Shall we heed the cry? The opportunity is presented to provide an industry which, if properly established and distributed, will prove of incalculable benefit to our country. Shall we let it pass unheeded? There is a strong tendency to indolence in our State. It is an alarming fact that too many of our young people of both sexes are growing up in idleness. This condition is already beginning to bear fruit of a most noxious kind, and it is only by prompt and great exertion that we can check it. This state of things appeals most earnestly to Christian charity and effort. Idleness is the root of all evil. Give our young people something to do and they will certainly make better women and men than if allowed to grow up in idleness. There is room for thousands of families to engage in silk industry.

Three or four thousand persons in the country spending four or five weeks in the year raising cocoons will give permanent employment, all the year around, to as many persons in the city who may engage in reeling, spinning, and otherwise preparing the raw silk for domestic use.

Did the reader ever think what a vast amount of good such employment would do in this city of San Francisco? The following paragraph appeared several years ago in a city paper. The picture, if drawn today, would be a much darker one. We quote as follows: "Our hoodlum feminine element, which appeals to and should shock the most callous observer to the effect that if Christian charity of churches could be brought to know the dark side of our social panorama, many a dollar that now goes elsewhere would be devoted to the reclamation of American evils that are sinking into the blackest perdition under the very shadow of our steeples," and much more of the same kind. The picture is a truthful one.

Now the training of girls for technical industry, the introduction of our boys and girls into new avenues of profitable work, would change the character of the picture and give us, instead, additional thousands of happy homes and useful men and women.

Where is there an industry better calculated to afford just the employment needed to bring about such a result than that of producing silk? But it must not be forgotten that it will be the small producer who will make California a silk-producing State. Silk will never be produced in this country until the farmers' families take hold of the business in earnest, and that without any thought of making fortunes out of it. Let them be satisfied with such small sums as from ten or twenty dollars to a hundred or more, according to the number engaged, all earned in the short time of thirty-five or forty days when the labor on the farm and in the household is at its lowest ebb. That the production of cocoons will pay when conducted in this, the only manner of production urged by this association, is a question beyond dispute. The individual efforts may be small in results, but the aggregate will be immense, and may easily be run up into the millions in value. When we have provided the cocoons, capital will come in to purchase them and convert them into articles of value and usefulness, for which there is always a market. The improved and delicate machinery now being used for reeling and spinning will give our skilled labor an immense advantage over the cheap unskilled labor of Europe and Asia, where many generations must pass away before such machinery can be utilized. This and other advantages already noticed will more than wipe out the disadvantage of cheap labor.

The culture of silk is one of the more advanced industries—one that requires skill and intelligence from the time the eggs are hatched until the goods are placed upon the market for consumption. It is just the industry to be taken up by the country in which the average of education among the masses is ahead of that in any other land. The mulberry may be made more profitable than the vine, much more than the wheat field or even the average gold mine. The mulberry tree has been most aptly likened to a gold mine above ground, but with the difference in favor of the tree—that the returns will be far more sure and more continuous.

Let us interest our boys and girls to some extent in the work at once. Then thousands who might otherwise go to ruin will bless the work of our hands. Let it be done at once, even if it is done solely for the benefit of our country and humanity. Let us be vigilant and allow no opportunity to escape that may lead us on to victory.

This work, thanks to a benevolent few and to our National and State Governments, has been well commenced—the people are becoming more and more interested in it, and are being more thoroughly educated up to the importance of the work, both in its humanitarian and in its economical character. We have thus far devoted but a very little of either time or money to the work. When we look abroad and observe the many years and the large amounts of money that it has cost such countries as Italy and France to introduce the industry among their people, we may well take heart and regard the progress that we have made as more than satisfactory.

SECRETARY'S REPORT.

To the President and Members of the Ladies' Silk Culture Society of California :

In looking backward four years to the date of the incorporation of this society, it is with pleasure we record the steady growth and progress in the industry we are banded together to promote. Stated monthly meetings have been held since its organization, also many special meetings, and although the labors are yet few, and the harvest not yet abundant, the utility and success of the enterprise is no longer doubtful, but an accepted fact. The slow and tedious process of completing a typical mulberry orchard for experimental work, the basis of the entire plan of work outlined at the beginning, will in the near future be a reality.

This accomplished, rapid strides will be made in completing the entire plan, at which time we confidently expect sericulture will compete for honors with other agricultural pursuits of the State. Early in the season, as is more fully set forth in the report of the President of the Board, the necessity arose for a home market for cocoons, and this society at once concluded to do the work of purchasing cocoons, hitherto done by the State board. At a meeting of the board of directors, held May 2, sufficient funds were appropriated from the Government allowance to carry on the work. Acting as corresponding as well as recording secretary, my labors were greatly increased, but I have gained a better knowledge of the quantity and quality of cocoons produced. In the production of cocoons nearly every portion of the State has been represented with sufficient good results to prove the adaptability of soil and climate to the perfection of this industry.

On the whole the quality is not up to the standard, and better results must be obtained. during the year I have distributed 150 circulars and books of instruction, and replied to 360 letters of inquiry, often exchanging two or three letters with the same parties as difficulties arose, and still their work was neither satisfactory to themselves or to us. · I would therefore recommend a liberal distribution of printed circulars, giving full instructions, early in the season, and I would faver paying good prices where there is evidence of careful, earnest effort, and soon the standard of excellence will be attained. In the absence of a filature, correspondence was opened for marketing the cocoons, with the result of a decision favoring Washington. The cocoon committee and various other committees are in the midst of their labors, therefore unable to report fully at the present time. Full reports will be made to the society at the annual meeting in January, as provided by the constitution. I have an abiding faith in the ultimate success of our work, and, in closing, would again solicit the liberality of the Government to a degree that will enable us to continue in this important work toward perfecting the industry already established, and so well adapted to women and children who are clamoring for independence, and not charity.

Respectfully submitted.

REPORT OF EXPERIMENTAL COMMITTEE.

To the Ladies' Silk Culture Society of California :

The silk experiment for 1889 was began at the Piedmont Station on April 17th, the operator being Mr. L. E. Benton, a student at the University of California, the whole being superintended by myself as chairman of the committee of silk culture, and directed by said committee, the members of which being Mrs. Hittell, Mrs. Williams, Mrs. Pratt, Professor Hilgard and the President of the society, Mr. Ewer.

The experiment was made with the seed of the most select variety of the silk-worms, viz, the Friularni, it being the whitest in color and the largest cocoon producer. The experiment, however, of this year can not be considered as perfect as the capabilities of the variety and which was promised by the conditions of the earlier transformations of the various broods. If the Piedmont Station could have supplied sufficient foliage of improved varieties of mulberry-trees, such as Morus alba, or M. rosea, or M. nagasaki, the society might have rejoiced in an entirely satisfactory experiment; but the supply becoming short when it should have been increased, this, together with having to return to Morus multicaulis after having fed upon M. alba, is one of the causes for the lightness in weight of many of the cocoons. The society owes to Mrs. Williams its best thanks for aiding the experiment by sending almost a daily supply of leaves, though the irregular delivery of them by the express company deteriorated their quality.

The budding and grafting of the old stocks with improved sorts of mulberries would make the station at Piedmont a more suitable place to carry on silk culture. The stove, too, is not at all suitable for heating purposes and for regulating temperature for the cultivation of the silk-worm.

The worms began spinning on May the 20th, being 32 days in going through their changes, a period that was slightly prolonged by irregularity in the food supply. The weight of the cocoons I do not know, but they are at the Piedmont Station awaiting the order of the society as to their disposal. The cocoons that can be reeled are contained in twelve pasteboard boxes covered with green paper and marked "Piedmont Station, Silk Experiment, 1889." The size of each box is the same, 14 by 12 inches. The pierced cocoons occupy a white pasteboard box measuring 24 by 12 inches, and the flossings are to be found in a brown pasteboard box of the measure of 20 by 9 inches. The above mentioned are all at Piedmont. I now place in charge of the secretary of this society a selected assortment of two hundred cocoons agreeable to the order of the committee on silk culture, for the purpose of being forwarded to Washington for inspection. Of course these two hundred represent a higher grade than the general bulk, but though they are selected they are not necessarily better than many of those forming the general stock, for these were not culled from all the others, but simply represent the first two hundred good ones that came to hand, and there remains in all probability a thousand others that are equally good in quality.

Besides the above I retain for the museum of the university a small exhibit of about fifty examples, and I bring with me to-day the few cocoons that formed the experiment of killing by anhydrous hydrocyanic acid.

EGGS.

The stock of eggs for the society's use or order was made in accordance with the instructions of the committee, and a little beyond. The committee came to the conclusion that an ounce of eggs would be sufficient for the next year's experiment. These are contained in 200 bags, a selected pair of moths in each bag, being the producers of about 500 eggs. Besides the above-mentioned eggs I set apart for experiment, a number of double cocoons, and finding that double cocoons yielded very healthy looking moths, I paired a number of these moths and caused them to deposit their eggs upon large surfaces of fine muslin. From the fine condition of these insects I believe them to be in every way good for breeding purposes for the production of silk, the moth being perfect in form, without the deformity of crippled wings, and appeared to be in general good health. The amount of eggs thus obtained may be three ounces and from examination under the microscope I find these eggs from double cocoons to be free from disease.

FEEDING SILK-WORMS.

The silk-worm having been under domestication for centuries and frequently reared under unnatural conditions, it is not surprising that diseases are freely induced among them. The worms in nature have a completely free system of sewerage, feeding as they do upon twigs, and, elevated from the ground and in contact with no accumulated refuse, they must have immunity from many of the forms of disease that are generated in them while under domestic treatment.

Herding a large number of worms upon a horizontal plane is entirely opposed to the methods adopted by nature, for she supplies the worms with varying resting-places at all possible angles, where excrement of every kind fall freely to the ground without any contamination to neighboring worms.

I think that trial should be made of feeding upon twigs after the first moult, and when twigs are unobtainable and leaves alone available that netting on frames should always be substituted, that the excrement should be free to fall to the ground.

METHODS OF DESTROYING THE LIFE OF THE CHRYSALIS.

Several methods of killing the chrysalids were tried for experimental purposes. It was found that five minutes was sufficient to kill in dry steam when the layer of cocoons was only two deep, but ten or fifteen minutes was found necessary according to the depth of layer of cocoons and also the amount of saturation.

Carbon bisulphide proved a very effective method, using an empty coal-oil can, which nearly fill with cocoons, and place on the top of these a cup with a piece of sponge in it, upon which pour an ounce of the bisulphide, and close the can by means of paste and paper and let remain for twelve hours.

Anhydrous prussic acid (hydrocyanic) proved most powerful, and consequently quick in operation; but it being dangerous to the user and causing decomposition to vegetable stains, that occur more or less upon cocoons, and changing these stains into a permanent black dye, the use of this acid is not to be recommended, though it might be advantageous to do so when the silk is to be dyed black.

SPECULATIONS UPON A NEW VARIETY.

During the selection of the moths that were to produce eggs for future experiments there were large numbers of examples that possessed only rudimentary wings. These examples were rejected and thrown out as being unworthy of reproducing their species. After I had destroyed them I thought my action in the matter was a mistake, and that had I thought of it in time and have selected a number and made a distinct experiment results might have proved an advance in silk culture. These forms of both sexes were in the enjoyment of good health, and differed from the others only in having very short tippet-like wings, that could not aid in navigating the air, and which condition was brought about, no doubt, by continued domestication inducing a terrestrial habit. The loss of the powers of flight may be exchanged in the increase of silk, and as there is no waste of force in either seeking mates or food, both being supplied under domestication, an entirely apterous (wingless) variety of silk-worm might be the outcome of judicious selection.

Among the group of insects that silk-worms are classified with are two or three genera of species that possess these tippet-like wings, but the wingless condition occurs only in the female; the male flies freely about, while the female remains always at home.

The loss of a power through the nonuse of that power is not a new theory, but the condition, as I mentioned before, already exists in some near allies of this silk-producing race of moths.

The examination of the parent moth and eggs belonging to this experiment not having been completed has been made the subject of a supplementary report.

Very truly,

J. J. RIVERS,
Chairman Experimental Committee.

SUPPLEMENTARY REPORT.

To the Ladies' Silk Culture Society of California:

I beg to report the result of the miscroscopical examination of the 200 pairs of par ent moths selected from those belonging to the silk experiment carried on at the station at Piedmont during this present season of 1889.

The object of the society was to make a good and careful experiment not only in the production of good cocoons but also to acclimatize certain varieties of the silk-producing moth Bombyx Mori, so that the society could distribute healthy and robust eggs to those cultivating the silk industry in California.

The experiment in this respect has proved satisfactory. Of a total of 200 pairs (200 males and 200 females), 180 pairs were found to be perfectly free from disease. The remaining 20 pairs exhibited some bacterian bodies that resembled the disease explained by Pasteur as chain-ferment and which he considers the cause of flaccidity and which is supposed to be engendered by the use of fermented leaves, there was no appearance of pebrine or any other disease appertaining to sericulture but the one mentioned above.

During the experiment Mr. Benton discovered some unhealthy worms which he considered flaccidity and which made its appearance soon after feeding the worms with transported leaves. Of course those diseased worms were destroyed as soon as found, but others unperceived, because only slightly affected, passed into the moth state to be discovered only under the microscope. Though the parent moths of these 20 pairs exhibit the disease called flaccidity, yet an examination of their eggs does not disclose any appearance that would even suggest disease, but on the contrary were healthy looking in every particular; but as the parent moths show disease their eggs must be rejected.

I beg to report the above for the consideration of the Ladies' Silk Culture Society of California.

Respectfully, yours,

J. J. RIVERS,
Chairman Experimental Committee.

REPORT OF JOSEPH NEUMANN.

WASHINGTON, D. C., December 31, 1889.

SIR: I have the honor to present herewith my report upon the subject of the native wild silk-worm, as required of me by public act No. 116 of the laws enacted in the second session of the Fiftieth Congress, which reads as follows:

AN ACT making an appropriation for the Department of Agriculture for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1890, and for other purposes.

* * * * * * *

For the continuation of the study and experiments by Joseph Neumann of the wild native silk-worm of California, two thousand five hundred dollars, to be paid directly to said Joseph Neumann; and the said Joseph Neumann shall report the results of such work to the Secretary of Agriculture on or before the first day of January, eighteen hundred and ninety.

I also submit with this report a number of cocoons, being samples of a quantity obtained by me, the result of experiments made during the past year. These cocoons are in themselves convincing proof that the wild silk-worm discovered by me in California in 1884 is really valuable and its cultivation promises beneficent results.

In continuing my study and researches I visited Santa Clara County, Cal., in the early part of the year, and also Mount Hamilton and the surroundings of the Lick Observatory. Unfortunately the season was late, the weather cold and generally unfavorable and the worm could not be found there. I then visited other sections of the State, especially Sonoma County, where I had found the wild silk-worm in former years, but also with poor results, for I discovered but a few of them. The reason for their scarcity in this neighborhood was discovered in the fact that curiosity-seekers wanted specimens of the worm, and a large number of people, especially boys, had been hunting and doing a thriving business in them. The same condition applied to San Francisco, where the worm used to be found in large numbers.

Fortunately I had quite a number of live cocoons of the wild silk-worm in my possession, which passed through the process of breeding. I was thus enabled to put large numbers of young worms on bushes of the wild holly, both in the open air and in inclosed rooms. Those in the rooms I fed on branches of said plant, the stems of which I kept in water, and in that condition they remained good food for four or five days. While the worm would be better preserved in a room than in the open air, it has been demonstrated that it is hardier and thrives much better in the open air.

This wild silk-worm is the only one, so far found, whose culture in the open air is successful. It feeds upon a species of "Cascara Sagrada," or wild holly, that grows in great abundance throughout the more temperate regions of California, indigenously, and can be produced successfully from the line of Jackson County, Oregon, to New Orleans, where the altitude does not render its growth impracticable. The same climate and conditions requisite to its growth can be found in many portions of Arizona and New Mexico. The limited time that I have had for making experiments has rendered it impossible for me to determine what the best and surest plan will be to propagate this plant upon which the wild silk-worm feeds—whether by transplanting the scions in an orchard or grove, or from the seed. This important fact must be determined by experiments made in the proper way when sufficient time is allowed for the proper tests. But as the "wild holly" grows abundantly and indigenously all through the region of country adapted climatically to the production of silk, I do not hesitate to say that the plants can be easily and successfully produced by either method.

The season through which the wild silk-worm can be successfully worked is from two and a half to three months. Later in the year, the latter part of September, I exhibited the food-plant, live worms, and cocoons raised during the past season at the fair in Sacramento, Cal., held by the state board of agriculture; and I may add that the exhibition attracted general attention of a very favorable character.

The cocoons produced by the wild silk-worm, as demonstrated by the samples submitted herewith, are in reality silk, and they are precisely of the same kind as that which originally came from the East Indies and which in its manufactured state is known under the name of "pongee" silk, and has grown to be a very large factor in commerce. Thousands of bales are annually exported from the East Indies. In former years it was not much used, the French alone utilizing it for "chop," which means a short-fiber spun silk. They became more valuable in this country when the Messrs. Cheney Brothers, of Connecticut, and the Messrs. Riley, of Paterson, N. J., began to use the short fiber for spun silk. They are still more valuable now, as a machine has been invented in France for reeling the cocoons into long fiber, the same as the mulberry species. A skein of the long fiber is submitted herewith for proof.

If the fiber of the native wild silk-worm cocoon were good only for spun silk, or if it were even only fit for the manufacture of fine paper, the discovery would still have to be classed as a valuable one, but as reeled it is nearly as valuable as mulberry silk. I have never claimed and do not now claim that the texture of the fiber of the native worm is equal to that of the mulberry species; but it certainly equals the silk of the East Indies, and its production can not fail to be of immense benefit to this country. The culture of the mulberry species on the American continent, which was first attempted about two hundred and thirty years ago, has so far comparatively few results to show because of the great opposition and competition of foreign producers; but the culture of the native worm promises rich rewards in the immediate future if properly cared for by the Government.

For further information as to my work in developing the wild silk-worm of California I refer you to the photographic view taken of the worms fed by me last season and to the live cocoons, as well as the cocoons of the previous year's production, together with the observations of the press of California, whom I invited to witness my operations; all of which will be found in the office of the Assistant Secretary of Agriculture.

I most respectfully recommend the establishment of two experimental stations in the State of California; one of them should be located on the Government military reservation known as the Presidio, in the city of San Francisco. It was in the vicinity of this reservation that the wild silk-worm was first discovered in the year 1884. The reason why I advocate the establishment of a station here is that there are still a great many plants in the immediate vicinity upon which the worm feeds; but they are being uprooted by the owners of these lands, who are preparing the latter for sale as building lots. It would not be very expensive to transplant them to the Presidio for preservation and thus provide food for the worms.

A second station should be established in the interior of the State, where the season is earlier and where no fogs interfere with the culture of the worms or with the experiments.

In my opinion the cocoons produced in the interior of the State are somewhat heavier than those produced in the city. The season is so much earlier in the interior that the work there could be completed before the hatching season begins at San Francisco, where the climate is much colder, so that the same laborers could perform much of the work at both stations. By the results of the experiments on these two stations would be demonstrated the financial value of the culture of the native wild silk-worm.

I most respectfully call your attention to the biils on the subject for the development of silk culture of the mulberry species, introduced by Hon. J. M. Mitchell, of Oregon, in the Senate and by the Hon. W. W. Morrow, of California, in the House of Representatives. They are in accordance with my views and ideas for the promotion of silk culture.

Your most obedient servant,

JOSEPH NEUMANN.

Hon. J. M. RUSK,
Secretary of Agriculture.

PUBLIC BUILDINGS AT EASTPORT, ME., AND OTHER PLACES.

LETTER

FROM

THE SECRETARY OF THE TREASURY,

RECOMMENDING

An increase in the limit of cost of public buildings at Eastport, Me., Hoboken, N. J., Houston, Tex., Los Angeles, Cal., Louisville, Ky., Manchester, N. H., Sacramento, Cal., Troy, N. Y., and Carson City, Nev.

JANUARY 16, 1890.—Referred to the Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds and ordered to be printed.

TREASURY DEPARTMENT,
OFFICE OF THE SECRETARY,
Washington, D. C. January 15, 1890.

SIR: I have the honor to call your attention to the advisability of increasing the limit of cost of the following-named public buildings, and to the causes which render such action necessary:

EASTPORT, ME.—CUSTOM-HOUSE AND POST-OFFICE.

On account of carrying the foundation of the building down to rock, constructing the retaining wall and carrying the sewer from the building to the bay, the limit of cost for this building should be extended from $108,000 to $138,000.

The amount appropriated October 2, 1888, viz, $8,000, for a suitable foundation, is not sufficient, and before the work of construction is commenced it is necessary that the limit be increased as above stated.

HOBOKEN, N. J.—POST-OFFICE.

The limit of cost of this building should be extended from $60,000 to $75,000. This increase is made necessary from the fact that the site already purchased cost $30,000, and that piling will be required for the foundations, leaving only about $25,000 for the construction of the building. This amount is insufficient for the construction of a building that will give sufficient space for the proper transaction of the public business.

HOUSTON, TEX.—POST-OFFICE, ETC.

The limit of cost of this building should be extended from $75,000 to $90,000. A portion of the building is but one story high, and should be extended, thereby providing additional floor space in second story required by the postal authorities.

A cistern is to be provided for water supply. The estimate for the building provided furnaces only for heating. It is desirable to provide a steam-heating apparatus of sufficient capacity to properly heat the building. The additional amount asked is for the purposes as above set forth.

LOS ANGELES, CAL.—COURT-HOUSE, POST-OFFICE, ETC.

The limit of cost of this building should be increased from $150,000 to $500,000. The object of this increase is to purchase additional land, extend the present building, and add an additional story, and make the building fire-proof. It is deemed essential that this extension and additional story should be constructed in order to afford the proper accommodations for the public service.

The building at present designed and contracted for is not sufficient to accommodate the needs of the public service even at this time, and affords much less space for the Post-Office Department than it has in the rented building now occupied by the Government.

LOUISVILLE, KY.—COURT-HOUSE, POST-OFFICE, ETC.

The limit of cost of this building was fixed at $1,000,000, and the original estimate of the cost of the building, approved February 16, 1886, did not include the cost of the heating apparatus, approaches, and elevators, and an additional appropriation of $95,000 should be made for this work.

In the estimates of appropriations for the fiscal year 1889–'90, the Department requested an appropriation of $131,001.75 for the completion of the building under the limit of cost; also, an appropriation of $95,000 for the heating apparatus, approaches, and elevators, which had not been included in the original estimate nor in the amount set as a limit of cost by Congress.

On March 2, 1889, Congress appropriated $131,001.75 for the completion of the building, including heating apparatus and elevators, thereby combining the objects of the appropriations, but not the amounts asked for; and as it would be impossible to complete the building, including heating apparatus, approaches, and elevators within the above appropriation, and as the items mentioned were not included in the original estimate nor in the limit of cost set by Congress, the additional appropriation of $95,000 will be necessary to complete the work.

MANCHESTER, N. H.—POST-OFFICE, COURT-HOUSE, ETC.

A special appropriation of $5,000 should be made for this building.

The building is of fire-proof construction and the first story is finished with white oak, and this special appropriation is asked that the second story may be finished with the same wood, which the balance of the appropriation available will not permit.

SACRAMENTO, CAL.—POST-OFFICE, ETC.

The limit of cost of this building should be increased from $150,000 to $300,000, on account of additional foundations not contemplated in original estimates, the enlargement of the building, i. e., increasing floor area 30 per cent., the use of stone for facing walls, and for fire-proof construction throughout.

TROY, N. Y.—POST-OFFICE, COURT-HOUSE, ETC.

The limit of cost of this building should be increased from $300,000 to $400,000.

This increase is recommended to enlarge the building and permit the use of better materials than those contemplated by the estimate and for making the building fire-proof. If the additional appropriation be made, granite may be used for construction.

CARSON CITY, NEV.—COURT-HOUSE, POST-OFFICE, ETC.

The limit of the cost of this building should be increased from $136,000 to $161,000, that the approaches may be completed.

Respectfully, yours,

W. WINDOM,
Secretary.

PUBLIC BUILDINGS AT CHARLESTON, S. C., AND OTHER PLACES.

LETTER

FROM

THE SECRETARY OF THE TREASURY,

RECOMMENDING

Appropriations for certain repairs, alterations, and improvements in and about public buildings at Charleston, S. C., Cincinnati, Ohio, Grand Rapids, Mich., Macon, Ga., Memphis, Tenn., New York, N. Y., Peoria, Ill., and Wheeling, W. Va.

JANUARY 16, 1890.—Referred to the Committee on Appropriations and ordered to be printed.

TREASURY DEPARTMENT,
OFFICE OF THE SECRETARY,
Washington, D. C., January 15, 1890.

SIR: I have the honor to call your attention to the advisability of making appropriations for the following named public buildings for purposes hereinafter respectively set forth:

CHARLESTON, S. C.—CUSTOM-HOUSE.

An appropriation of $21,000 should be made for the general repair of the building, and heating apparatus, the cost of this work being too large to be charged against the general appropriation for "Repairs and Preservation of Public Buildings."

CINCINNATI, OHIO.—CUSTOM-HOUSE AND POST-OFFICE.

An appropriation of $25,000 should be made for painting and decorating the walls and ceilings of, and making repairs to, the building.

At the completion of the building, about five years ago, the walls and ceilings of rooms and corridors were painted two coats, preparatory to decorating. Advertisements were issued for the latter work, proposals received, and opened May 16, 1885. The bids were rejected, as the lowest was in excess of the balance of the appropriation available, since which nothing has been done in the premises. From reports of representatives of this Department who visited the building it appears that the condition of the interior walls and ceilings is especially uninviting, and that this painting and decorating should be performed.

There are other items of work absolutely necessary which can not properly be paid for from the general appropriation for "Repairs and Preservation of Public Buildings," such as iron gratings for basement warerooms, increased electric-light plant, etc., included in the appropriation asked, which will put the building in proper condition throughout.

GRAND RAPIDS, MICH.—COURT-HOUSE AND POST-OFFICE.

An appropriation of $1,000 should be made to permit the payment of assessment of city authorities of Grand Rapids, on account of the repaving of Lyon street along the site of the building, there being no existing appropriation from which said work can be paid.

MACON, GA.—COURT-HOUSE, POST-OFFICE, ETC.

An appropriation of $5,000 should be made for this building, to construct a sewer from building to the river, and for water-proofing the boiler-pit in basement. This sewer is necessary for the proper drainage of the building to place it in good sanitary condition.

MEMPHIS, TENN.—CUSTOM-HOUSE.

An appropriation of $8,000 should be made for this building, for certain alterations and repairs, and for constructing a sewer to properly drain the grounds and building.

NEW YORK, N. Y.—CUSTOM-HOUSE.

An appropriation of $40,000 should be made for this building, to make necessary repairs to the plumbing, heating apparatus, floors, and sidewalks; also for a new elevator, for painting and for cement paving in the courts of the building, all of which work is necessary and should be done this year.

PEORIA, ILL.—POST-OFFICE, COURT-HOUSE, ETC.

An appropriation of $10,000 should be made for this building, to provide same with elevator.

The building as originally designed had a basement, two stories, and attic, and no provision was made for an elevator, after which an additional story was added necessitating an elevator. The courts are situated on the third floor, and the absence of an elevator causes much inconvenience and loss of time, and one should be provided to facilitate the transaction of the public business.

WHEELING, W. VA.—CUSTOM-HOUSE.

An appropriation of $3,000 should be made for this building for completing the alterations, enlargement, and repairs to same, and that a suitable elevator may be provided.

Respectfully, yours,

WM. WINDOM,
Secretary.

FROM

THE SECRETARY OF THE TREASURY,

TRANSMITTING

A supplemental estimate from the Secretary of War of appropriation for Fort Sheridan rifle range.

JANUARY 16, 1890.—Referred to the Committee on Appropriations and ordered to be printed.

TREASURY DEPARTMENT,
January 14, 1890.

SIR: I have the honor to transmit herewith, for the consideration of Congress, copy of a communication from the Secretary of War, of the 10th instant, submitting a supplemental estimate of appropriation in the sum of $5,000 for Sheridan rifle range, being additional to the item asked for in House Ex. Doc. No. 17, Fifty-first Congress, first session.

WAR DEPARTMENT,
January 10, 1890.

SIR: I have the honor to forward herewith, for transmission to Congress, a supplementary estimate of $5,000 for Fort Sheridan rifle range, in addition to the sum of $10,000 requested in my letter of November 29, 1889, House Ex. Doc. No. 17, Fifty-first Congress, first session.

Very respectfully,

REDFIELD PROCTOR,
Secretary of War.

The SECRETARY OF THE TREASURY.

WAR DEPARTMENT,
QUARTERMASTER-GENERAL'S OFFICE,
Washington, D. C., December 14, 1889.

SIR: I have the honor to submit herewith a supplementary estimate of funds for use at "Fort Sheridan rifle range," amounting to $5,000, and to request such action as will cause it to be considered by Congress and embodied in the sundry civil bill.

Respectfully,

S. B. HOLABIRD,
Quartermaster-General U. S. Army.

The SECRETARY OF WAR.

Estimates of appropriations required for the service of the fiscal year ending June 30, 1891, by the Quartermaster's Department, U. S. Army.

[Supplementary.]

Fort Sheridan rifle range:
For clearing, grading, and underdraining the rifle range at Fort Sheridan (submitted) $5,000

NOTE.—This sum is asked with which to restore to the special appropriation "Military post near Chicago, Ill.," a like sum used therefrom for the purpose named. Adding this to the $10,000 already asked for, under date of November 26 last, for construction of the rifle range (House Ex. Doc. No. 17, Fifty-first Congress, first session) the total to be furnished under this head will be $15,000.

ARREARS OF PAY AND BOUNTY OF VOLUNTEERS.

LETTER

FROM

THE SECRETARY OF THE TREASURY,

TRANSMITTING

Estimates of appropriations for arrears of pay and bounty of volunteers in the late war, to be certified by the Second Auditor and Second Comptroller, during the six months ending June 30, 1890, and during the fiscal year 1891.

JANUARY 16, 1890.—Referred to the Committee on Appropriations and ordered to be printed.

TREASURY DEPARTMENT,
January 15, 1890.

SIR: I have the honor to transmit herewith for the favorable consideration of Congress a communication from the Second Auditor of the Treasury of the 16th ultimo, which is concurred in by the Second Comptroller, making estimates of appropriations to pay claims of volunteers who served during the war of the rebellion, and their widows and legal heirs, for arrears of pay and bounty, to be certified by the Second Auditor and Second Comptroller, during the six months ending June 30, 1890, and during the fiscal year ending June 30, 1891, as follows:

January 1 to June 30, 1890:
Pay of two and three year volunteers	$200,000
Bounty to volunteers and their widows and legal heirs	175,000
Bounty under act of July 28, 1866	15,000
Total	390,000
July 1, 1890, to June 30, 1891:
Pay of two and three year volunteers	350,000
Bounty to volunteers and their widows and legal heirs	300,000
Bounty under act of July 28, 1866	30,000
Total	680,000

Attention is invited to the statement of the Second Auditor accompanying this communication; and upon the facts therein presented appropriations are recommended which will provide for the payment of these claims at the time they are found to be due by the accounting officers.

Respectfully yours,

W. WINDOM,
Secretary.

The SPEAKER OF THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES.

TREASURY DEPARTMENT,
SECOND AUDITOR'S OFFICE,
Washington, D. C., December 16, 1889.

SIR: I have the honor to submit the following estimates of amounts that will be required to pay claims of volunteers who served during the war of the rebellion, and their widows and legal heirs, to be certified by the Second Auditor and Second Comptroller, during the six months ending June 30, 1890, and during the fiscal year ending June 30, 1891:

January 1 to June 30, 1890:

Pay of two and three year volunteers	$200,000
Bounty to volunteers and their widows and legal heirs	175,000
Bounty under act of July 28, 1886	15,000
Total	390,000

July 1, 1890, to June 30, 1891:

Pay of two and three year volunteers	350,000
Bounty to volunteers and their widows and legal heirs	300,000
Bounty under act of July 28, 1866	30,000
Total	680,000

My reasons for submitting these estimates are—

(1) The great delay which attends the payment of claims after they have been certified by the accounting officers. Upward of 3,800 claims allowed since February 25, 1889, and amounting in round numbers to $500,000, can not be paid until Congress shall have made the necessary appropriations.

(2) In consequence of this delay many inquiries, appeals, and complaints are made by anxious claimants, and those in necessitous circumstances are compelled to dispose of their claims at a sacrifice. It frequently happens that claimants die before Congress makes an appropriation, and the claims of their heirs have then to be considered and settled.

(3) An appropriation in advance to pay claims as soon as certified would not take from the Treasury one cent more than if they were paid six or twelve months after certification. On the contrary, it would be in the direction of economy to make provision for prompt payment and thus save the extra work involved in adjudicating the claims of the heirs of deceased payees, attending to assignments of certified claims, answering the complaints and inquiries of impatient claimants, keeping a record of unpaid claims, and preparing lists thereof for Congress. It would save some work in the office of the Paymaster General, through which claims for arrears of pay and bounty are paid. That office now labors under the disadvantage of being crowded, immediately after the passage of an appropriation act, with several thousand claims which necessarily accumulate in this office because there is no money to pay them. Every claimant expects to be paid as soon as funds become available, but it takes the Pay Department two or three months to dispose of the accumulated claims. In the mean time more inquiries and complaints are made and the correspondence of this office is increased—all of which might be obviated by timely appropriations.

(4) Appropriations are made beforehand to pay the claims of pensioners as soon as certificates are issued. I suggest that any argument which may be advanced in favor of the prompt payment of pensions may be applied with greater force to the payment of arrears of pay and bounty.

In connection with this matter I respectfully invite attention to the inclosed statement concerning estimates and appropriations heretofore made for arrears of pay and bounty.

Respectfully yours,

J. N. PATTERSON,
Second Auditor.

The SECRETARY OF THE TREASURY.

DECEMBER 17, 1889.

SIR: I concur in the views expressed by the Second Auditor in the above letter.

Very respectfully,

B. F. GILKESON,
Comptroller.

The SECRETARY OF THE TREASURY.

STATEMENT IN RELATION TO SPECIAL ESTIMATES AND APPROPRIATIONS FOR ARREARS OF PAY AND BOUNTY.

With the exception of one year (1853) appropriation accounts were not kept by fiscal years until 1871. If any part of a general appropriation—say for "Pay of the Army"—remained unexpended at the close of one fiscal year it was applied toward paying the Army for the following year.

Unexpended balances of special and temporary appropriations, such, for example, as the appropriation for preventing and suppressing Indian hostilities and for prosecuting the war with Mexico, were carried to the surplus fund as soon as the objects for which the money was appropriated were accomplished.

By an act approved July 12, 1870, Congress directed that unexpended balances of appropriations made specifically for the service of any fiscal year should be applied to the payment of expenses properly incurred, or to the fulfillment of contracts properly made during that year, and that such balances as were not needed for said purposes should be carried to the surplus fund.

The act of July 12, 1870, also provided that balances of appropriations not drawn against for two years, and not required in the settlement of accounts pending in the several Auditors' offices, should be carried to the surplus fund (16 Stat., 251). Under this law the Auditors could and did provide, to a certain extent, for the payment of pending claims by certifying to the Secretary of the Treasury that unexpended balances of appropriations were needed for that purpose.

This law continued in force for four years. Congress then enacted that after July 1, 1874, all unexpended balances of appropriations which shall have remained upon the books of the Treasury for two fiscal years shall be carried to the surplus fund. (18 Stat., 110.)

The act of June 20, 1874, also provided that the Secretary of the Treasury, at the beginning of each session, should report to Congress any balances of appropriations that ought to be reappropriated for the payment of claims and settlement of accounts.

This provision was repealed in 1878 (act June 14, 1878, 20 Stat., 130), and in lieu thereof it was made the duty of the several accounting officers to continue to receive and audit all claims under appropriations the balances of which had been exhausted or carried to the surplus fund under the act of 1874, which might be presented to them within a period of five years; and the Secretary of the Treasury was directed to report the amount due each claimant to the Speaker of the House of Representatives at the commencement of each session of Congress.

The authority to audit and report claims conferred by the above-mentioned act expired in 1883, and a question then arose as to the jurisdiction of the accounting officers over claims, payable from old appropriations, not presented within five years from June 14, 1878. Second Comptroller Upton decided that the expiration of the five years did not affect in any manner the power and duty of the accounting officers, and that, in regard to all claims of the kind referred to in the act of 1878 which were not filed within the said five years, the pre existing laws are in force, and the duties of the accounting officers are the same that were prescribed before the passage of the act of June 14, 1878 (Second Comptroller's Digest, vol. 2, page 230). But see the opinion of Second Comptroller Maynard, February 10, 1886, in re W. B. Moses & Son's claim.

The last legislation on the subject of claims is found in the act of July 7, 1884 (23 Stat., 254), which directs that the Secretary of the Treasury shall, at the commencement of each session of Congress, report the amount due each claimant whose claim has been allowed in whole or in part to the Speaker of the House of Representatives and the presiding officer of the Senate, who shall lay the same before their respective houses for consideration.

It will be seen by the foregoing statement that up to July, 1870, appropriations were continuous. So long as any money remained in the Treasury to the credit of the appropriations from which pay and bounties were payable, just so long could claims for arrears of pay and bounty be adjusted and paid, without regard to the fiscal years in which such claims accrued. From July, 1870, to July, 1874, these appropriations were practically continuous, sufficient amounts being retained in the Treasury (that is not carried to the surplus fund) to meet outstanding claims.

As already stated, the act of June 20, 1874, required the Secretary of the Treasury to report to Congress what balances of appropriations that had been carried to the surplus fund should be re-appropriated. Reports were accordingly made and such sums as were deemed necessary were re-appropriated by the acts of March 3, 1875, and May 1, 1876. Under the operation of the act of June 20, 1874, the unexpended balances of the sums re-appropriated were carried to the surplus fund June 29, 1877, and June 30, 1878.

Since the dates named below the payment of claims for arrears of pay and bounty has been dependent upon annual appropriations:

Arrears of pay	July 1, 1878
Bounty to volunteers and their widows and legal heirs	July 1, 1877
Bounty, act July 28, 1866	July 1, 1882

(The time for filing claims for bounty under the act of July 28, 1866, expired June 30, 1880. The appropriation remained subject to draft two years longer.)

In the ordinary course these appropriations would cover only such claims as had been certified by the accounting officers and reported to Congress at the commencement of a session. A claim certified in January would not be reported until the following January and, during a "long session" of Congress, would not be paid before July or August—nineteen or twenty months after certification. In order to obviate so great a delay, and thus prevent dissatisfaction and complaint on the part of claimants, the Second Auditor made persistent efforts to obtain appropriations in advance and finally succeeded to some extent, as the following statement will show:

On January 5, 1876, the Auditor suggested to the Secretary of War that an estimate be sent to Congress of amounts required to pay miscellaneous claims prior to July 1, 1877, but the suggestion was not favorably considered.

In view of this unfavorable action the Auditor declined to make any suggestion in 1877, but on May 8, 1878, he invited attention to the fact that on the 30th of the following month the unexpended balances of certain appropriations would go to the surplus fund, and there would then be no provision for the payment of claims for arrears of pay, etc. He estimated that $420,082.48 would be required to pay claims to be certified up to June 30, 1879. The estimate was transmitted to the Senate and House of Representatives, but no action was taken by Congress.

On March 20, 1879, and March 27, 1880, estimates were forwarded to the Secretary of War amounting to $225,000 and $265,000 respectively, and were transmitted to both houses, but no action was taken.

In April, 1880, the House passed a resolution calling upon the Secretary of the Treasury to report why he permitted claims for arrears of pay and bounty to remain unpaid from six to twelve months before asking Congress for an appropriation. The resolution was referred to this office for report, and a reply was made to the effect that such estimates as the law required (act June 14, 1878) had been duly submitted, and that the Second Auditor, anticipating that dissatisfaction and complaint on the part of claimants would inevitably follow the suspension of payments on account of arrears of pay and bounty, had submitted special estimates in 1878, 1879, and 1880, on which Congress had failed to take action.

An estimate was made December 20, 1880, that $300,000 would be required to pay claims to be certified up to June 30, 1882. Congress appropriated $250,000. During this session (Forty-sixth Congress, third session) the Second Auditor endeavored to obtain an indefinite appropriation for the payment of claims for arrears of pay and bounty. An amendment to effect this object was inserted in the deficiency bill, and was favorably considered by one house, but was finally thrown out in committee of conference.

In January, 1882, an estimate for $350,000 was submitted, and in the following March the Auditor reported that in consequence of a decision of the Second Comptroller, under which certain officers became entitled to 33⅓ per cent. increase on their pay, under act of March 2, 1867 (14 Stat., 422), also of a decision of the United States Supreme Court in the case of Capt. R. W. Tyler (105 U. S., 204), the amount required would be $895,000. In June, 1882, the Auditor made a fourth report that as, under a ruling of the Secretary, the appropriations for "Bounty, act July 28, 1866," would cease to be available on the 30th of that month, $80,000 would be needed to pay additional bounty claims. The entire amount asked for ($975,000) was appropriated by the act of August 5, 1882.

The estimate submitted in 1883 amounted to $925,000. Congress appropriated $760,000. A large portion of this money was required to liquidate claims under the Tyler decision.

In January, 1883, the sum of $125,000 was asked for under "Bounty to volunteers and their widows and legal heirs," and "Bounty, act July 28, 1866."

No amounts were asked for on account of "Pay, etc., of the Army" and "Pay of two and three year volunteers," the unexpended balances of those appropriations being deemed sufficient.

The deficiency bill, as passed by the House of Representatives, made no provision for the payment of bounties. The attention of the Secretary was called to the matter, and he was informed that payments of bounty had been suspended, the appropriations being exhausted. He was also informed that in consequence of a new class of claims having arisen under the act of June 3, 1884 (23 Stat., 34), and of other new classes being likely to arise under two bills then pending (these bills became laws—"Three months' extra pay," 23 Stat., 66, and "Relief of certain soldiers from charge of desertion," 23 Stat., 119), it was estimated that $350,000 instead of $125,000 would be required, as follows:

Pay of two and three year volunteers	$100,000
Bounty to volunteers and their widows and legal heirs	150,000
Bounty, act July 28, 1866	100,000

The Senate inserted these amounts in the deficiency bill, but they were cut down in committee of conference to $40,000, $60,000, and $40,000, respectively, and the reduced appropriations were speedily exhausted, the bounty in October, 1884, and the pay in January, 1885.

An estimate was submitted in January, 1885, for $660,000 under four heads of appropriations, namely:

Pay, etc., of the Army	$250,000
Pay of two and three year volunteers	200,000
Bounty to volunteers, and their widows and legal heirs	150,000
Bounty, act July 28, 1866	60,000

Congress made no provision for "Pay of the Army," and in lieu of the $410,000 required for pay and bounties to volunteers appropriated only $160,000 to pay claims which might be certified prior to July 1, 1885. This amount was exhausted in May, 1885, being insufficient even for the limited time prescribed by the act.

In January, 1886, the Auditor submitted an estimate of funds required to pay claims to be certified up to June 30, 1887, as follows:

Estimate for—	To pay claims to be certified—
	To June 30, 1886.	To June 30, 1887.
Pay of the Army	$10,000	$20,000
Pay of two and three year volunteers	100,000	250,000
Bounty to volunteers, etc	150,000	300,000
Bounty, act July 28, 1866	8,000	15,000
Total	268,000	585,000

No appropriation was made on this estimate, which was the last of the kind prepared by the Auditor.

CIVILIAN ENGINEERS.

LETTER

FROM

THE SECRETARY OF WAR,

TRANSMITTING

A statement showing the names, residence, and compensation of civilian engineers employed during the fiscal year 1889, under river and harbor appropriation acts, the period of employment, and the work on which each was employed.

JANUARY 19, 1890.—Referred to the Committee on Rivers and Harbors and ordered to be printed.

WAR DEPARTMENT,
OFFICE OF THE SECRETARY,
Washington, January 15, 1890.

The Secretary of War has the honor to transmit to the House of Representatives, in compliance with the requirements of section 8 of the river and harbor act of August 5, 1886 (24 Stat., 335), a statement showing the name and place of residence of each civilian engineer employed from July 1, 1888, to June 30, 1889, under appropriations made by river and harbor acts of August 5, 1886, and August 11, 1888, the time so employed, the compensation paid, and the place at, and the work on which employed.

Very respectfully,

REDFIELD PROCTOR,
Secretary of War.

The SPEAKER OF THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES.

Statement showing name and place of residence of each civilian engineer employed from July 1, 1888, to June 30, 1889, under appropriations made by the river and harbor acts approved August 5, 1886, and August 11, 1888, the time so employed, the compensation paid, and the place at, and work on which employed.

51ST CONGRESS, 1st Session. } HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES. { EX. DOC. No. 119.

SURVEY OF THE OSAGE RIVER, MISSOURI.

LETTER

FROM

THE SECRETARY OF WAR,

TRANSMITTING

A map of the survey of the Osage River, Missouri, from its mouth to the first shoal, and an estimate of the cost of constructing a lock and dam thereon.

JANUARY 17, 1890.—Referred to the Committee on Rivers and Harbors and ordered to be printed.

WAR DEPARTMENT, OFFICE OF THE SECRETARY,
Washington, January 15, 1890.

The Secretary of War has the honor to transmit to the House of Representatives, in compliance with the requirements of the river and harbor act of August 11, 1888 (25 Stats., 429), a letter from the Chief of Engineers, dated the 14th instant, together with a copy of a report of Maj. A. M. Miller, Corps of Engineers, and map of survey of Osage River, Missouri, from its mouth up to the first shoal, and 5 miles above the same; and also an estimate of the cost of constructing one lock and dam within the limits of said survey.

Very respectfully,

REDFIELD PROCTOR,
Secretary of War.

The SPEAKER OF THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES.

OFFICE OF THE CHIEF OF ENGINEERS,
UNITED STATES ARMY,
Washingtou, D, C., January 14, 1890.

SIR: I have the honor to submit herewith a copy of the report (with map) dated January 9, 1890, made by Maj. A. M. Miller, Corps of Engineers, to comply with the following requirement of the river and harbor act of August 11, 1888, viz:

> The Secretary of War is hereby authorized and directed to cause a survey to be made of the Osage River, Missouri, from its mouth up to the first shoal, and five miles above the same, and to report an estimate, based on such survey, of the cost of constructing one lock and dam within the limits of said survey, and the effect upon the navigation of said river of constructing said lock and dam.

The most suitable location for the proposed lock and dam is shown upon the accompanying chart (No. 2), and the dimensions of the lock are given at 275 feet by 50 feet by 25 feet, and of dam 800 feet long.

The lock is to be built of masonry, and the dam of riprap and gravel with an impermeable row of sheet piling reaching to hard clay bottom.

The total estimated cost of work, including contingencies, is $222,000. This estimate appears to be reasonable, while the style of lock and dam meets my approval.

Very respectfully, your obedient servant,

THOS. LINCOLN CASEY,
Brig. Gen., Chief of Engineers.

Hon. REDFIELD PROCTOR,
Secretary of War.

SURVEY OF OSAGE RIVER, MISSOURI.

UNITED STATES ENGINEER OFFICE,
St. Louis, Mo., January 9, 1890.

GENERAL: In compliance with instructions contained in letter dated Office Chief of Engineers, U. S. Army, Washington, D. C., April 1, 1889, I have the honor to make the following report on a survey of the Osage River, Missouri, directed by the following clause in the river and harbor act of August 11, 1888:

> The Secretary of War is hereby authorized and directed to cause a survey to be made of the Osage River, Missouri, from its mouth up to the first shoal, and 5 miles above the same, and to report an estimate based on such survey, of the cost of constructing one lock and dam within the limits of such survey, and the effect upon the navigation of said river of constructing said lock and dam.

The survey of the portion of the Osage River mentioned in the act was begun on October 5, 1889, and completed on November 23, 1889. The work was undertaken at this season as it was at the most favorable stage of the river. The survey extended from the mouth to Rice's Island, a point 5 miles above the first or "Brennecke's" shoal.

From the mouth to the foot of Brennecke's Shoal, a distance of 7.3 miles, the river at low water has a very flat slope, a rise of but 0.93 feet; from this point to the foot of Shipley's Shoal, a distance of 4 miles, there is a rise of 0.81 feet; from the foot of Shipley's Shoal to the head of same, a rise of 1.56 feet in a distance of 1.1 miles; from the head of Shipley's to the head of Prince's Shoal, a distance of 1.5 miles, there is a rise of 0.45 feet; from head of Prince's, a rise of 0.48 feet to the foot of Rice's Island, a distance of 2.1 miles. Thus it is found that from the mouth to the foot of Rice's Island, a total distance of 12.4 miles, the total rise in elevation is, at low water, 4.03 feet; of this difference of level 0.93 feet is gained in the first 7.3 miles. The remaining distance, or from the first shoal, Brennecke's to Rice's Island, a distance of 5.1 miles, has all the remaining fall or 3.1 feet; in fact, at low water the portion of the river from the mouth to Brennecke's forms a pool or slackwater in which there is a navigable depth of not less than 6 feet; this is amply sufficient for any traffic on the river, either present or prospective.

In the portion of the river surveyed there are above Brennecke's three shoals, Shipley's, Prince's, and Rice's; these are all obstructions to low-water navigation and serious ones; at ordinary low water they do not admit of the passage of boats drawing more than 15 inches.

This portion of the river flows through an alluvial bottom bounded on either hand by steep, rocky bluffs from half a mile to 3 miles apart. In this bottom the stream meanders between low-water banks about 18 feet high at low water, but in time of high water overflows the banks to a depth sometimes of 3 feet. This is indicated by the high-water marks as found from the high water of 1882. In general, when an overflow takes place in this part of the river it is due to high water in the Missouri, which, backing up, overflows the banks of the lower portion of the Osage, owing to the slight slope of the latter.

Borings were made at three sections, marked 1, 2, and 3, on chart No. 2, and the bed of the stream was found to consist of a layer of mud and gravel of various thickness, averaging from 7 to 9 feet on the different sections, under which was a hard stratum of clay suitable for foundation bed.

If this portion of the river is to be improved by a lock and dam, the most suitable location is at section of the2 chart.

The largest boats now navigating the river have a length of about 220 feet over all, and a beam over all of about 45 feet; a lock, therefore, to accommodate such boats should have a chamber 250 feet long, corresponding to a length between miter-sills of 275 feet, or about 350 feet between the head and foot of bays. The lock should be of masonry with chamber walls 15 feet thick at base and 25 feet high, foundation to be 7 feet below low-water stage and coping 18 feet above same; the lift of the lock should be 8½ feet.

A lock and dam giving this lift would secure, at low water, a channel of 3½ feet to Dixon's Shoal, a point 20 miles from the mouth of the river. Two more dams with locks giving the same lift would secure the same depth to Tuscumbia, a distance 60 miles from the mouth. The dam should be built of riprap and gravel with an impermeable row of sheet piling reaching the hard clay bottom.

It is estimated that a lock and dam of the required dimensions would cost as follows:

Lock, 275 by 50 by 25 feet, complete	$148,000
Dam, 800 feet long	33,500
Protection and guide pier	10,000
Shore protection	8,500
Land and keeper's house	2,000
Engineering and contingencies, 10 per cent	20,000
Total	222,000

The Osage River proper is formed by the confluence of the Marais des Cygnes and Little Osage, on the line dividing Vernon and Bates counties, flows east and northeast and empties into the Missouri about 8 miles below Jefferson City, on the line of Cole and Osage counties. It passes through or touches Vernon, Bates, St. Clair, Henry, Benton, Morgan, Camden, Miller, Cole, and Osage counties.

The river below Osceola is a succession of short pools and shoals. In the first 40 miles there are forty shoals, with an aggregate fall of 39.7 feet; in the next 20 miles there are twelve shoals, with a fall of 14.1 feet; in the next 20 miles twelve shoals, with a fall of 14.9 feet; in the next 11 miles there are eight shoals, whose fall is 9 feet, or a total in 91 miles of seventy-three shoals, with an aggregate fall of 77.6 feet.

The bed of the river is gravel and rock, the latter found almost everywhere at a depth of from 5 to 10 feet. The bars are composed of rock or gravel and bowlders. The banks are characterized by rocky bluffs on one side and alluvial bottom on the other, and this condition exists, with few exceptions, as far as the survey extended. The bluffs are either limestone or sandstone formation, and vary in height from 75 to 250 feet; the bottom land varies in width from one-fourth to three-fourths of a mile, and is from 25 to 35 feet above low water. Wherever cultivated it produces fine crops of wheat and corn. Hickory, valuable oak, walnut, elm, sycamore, and ash are found in abundance in the bottoms; the bluffs are everywhere covered with oak and cedar.

The principal affluents from the south, between the termini of the survey, are the Sac River, Little Wablow, Bear, and Hogle's creeks, Pomme de Terre River, Turkey, Knobby, Big Deer, and Rainey creeks; those from the north are Monegaw and Muddy creeks, Grand River, Little Teabo, Cole, Camp, Big and Little Buffalo creeks. Of these, the Monegaw, Sac, Pomme de Terre, Cole, Camp, and Big Buffalo were barely running, the others, with many smaller creeks, affording no water whatever in consequence of the drought.

The people of the Osage Valley are chiefly employed in agriculture. The produce in fifteen counties, according to the census of 1870, was, in round numbers, 1,500,000 bushels of wheat, 5,750,000 bushels of corn, 1,500,000 bushels of oats, 375,000 pounds tobacco, and 273,000 pounds wool, with great numbers of cattle, horses, and hogs.

At present the commerce of the river is restricted to supplying local wants. Before the completion of the Missouri, Kansas and Texas and the Atlantic and Pacific railways large portions of southwestern Missouri, southeastern Kansas, Arkansas, and the Indian Territory were supplied through this channel.

The Osage Valley derives its chief importance from the richness of its vast mineral deposits. Professor Pompelly, in his geological report of 1873, spoke in very high terms of its mineral resources, though hardly one-tenth of the real value of its deposits was known at that time. Rich banks of iron and valuable veins of lead and coal are found almost every day. All this vast wealth is now unavailable for want of transportation, and it seems to be the province of a paternal Government to assist in bringing these great necessaries of life (iron and coal) into market, whereby the whole country would be benefited. The principal minerals are iron, coal, lead, zinc, burr-stone, marble, grit, and kaolin.

Kaolin is found in Cole, Camden, Miller, and Morgan counties. Grit has been quarried for a long time in Vernon County, and has recently been found in St. Clair; both of very superior quality. Marble of fine quality and in quantity exists in Vernon and Morgan counties. Burr-stone of excellent quality has recently been found in St. Clair, near the Osage River. Zinc is found in St. Clair in several places, but not as yet in quantity. Bituminous coal exists in large quantities in nearly every county along the river. Cannel coal abounds in Morgan and Benton counties. Lead is found in paying quantities in many localities in every county; in Morgan alone more than 3,000,000 pounds were mined during the last year. Iron ores, principally limonite, red hematite, and blue specular, exist in almost inexhaustable quantities in thirteen of the fifteen counties in the Osage Valley, but the banks are especially rich in Miller, Camden, Morgan, and Benton counties. Thousands of tons are found on the surface in the form of large bowlders, and wherever the banks have been opened the developments are most satisfactory. N. B.—These measurements are hull measurements, and do not include in length the stern-wheel, or in breadth the guards.

The effect on the navigation of the river of constructing the lock and dam would be to give an uninterrupted channel of 3.5 feet for the whole year, except when the river may be closed by ice, from its mouth to Dixon's Shoal, a distance of 20 miles. With three such locks and dams navigation could be carried, with the same depth, to Tuscumbia, a distance of 60 miles from the mouth. This method would cost about $11,000 per mile.

For rafting ties or logs at low water, when the rafts could not be run over the dams, other methods than those now employed would be necessary; logs and ties it would be necessary to transport on barges, as is done on the Missouri, and as many of the ties which now come down are transferred from rafts to barges at Osage City, this would be no inconvenience except to change the point of transfer.

The depth of 3.5 feet given by this method for navigation in the Osage is more than is at present afforded by the Missouri at low water, to which it is tributary; but as it is probable that this depth will be obtained in the Missouri at some future time, it is proper that this depth should be taken as a standard. In any event there is an outlet for the commerce of the Osage at Osage City, where the Missouri Pacific Railway crosses the river.

There are transmitted herewith two charts of the survey, with the report of Mr. C. D. Lamb, assistant engineer, under whose immediate direction the survey was made; also a copy of a communication from a citizens' committee, of which Judge H. Clay Ewing, of Jefferson City, Mo., was chairman.

Commercial statistics, estimates, and other valuable information were also furnished by Mr. J. W. Beaman, assistant in charge of the improvement of Osage River.

Very respectfully, your obedient servant,

A. M. MILLER,
Major, Corps of Engineers.

The CHIEF OF ENGINEERS, U. S. ARMY.

REPORT OF MR. C. D. LAMB, ASSISTANT ENGINEER.

ST. LOUIS, MO., December 11, 1889.

MAJOR: I have the honor to submit the following report on the survey of the Osage River from its mouth to a point 5 miles above the first shoal, with the cost of constructing a lock and dam within the limits of the survey and their effect upon the navigation of the river.

The survey was begun November 2 at Bennecke's, the first shoal above the mouth, the quarter-boat being found at that locality. A base-line was first measured and the adjustments of the plane-table and reading of the stadia rods tested. The survey was then extended in both directions from the base, being completed to Rice's Island, 5 miles above the shoal, November 12, and to the mouth of the river on the 23d.

Permanent triangulation points were put in at Rice's Island, Bennecke's Shoal, and Osage City.

A line of levels was run from Rice's Island to the mouth, where it was connected with the levels of the Missouri River Commission, in which the 0 is the plane of the St. Louis directrix.

The elevations above that plane of points within the limits of the survey were found as follows:

Locality.	Above mouth.	Elevations of water.		Elevation of banks.
		St'd. low.	High of 1882.	Lower.	Second terrace.
	Miles.
Mouth of Osage	.....	104.85	.....	122.0	.....
Osage City	0.9	195.06	.....	122.5	.....
Station No. 65	6.0	105.34	.....	123.4	130.0
Foot Bennecke's Shoal	7.3	105.78	.....	124.9	131.6
Foot Shipley's Shoal	7.7	106.59	126.97	123.4	131.8
Head Shipley's Shoal	8.8	108.15	.....	.....	131.5
Head Prince's Shoal	10.3	108.60	128.99	123.9	130.8
Foot Rices Island	12.4	108.88	.....	122.0	130.0
Head Rice's Island	13.0	.....	.....	.....	.....

The elevation of the low-water surface was found by subtracting the reading of the nearest gauge from heights taken during the November rise. For points above Shipley's Shoals these elevations are probably too great, for as the gauge at Rice's Island was overturned by drift, the gauge used was that at Bennecke's Shoal, and the reading subtracted was too small, inasmuch as the river raised 12 feet at Tuscumbia and but 6 feet at its mouth.

The elevation of standard low water at the mouth, computed from the levels and gauge readings at Osage City, was 104.85. From the records of the Missouri River Commission the elevation of standard low water at Jefferson City is found to be 112.97, and at Hermann, 44.7 miles below, 73.81. The fall of the Missouri River at low water is therefore 0.876 feet per mile, and the elevation of low water at the mouth of the Osage, 9.2 miles below, would be 104.91.

A lock and dam to improve the navigation on the lower part of the river should be located just below Bennecke's Shoal. If built with a lift of 8.5 feet it would secure a 3.5-foot channel to Dixon's Shoal, 20 miles above, and as the fall of the river between Tuscumbia and the mouth is but 25.5 feet, three such dams would extend slackwater navigation to that place, 60 miles from the Missouri River.

Three lines of borings were taken near the location of the proposed dam to determine the character of the bottom. These borings were taken 50 feet apart with iron rods driven down by a sledge or wooden maul.

The bottom of the river is composed of clay, beginning at a depth of 15 feet below the zero stage in the deeper portions, overlaid with a mixture of mud and gravel having an average thickness of about 9 feet at section No. 1, and 7 feet at No. 3. This layer is in strata of varying thickness and density. The gravel in some places is hardened into thin crusts so firm that several blows of the sledge were required to drive the rods through them, the material between these crusts being very loose and permeable. The underlying clay is soft and mixed with thin layers of fine sand and mud near its top, but lower down it becomes very hard and continues so for at least 7 feet, which was as far as the rods could be driven.

The river decreases in width from 1,060 feet, between high-water marks at section No. 1, to 675 feet at a point 5,000 feet below, but as the depth of the water increases from 4.6 to 14 feet at low water, between the same points, the cost of a dam would be about the same built anywhere on this part of the river. The water is too shoal for its location near section No. 1, but No. 2 seems favorably situated, for, while a small amount of dredging would be required to make a low-water channel below the lock if placed on the north side of the river, the bed is sufficiently wide at that place to give a spill-way of over 700 feet outside the lock, avoiding undue contraction during high stages.

The largest boats running up the river are the Benton and Helena, of St. Louis, which have made an aggregate of eight trips during the past season, going as far up as Linn Creek, 109 miles above the mouth, bringing out wheat, lumber, and barytes.

These boats are about 220 feet long over all, with 34 feet beam, and a lock to accommodate them should have a chamber at least 250 feet long and 50 feet wide, corresponding to a length between miter-sills of about 275 feet or 350 feet over all. It is proposed to construct the lock-walls 15 feet thick at the bottom and 5 feet at the top, 25 feet high from 7 feet below low water to 18 feet above that plane, built of quarry-faced stone on outside with filling of concrete. The foundation to be of piles, grillage timbers, and concrete, which also forms floor of lock-chamber.

The dam is to be of riprap stone 60 feet wide at base on a brush foundation covering a row of heavy sheet-piles driven across the river. A pier to be built above the outside wall of the lock extending 300 feet up-stream, and the bank to be protected above and below the dam.

The following is an estimate of the cost of the work:

LOCK.

Coffer-dam and excavation		$17,000
Foundation		35,000
Walls of masonry on outside, 30 inches thick:
3,700 yards	$55,500

SHORE PROTECTION.

Mattress, 1,000 feet long by 100 feet wide		6,000
Stone, 4,000 yards riprap		2,500
			8,500
Land			500
Keeper's house			1,500
Engineering and contingencies, 10 per cent			20,000
Total cost			222,000

The highest water marks known on the Osage are those made by the high water of February, 1882. These were found at Bennecke's Shoal to be 20.3 feet above low water, but the banks show that the river seldom goes above a 13 foot stage. The cross-section of the river at low water on the proposed site of the dam has an area of about 3,500 square feet, which would give 5 feet of water in a channel 700 feet wide, having the same velocity as at present, and of uniform depth.

That depth would give a height of 11 feet over the crest of a dam 700 feet long, built to an 8.5-foot stage, since the rise above a dam is about 55 per cent. of the rise below it. A rise in the river of 13 feet would, therefore, raise the surface just above the dam to an 18-foot stage. The amount of tillage land overflowed by such a stage is very small, but stages between 19 and 24 feet would overflow about 150 acres. The high stages of the Osage, produced by head water, however, generally occur early in the spring, and the result is but little loss to the farmers along the banks.

Very respectfully, your obedient servant,

C. D. LAMB,
Assistant Engineer.

COMMUNICATION FROM CITIZENS' COMMITTEE.

JEFFERSON CITY, MO., October 29, 1889.

We beg the privilege of presenting for your consideration some facts and thoughts concerning the improvement of the navigation of the Osage River.

It has been said that if the Osage River should be improved ingress and egress at its entrance into the Missouri River was such as to render the improvement comparatively useless. In answer to that objection I wish to present the views of some old Osage River steam-boat men, ex-Governor J. W. McClurg and Captains Robey and Stewart. Here are their letters to me:

"H. CLAY EWING, Esq.:

"DEAR SIR: In answer to your inquiry we would state that we have been engaged in steam-boating on the Osage River for about fifteen years. We have been owners of steam-boats, licensed pilots, etc., and as such have been almost exclusively employed in steam-boating on that river for the time stated, and from the knowledge thus obtained we say that upon an average of nine months in the year it is practicable for steam-boats plying on the Osage and Missouri to pass in and out of the mouth of the Osage. We have known seasons when such was the case during the whole year; but if this were otherwise, the Missouri Pacific Railroad crossing at the mouth, all traffic could then be carried on.

"C. S. ROBEY,
"ALEX. STEWART."

Governor McClurg writes:

"H. CLAY EWING:

"DEAR SIR: Your favor received, and I indorsed the letters of Captains Robey and Stewart as true. I wish to refer to the inestimable value of the improvement by locks and dams. There is no doubt about that being the best way to improve it. It would cause thousands and tens of thousands of acres of productive lands to be cultivated that are otherwise profitless.

"It would be difficult to overestimate the amount of grain, meat, lumber, iron, lead, and other merchandise that would be produced in the Osage Valley with such improvement.

"Respectfully,

"J. W. MCCLURG."

It has been said that the commerce is not now sufficient to justify the expenditure. Such statement refutes itself; but, if true, it is no argument against the work. There can not be trade and commerce unless there is transportation. The transportation facilities fill up the country and create the commerce.

The Erie Canal was projected into a wilderness.

Suppose railways had not been constructed into Kansas and the Great West until the commerce of the country had justified the expenditure. It would have been a howling wilderness and dreary desert to-day. The transportation came first; and it must come first for the development of any country. The country can not settle until it has transportation. The construction of the railways made it possible for development.

These railways were virtually constructed by the Government. They were built out of the public lands which belonged to the people. But it was the only way the Great West could ever have been developed. We now ask similar aid for this great enterprise to open up this beautiful and rich country, which is as full of resources as an egg is of meat.

Major Ernst, in his report of 1881, says:

"The amount of commerce now existing, as shown by statistics, is no measure of what this stream will one day be called upon to carry."

Again: "The valley of the Osage possesses great store of iron, coal, lead, zinc, marble, and other useful mineral."

Again: "The slackwater navigation of this stream is, I think, only a question of time."

In 1875 Mr. W. M. Gordon, assistant United States engineer, in his report, said:

"The Osage Valley derives its chief importance from the richness of its vast mineral deposits."

Professor Pompelly, in his geological report of 1873, spoke in very high terms of its mineral resources, though hardly one-tenth of the real value of its mineral deposits was known at that time. Rich banks of iron and valuable veins of lead and coal are found almost every day. All this vast wealth is now unavailable for want of transportation, and it seems to be the province of a paternal Government to assist in bringing these great necessaries of life—iron and coal—into market, whereby the whole country would be benefited. The principal minerals are iron, coal, lead, zinc, buhrstone, marble, grit, and kaolin.

Kaolin is found in Cole, Camden, Miller and Morgan counties. Grit has been quarried for a long time in Vernon County and has recently been found in St. Clair, near the Osage River. Zinc is found in St. Clair. Cannel coal abounds in Morgan and Benton. Lead is found in paying quantities in many localities in every county; in Morgan alone more than 3,000,000 pounds was mined during last year. Iron ores, principally limonite, red hematite, and blue specular, exist in almost inexhaustible quantities in thirteen of the fifteen counties of the Osage Valley. Thousands of tons of iron are found on the surface in the form of large bowlders and wherever the banks have been opened the developments have been most satisfactory.

The following statement will approximate the facts:

Counties in the Osage Valley.

Counties.	Population.	Assessed valuation.	Square miles.
Bates	35,000	$7,983,000	900
Vernon	30,000	6,282,000	830
St. Clair	17,000	4,130,000	690
Henry	30,000	6,786,000	760
Benton	18,000	2,857,000	750
Hickory	12,000	1,710,000	410
Morgan	15,000	2,165,000	650
Camden	12,000	934,000	720
Miller	13,000	1,633,000	580
Cole	20,000	3,012,000	400
Osage	16,000	2,524,000	580
Maries	10,000	1,342,000	520
Total	228,000	$41,372,000	7,790

Aggregate number of acres 4,985,600.

Suppose there is now in cultivation one-sixth of the whole, or, in round numbers, 800,000 acres. The average value of agricultural products, we will say, is $15 per acre, which would make the total agricultural production now amount to $12,000,000. This does not include timber, minerals, or live stock, which even now must surpass agricultural products at least 50 per cent., which would make those interests amount to $24,000,000, thus making at present an aggregate proximate product of the counties through which the Osage flows of about $36,000,000.

Of course this whole traffic, nor half of it, would be transported by water, even if the Osage was improved, yet at least one-third of it would; and these productions, by means of water transportation being provided, would very soon double and treble, especially along the river. But, above all, with this improvement the development of the vast mineral and timber resources would very soon quadruple agricultural productions.

The Osage is so crooked as to forever preclude the hope of railways along its banks, and the traffic by water is an aid instead of a detriment to railway transportation.

My theory, therefore, is (approved by Senator Vest and Mr. Bland, and doubtless by our senior Senator and other Representatives) to build one lock and dam at the first shoal (Shipley's), and that that will so demonstrate the feasibility of the plan and show up to such great advantage that other appropriations will come, one by one, to build additional dams until the whole shall be completed.

But even if the one should only now be constructed, it alone would be a paying investment, as it would open up a continuous water-way for at least 40 miles. We want a start, and are confident others will follow until the Osage Valley will be the garden spot of the West.

H. CLAY EWING,
Chairman Committee.

An estimate from the Commissioners of the District of Columbia of an appropriation to satisfy decree in the case of the District of Columbia vs. McBlair.

JANUARY 17, 1890.—Referred to the Committee on Appropriations and ordered to be printed.

TREASURY DEPARTMENT,
January 15, 1890.

SIR: I have the honor to transmit herewith, for the consideration of Congress, copy of a communication from the Commissioners of the District of Columbia, submitting an estimate of appropriation to satisfy a decree in the case of the District of Columbia vs. McBlair in the sum of $1,821.50 with interest from June 13, 1878, until paid.

Respectfully yours,

W. WINDOM,
Secretary.

The SPEAKER OF THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES.

OFFICE OF THE COMMISSIONERS,
DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA,
Washington, December 20, 1889.

Sir: The Commissioners of the District of Columbia have the honor to submit estimate for an appropriation of $1,821.50 with interest from June 13, 1872, until paid, to satisfy a decree in the case of the District of Columbia vs. McBlair, equity No. 1355.

The urgency of this case will appear from the inclosed copy of communication of the assistant attorney for the District, recommending that steps be taken to secure the appropriation.

Respectfully,

J. W. DOUGLASS,
President Board of Commissioners District of Columbia.

Hon. WILLIAM WINDOM,
Secretary of the Treasury.

DECEMBER 19, 1889.

GENTLEMEN: I desire to call your attention to the case of the District of Columbia vs. McBlair, involving a part of the Western (K street) Market, that you may take such steps as you may be advised to prevent the sale of the property to satisfy a decree of $1,821.50 with interest from June 13, 1872.

The case is reported at considerable length in 124 U. S., beginning at page 320. My predecessor, Mr. Davis, had an arrangement with Mr. Darlington, who represents the decree by which the matter should be deferred until the meeting of the present Congress.

The time is now up, and unless some steps are taken to have Congress appropriate the necessary money to satisfy said decree, a sale of the property will be ordered.

Very respectfully,

THE COMMISSIONERS OF THE DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA.

EXHIBIT A.

The United States in account with William H. White, United States attorney, Washington Territory, for his services as attorney for plaintiff in case of L. S. Howlett, plaintiff, vs. Northern Pacific Express Company, defendant; L. C. Black, intervenor. No. 567. District court at North Yakima. April term, 1887.

1886, complaint filed to recover from defendant, Northern Pacific Express Company, a piece of Sioux (half breed) scrip, No. 349 B, of the value of $500 wrongfully taken from possession of plaintiff as receiver of United States land office at Yakima.

January 13, 1887, letter to William H. White, United States attorney, from honorable Attorney-General, instructing him to appear for plaintiff. February 23, amended complaint filed. April 11, L. C. Black intervenes and claims scrip as his property. April 14, 15, argument of motion, etc.; 15th, trial by court; jury waived. April 15, judgment for plaintiff for possession of scrip.

Attorney fee allowed by the court to William H. White, United States attorney and attorney for plaintiff, $50, the United States being the real party in interest.

EXHIBIT B.

The United States in account with William H. White, United States attorney for Washington Territory, for his services as attorney for the defendants in the case of W. B. Letch vs. John Y. Ostrander and H. E. Shields.

PROCEEDINGS.

February 16, 1888, complaint filed and summons issued. Action to restrain defendants, as register and receiver of the United States land office at Seattle, from making cancellation of certain land entries, as directed by the Commissioner of the General Land Office. February 24, W. H. White appears as attorney for defendants, as directed by Attorney-General in telegram dated February 20, 1888. Defendants move to strike certain allegations from bill. Defendants move for security for costs. February 29, motion for security for costs argued and denied. Motion to strike argued and allowed. Plaintift asks and is allowed 20 days to amend bill. March 22, plaintiff granted 30 days further time to amend.

May 1, 1889, defendants move for default and judgment. May 27, motion presented and allowed. Default entered. Judgment dismissing cause at plaintiff's costs.

Attorney's fee allowed by the court to W. H. White, United States attorney and attorney for defendants, for his services in said cause (the United States being the real party in interest defendant), $100.

(Act of June 20, 1874, sec. 3, 18 U. S. Stats., page 109.)

TERRITORY OF WASHINGTON, County of King, ss:

William H. White, being first duly sworn, on oath says that he is the United States attorney for Washington Territory, and as such officer, under the direction of the Attorney-General, he actually and necessarily performed all the services charged for in the foregoing account as therein stated, and is entitled to the compensation therein set forth; that said services were and are reasonably worth the sum of $100.

WILLIAM H. WHITE.

Subscribed and sworn to before me this 1st day of July, A. D. 1889.

[SEAL.] CHAS. F. MUNDAY,

EXHIBIT E.

The United States of America to James W. Oates, Dr.

To legal services for the United States in the circuit court of the United States, ninth circuit, at San Francisco, Cal., in the cases of The United States vs. The Sierra Lumber Company, Nos. 4021, 4027, and 4172 ..... $15,000

STATE OF CALIFORNIA, Sonoma County, ss:

James W. Oates, being first duly sworn, deposes and says: That he has been a prosecuting attorney for the past eighteen years, and has practiced in the courts of the Pacific coast for the past nine years; that he, as an assistant United States attorney, has had charge of the above-mentioned cases and of other matters touching the officials of the Sierra Lumber Company ever since the spring of 1886 as the sole attorney for the United States therein; that No. 4021 is an action at law in the said court on behalf of the United States against the said company to recover the market value of between 64,000,000 and 65,000,000 feet of lumber charged to have been made by the said company from trees cut by it from the public domain, said lumber being of the alleged value of $2,217,254.20; that No. 4027 is a proceeding in equity on behalf of the United States against the said company to enjoin it from cutting trees from lands of the public domain in Butte and Tehoma Counties, California, within reach of the mills of said company, aggregating about 200,000 acres; that No. 4172 is an action at law between the same parties to recover the market value of about 30,000 staves alleged to have been made from trees cut from the public domain and converted by the said company, the value of the same being $240.

Besides these proceedings, he was directed to proceed criminally against several of the officers of the said company for the trespass and for cutting timber with intent to transport the same out of the United States. This matter was investigated by him very thoroughly, both as to the law and the facts, occupying his entire time for about two weeks.

That criminal proceedings were never instituted as to the trepass, because of prudential reasons stated in my reports to the Department, as to cuttinging timber for exportation because the necessary proofs could not be secured.

That he has conducted such investigations and proceedings without the aid of any other attorney; that demurrers to the complaint in No. 4021 and to the bill in No. 4027 were interposed, were argued, and a brief filed to the latter case, which brief took an entire week to prepare, as the demurrer was directed to the equity of the bill and the proceedings depended upon a successful opposition to the demurrer, thereby necessitating thoroughness and care in its preparation.

That he drew and filed an amended bill of complaint, but as this resulted from not having properly prepared the original bill it was affiant's misfortune; that two sets of interrogatories were prepared in No. 4021, to which defendant filed exceptions, affiant appeared and argued the exceptions and had depositions taken; that defendant took one deposition requiring affiant's attention; that No. 4021 went to issue on all the allegations of the complaint about the 1st of January, 1887; was set for trial during the February term following; affiant prepared for trial, and had the witnesses subpœnaed; the cause was continued by the court, without motion, over affiant's opposition; was set for trial again during the July term, 1887; that affiant prepared for trial again; that the case was continued under an offer by defendant to compromise; that just prior to such last continuance affiant discovered that the survey and estimate made of the lands and trespass in 1885 was technically defective; that he asked for a resurvey and re-estimate; that he actively engaged in making the estimates of expense of such work, selection of surveyor, and gave explicit directions for doing said work and supervised the same, not in the field, but by oral and written advice, suggestions, and direction; that when he took charge of said matter the evidence had not been prepared.

Agent Chadwick could only give general and indefinite ideas of what could be proven by about half a dozen men whose names he presented; that he was disinclined to surrender papers or impart information to affiant, and affiant had to make three trips to Oakland before he was able to get any of the papers from Chadwick. When Agents Anderson and Rainey reported to affiant for service in the matter they were both devoid of experience or knowledge of that character of work; they knew nothing of the people they had to deal with, and nothing of the history of the section where they had to work, and had, in fine, no definite idea of what they had to do. Hence it was necessary for affiant to give explicit directions to them—meet them often in consultation and to keep up a continuous correspondence with them. When Agent Quigley reported to me for service in the said cases I learned that he was unreliable and a profligate in office, and when I would not intrust him with important matters to investigate he attacked me, rendering it necessary for affiant to fight enemies in front and rear at the same time.

That in the work of preparing the said causes for trial affiant has written to the agents working under his directions thereon, to the Departments at Washington, to witnesses, and others, 409 letters and reports, aggregating about 900 pages, and has sent 47 telegrams, all of which were in affiant's opinion proper and necessary in protecting the interests of the Government in said matters. That in said work he made forty-four trips to san Francisco, Oakland, Sacramento, and to the scene of the trespass. That said trips occupied no less than sixty-nine days, and affiant states that to the best of his belief he devoted to the work of said causes not less than seventy-five days, in addition to the days taken on said trips, in working upon said matters, prior to the 1st of November, 1888. That from the 1st of November, 1888 (with the exception of three days), he devoted himself entirely to the work of preparing for the trial of No. 4021, and on the 24th of November, 1888, went to San Francisco to further prosecute such preparation and devoted himself thereto. On December 4 the trial commenced and was concluded on the morning of January 26, 1889, by the return of a verdict for the Government for $41,000, and costs were awarded in judgment amounting to $5,454.44. That affiant's time was of course exclusively devoted to said preparation and trial during all of said period, viz: November 1, 1888, to the 28th of January, 1889—three days excepted. That affiant tried said cause without the aid of other attorneys; that the defense was represented by three of the prominent attorneys of the Pacific coast, two of whom were actively and continuously participating in the proceedings; that the defense was ably, energetically, and zealously conducted from the beginning to the close of the trial. That he is informed by the attorneys for the defense that they will move for a new trial, which, if done, will impose upon affiant two or three weeks' work in settling the statement on that motion, preparing for and arguing the same.

Affiant further says that in his opinion, unless affiant had prosecuted the work of preparing the said case for trial as he did, that the case would have been lost, or if won at all, for so small a sum as to have been unproductive of desired results.

That No. 4027 has never been tried for the reason that affiant will have to use thereo largely the same evidence used on the late trial, and it was by him considered inad visable to disclose that evidence in advance of the trial of No. 4021, as that was the most important case.

That affiant was unable to return to his home after said trial until the 28th of January, 1889, as he was occupied up to and including said day in preparing, serving, and filing the cost bill of the Government.

That affiant is familiar with the fees charged, allowed, and paid attorneys at law on the Pacific coast; and that in his opinion, considering the issues involved, the amount of work done and necessary to be done, the time expended, and loss to affiant's general business, and the results of said trial, the sum of $15,000 is a fair and reasonable fee to affiant for his services in the three causes, Nos. 4021, 4027, and 4172, and for the work to be done in them hereafter.

That affiant has never received anything on account of his said work.

That this affidavit is made for the purpose of securing an adjustment of his compensation in said matters.

STATEMENT.

George F. Ormsby, appointed as an ensign in the Navy of the United States by the President, etc., by commission, dated July 2, 1882, presented and filed a petition in the circuit court of the United States, ninth circuit, in and for the northern district of California, on the 21st day of May, 1889, alleging that he was unlawfully imprisoned and restrained of his liberty on board of the United States revenue steamer Independence by John W. Philip, captain, U. S. Navy, Solano County, Cal., and praying to be discharged upon a writ of habeas corpus. The writ was issued as prayed for and service of same made on Captain Philip. Upon instructions contained in telegram from the honorable Attorney-General, dated the 25th May, 1889, I appeared and represented Captain Philip in the matter of the application.

A return to the writ was prepared and filed, stating that George F. Ormsby, an ensign in the U. S. Navy, was charged with various offenses against the laws governing and relating to the naval forces and naval service of the United States, consisting in the disobedience of orders and disrespect towards the Secretary of the Navy and Acting Secretary of the Navy; that he had been tried upon said charges by a naval general court-martial and found guilty and sentenced by said court, and that at the time of the filing of the petition he was held and detained in the custody of the respondent under and by virtue of the laws of the United States awaiting the promulgation of said sentence or the orders of the President of the United States.

The matter was heard on the 27th and 29th days of May, 1889, when it was taken under advisement, and on the 3d day of June, 1889, the circuit judge ordered that petitioner be remanded to the custody whence he was taken and writ dismissed, and judgment was entered accordingly.

EXHIBIT P.

SAN FRANCISCO, CAL., October 31, 1889.

The United States of America to John T. Carey, United States attorney for the northern district of California, Dr.

To professional services rendered as special attorney for the defendant in the case of L. N. Handy et al., vs. Barton Atkins et al., No. 5564, heard and determined in the circuit court of the United States, ninth circuit in and for the northern district of California $250.00

STATEMENT.

The suit mentioned in this account was instituted on the 9th day of November, 1887, in the circuit court of the United States for the northern district of California by L. N. Handy, J. L. Handy, and J. L. Cathcart, doing business under the firm name of L. N. Handy & Co., in San Francisco, Cal., against Barton Atkins, United States marshal for the district of Alaska, and George H. Davis and Henri J. Haber, doing business also in this city, to recover from them 577 fur-seal skins of the value of $2,000 claimed to have been in the unlawful possession of said defendants.

The goods claimed as the property of plaintiffs, together with other property, including the schooner San Diego, in command of one C. E. Raynor as master thereof, were seized by C. A. Abbey, an officer in the revenue-marine service of the United States, on the 17th July, 1886, within the limits of Alaska Territory, for violation of section 1956 of the Revised Statutes of the United States. Proceedings for their condemnation and forfeiture were commenced on the 28th of August, 1886, in behalf of the United States in the district court of the United States for the district of Alaska. The plaintiffs appeared and defended their interests in said suit. On the 4th October, 1886 a decree was entered condemning and forfeiting the schooner and all other property found on board of her, including the 577 fur-seal skins. By direction of the Alaskan court and under the statute, the defendant, Atkins, as United States marshal, was, on the 20th October, 1887, commanded to sell the said fur-seal skins in the city of San Francisco, in this district, it having been shown that they were perishable goods, and could not be kept without great expense, and that it would be for the best interests of all persons concerned that they should be sold here.

Messrs. Davis & Haber were employed as auctioneers by Marshal Atkins to sell the skins, and it was while in the act of selling them that the plaintiffs and original claimants brought an action of replevin to recover the goods from Marshal Atkins. At his request I appeared and defended the interests of the Government involved in the suit. I at once procured bonds for the return of the goods or their value in the event judgment should be obtained against him. I prepared and filed an answer in behalf of defendant Atkins, and have attended to all other proceedings that have been had in the suit. The case was tried and finally argued and submitted on the 25th July last, and on the 2d day of October, 1889, judgment was rendered by the circuit court in favor of defendant Atkins.

As I stated to the honorable Secretary of the Treasury in my letter of the 25th September la t, this suit is an important one, for the reason that its object was to test the right of the court to order forfeited goods to be taken out of its jurisdiction to be exposed for sale in a favorable market. Opium seized and forfeited in the East is frequently ordered sent to this market for sale, and a principle involved in this case settles the law for this circuit.

My authority for appearing and defending the said suit on the part of defendant Atkins was sanctioned by letter from the Department of Justice, dated the 25th October, 1889.

The services mentioned in this account were rendered in and out of court on the following days: November 10, 21, and December 1, 1887; February 6, March 7, July 10, 16, 23, September 21, and November 26, 1888; January 8, February 4, 27, July 8, 25, and October 2, 1889.

NORTHERN DISTRICT OF CALIFORNIA:

John T. Carey, United States attorney for the northern district of California, being duly sworn, deposes and says that the services charged in the foregoing account have been actually and necessarily performed as therein stated; that the item charged is correct and legal, and the amount thereof justly due to him as therein stated, as he verily believes.

I do hereby certify that the nature of foregoing suit is truly stated above, and that the same was defended by John T. Carey, esq., United States attorney for the northern district of California.

I do further certify that the sum of $250 is a reasonable compensation and proper allowance to said John T. Carey, esq., for his services in said suit.

NEW YORK, January 25, 1889.

The United States to Charles E. Miller, Dr.

To services as follows: As special counsel in an action in the United States circuit court, southern district of New York, brought by John H. Lester against Benjamin F. Butler, to recover the sum of $75,000 damages for conversion of personal property. Defense assumed by the Government to the effect that the plaintiff was arrested by the provost-marshal and tried by court-martial, ordered by defendant (then major-general of volunteers in command of the Department of Virginia and North Carolina), and convicted of giving aid and comfort to the enemy, and adjudged to forfeit all his property in the hands of the provost-marshal, being the property mentioned in the complaint, to the proper authorities of the United States, and that all the acts of defendant were done in pursuance of his duty as major-general. Services in said action performed between April 12 and June 30, 1880, as follows, viz: Examination of pleadings and facts; examination of law and preparing brief for trial; conference with General Butler, to ascertain his witnesses and their locality; correspondence with and conferences with General Butler on numerous occasions as to setting case down for trial; and attending at court prepared for trial on seven different days when the case was ordered for trial, to wit, April 17, 24, 25, 26, 27, and 30, and June 4 ---- $1,800.00

The United States to Philip Tillinghast, Dr.

To services rendered in the defense of Titus Thompson, an Indian belonging to the Nez Percé tribe, and under the charge of Henry Heth, agent at and for the Nez Percé Indian Agency; in the district court of the first judicial district of Idaho Territory, April term, A. D. 1889 ..... $500.00

This Indian was twice indicted by the United States grand jury at said term of court for the crime, in each case of assault with intent to commit murder on an Indian policeman, upon the Nez Percé Reservation. I was appointed by the court, the said Indian being impecunious, to defend him upon each of said indictments. The indictments were for separate and distinct offenses and could not be joined. Under the said appointment I examined thoroughly into the case, formulated a defense, procured the attendance of witnesses, and upon trial before a jury secured the acquittal of the defendant upon one of the indictments. To the other indictment I demurred upon the ground of want of jurisdiction and made a thorough and exhaustive examination of the subject, and after argument before the court upon said demurrer it was sustained and the defendant was released from custody.

I was appointed attorney in these cases on the 11th day of April, A. D. 1889, was continuously engaged in trying, preparing for trial, and arguing said cases until the 18th day of April, A. D. 1889.

The above fee is entirely reasonable and in accordance with the charges of attorneys in this Territory.

I certify that I have examined the within account and statements and that the same are correct and that the services mentioned were performed as therein stated, and that the amount charged is a reasonable fee for the labor performed under the practice in this Territory.

JAMES H. HAWLEY,
United States Attorney, District of Idaho.

In the district court of the first judicial district of Idaho Territory, sitting for the trial of United States causes.

The tenth judicial day, Thursday, April 11, 1889. No. 36. United States vs. Titus Thompson (an Indian).

The defendant being in court and the United States attorney also being present, the prisoner was called for arraignment.

It appearing that the prisoner could not speak the English language, P. B. Whitman was sworn as an interpreter, and it also appearing that the prisoner had no counsel and that he had no means of employing counsel, the court appointed Philip Tillinghast, sq., to defend the prisoner.

The prisoner, through the interpreter, was informed by the district attorney that he had been indicted under the name of Titus Thompson, and was asked if that was his true name, to which he replied that it was. Whereupon the prisoner was duly arraigned upon an indictment found by the grand jury charging him with the crime of an "attempt to murder an Indian policeman." And the indictment having been read to him by the district attorney, and a certified copy of the indictment being given to his attorney, the prisoner was asked what was his plea.

Whereupon the prisoner, through his attorney, took the statutory time to plead, and the prisoner remanded into the custody of the United States marshal.

Twelfth judicial day, Saturday, April 13, 1889. No. 36. United States vs. Titus Thompson (an Indian). Prisoner plead not guilty. Trial of cause.

At the coming in of court at 2 p. m., same vs. same, trial resumed.

Thirteenth judicial day, Monday, April 15, 1889. No. 36. United States vs. Titus Thompson (an Indian). Argument by counsel.

VERDICT.

In the district court, first judicial district, Idaho, sitting for the trial of United States causes. No. 36. The United States vs. Titus Thompson (an Indian).

We, the jury impaneled in this action, find the defendant not guilty.

GEORGE W. TUCKER, Foreman.

Dated April 15, 1889.

Fourteenth judicial day, Tuesday, April 16, 1889. No. 39. United States vs. Titus Thompson (an Indian). Arraigned upon a new indictment, with same counsel defending prisoner. A demurrer was interposed; grounds, jurisdiction.

Same day—Afternoon—No. 39, same vs. same. Demurrer argued and submitted.

Sixteenth judicial day, Thursday, April 18, 1889. No. 39. United States vs. Titus Thompson (an Indian).

Now, at this time, the court renders its decision upon the demurrer heretofore submitted and sustains the demurrer and orders the prisoner discharged.

I hereby certify that the following is a true and correct copy of the proceedings in the trial of the United States vs. Titus Thompson, an Indian, in the two case tried this April term, 1889, so far as the appointment of Philip Tillinghast, esq., to defend said prisoner is concerned, of the verdict, and of the judge's decision upon the demurrer to the second indictment.

I further certify that the entries above, with the notes, were the proceedings on those days.

Attest my hand and the seal of the district court of the first judicial district of Idaho Territory, affixed this 18th day of April, A. D., 1889.

[SEAL.] F. H. GRIERSON, Clerk.

I hereby certify that the above statement of the proceedings in the above entitled cases are correct, and that the services of Philip Tillinghast were performed as therein stated.

The United States of America, to W. C. Perry, United States attorney for the district of Kansas, Dr., for services in the action lately pending in the circuit court of the United States for the district of Kansas, entitled "In the matter of Dorothea Dohrendorf and August Dohrendorf," being an application by the said Dorothea Dohrendorf, the mother of August Dohrendorf, a military prisoner at Fort Leavenworth, Kans., for a writ of habeas corpus to inquire into the cause of the restraint of his liberty by the authorities of said military prison.

This service was rendered pursuant to instructions of the Attorney-General of date February 15, 1889, a copy of which said instructions are attached hereto and marked Exhibit A.

This case presented a legal question requiring considerable labor and research to investigate, but I was somewhat familiar with one branch of it, owing to the recent argument in the Spencer case; my services were fairly, reasonably, and actually worth, including expenses and disbursements, the sum of $100.

UNITED STATES OF AMERICA, District of Kansas, ss:

W. C. Perry, being duly sworn according to law, says that the above and foregoing account is just and correct; that the services therein charged for were necessary and actually performed as therein stated, and that the same is due and unpaid.

W. C. PERRY.

Subscribed and sworn to before me this 30th day of March, 1889.

Clerk of the United States District Court, District of Kansas.

EXHIBIT U.

The United States of America to W. C. Perry, United States attorney for the district of Kansas, Dr., for services in the suit lately pending in the district court of the United States for the district of Kansas, entitled "In the matter of Charles E. Spencer," being an application by said Charles E. Spencer, a military prisoner at Fort Leavenworth, Kans., for a writ of habeas corpus to inquire into the cause of the restraint of his liberty by the authorities of said military prison.

This service was rendered pursuant to instructions of the Attorney-General of date January 28, 1889, a copy of said instructions being hereto attached and marked Exhibit A.

This case presented a question of law which required a very considerable amount of labor and research to properly investigate, and a full argument was had before the court, resulting in the prisoner being remanded to custody. My services are fairly, reasonably, and actually worth, including expenses and disbursements, the sum of $150.

UNITED STATES of AMERICA, District of Kansas, ss:

W. C. Perry, being duly sworn according to law, says that the above and foregoing account is just and correct; that the services therein charged for were necessarily and actually performed as therein stated, and that the same is due and unpaid.

EXHIBIT V.

The United States to W. C. Perry, United States attorney for the district of Kansas, Dr.

For services in the suit lately pending in the district court of Pawnee County, State of Kansas, wherein P. V. Hughes was plaintiff and Clark S. Rowe was defendant, as instructed by a letter from the Attorney-General of date April 11, 1888, a copy of which is hereto attached in order that the matter may be more fully understood; and a copy of the letter referred to in the letter of the Attorney-General from the Secretary of the Interior, is also hereto attached. This was a suit instituted by C. P. Hughes against Clark S. Rowe to recover the sum of $10,000 damages for slander and defamation of character. From June 8 to June 30, 1889 ..... $60.00

EXHIBIT V.

The United States of America, to W. C. Perry, United States attorney for the district of Kansas, Dr., for services in the suit lately pending in the district court of Pawnee County, State of Kansas, wherein P. C. Hughes was plaintiff and Clark S. Rowe was defendant, as instructed by a letter from the Attorney-General of date April 11, 1888, a copy of which is hereto attached in order that the matter may be more fully understood; and a copy of the letter referred to in the letter of the Attorney-General from the Secretary of the Interior, is also hereto attached.

This was a suit instituted by P. C. Hughes against Clark S. Rowe to recover the sum of $10,000 for slander and defamation of character.

An injunctional order was also obtained by the plaintiff in said suit against the defendant restraining the said defendant from selling certain real estate owned by him in Kansas. I conferred and consulted with Clark S. Rowe and fully prepared his defense, and also prepared a motion for the dissolution of the injunctional order above adverted to, and made the necessary preparation to present such motion to the court; and I also prepared the necessary petition and bond for removal of such suit into the circuit court of the United States, and went to Larned to present such application to the court, whereupon the plaintiff in the suit dismissed his action.

There was also a criminal prosecution commenced against said Clark S. Rowe by said P. C. Hughes before Robert Lyle, a justice of the peace at Larned, Kans., wherein said Clark S. Rowe was charged with perjury, in which the defendant had a preliminary examination before said justice, was held for trial and gave bond for his appearance before the grand jury for Pawnee County, which body, however, ignored the charge. In this matter I did nothing more than to advise with Rowe and assist him in the preparation of his defense. Both these suits were the outgrowth of official conduct of Clark S. Rowe as special agent of the General Land Office, and I appeared in them and defended said special agent as instructed by the Attorney-General. My services, including reimbursement of expenses, are reasonably worth $300.

UNITED STATES OF AMERICA, District of Kansas, ss:

M. C. ELSTNER.

Sworn to and subscribed before me this 8th day of March, A. D. 1889.

[SEAL.] J. B. BEATTIE, Clerk.

The ATTORNEY-GENERAL:

The assistance rendered by Mr. Elstner in the preparation and trial of the cases stated in this account was most able and of great benefit to the public service. The labors devolved upon him were arduous and continuous, and in view of the further fact that his acceptance of Government employment at the particular time caused him to miss a term of the State courts, in which he has a large and lucrative practice, which he had to abandon, to his great loss, I regard the charges he presents as extremely reasonable, and I approve the foregoing account and recommend that it be paid in full.

Respectfully submitted.

MONTFORT S. JONES,
United States Attorney, Western District Louisiana.

SHREVEPORT, LA., March 9, 1889.

EXHIBIT X.

WASHINGTON, D. C., April 12, 1889.

The ATTORNEY-GENERAL:

SIR: I have the honor to hand you inclosed an account for services rendered by the direction of the Attorney-General by me while filling the office of attorney of the United States for this district, in behalf of William R. Smith, Superintendent of the Botanical Gardens in this city, who is the defendant in a suit originally brought against him by the heirs of Daniel Carroll, of Duddington, and revived and continued by George F. Appleby, trustee under the will of the last survivor of such heirs.

The account amounts to the sum of $250, and has been duly approved by the court. I respectfully request that you will direct its payment from the proper appropriation.

I have delayed presenting this account until the case should be decided. The decision in favor of the defendant was only recently announced.

Very respectfully,

A. S. WORTHINGTON,
Late United States Attorney for District of Columbia.

The United States of America to Augustin S. Worthington, Dr.

Oct. 1 to Dec. 27, 1887.	To professional services rendered in preparing for trial, upon agreed statement of facts, a copy of which is annexed hereto, the case of George F. Appleby, trustee, vs. William R. Smith, at law, No. 18326, supreme court, District of Columbia..	$250.00

DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA, County of Washington, ss:

Augustus S. Worthington, late attorney of the United States in and for the District of Columbia, being duly sworn, says that the above account is true and just; that the services therein charged were actually and necessarily rendered by him, and that he has not been paid for the same or any part thereof.

AUGUSTUS S. WORTHINGTON,
Late Attorney of the United States for the District of Columbia.

Subscribed and sworn to before me this 11th day of April, 1889.

R. J. MEIGS, Clerk,
By W. E. WILLIAMS, Assistant Clerk.

In the supreme court of the District of Columbia. In general term.

Whereas Augustus S. Worthington, late attorney of the United States in and for the District of Columbia, has rendered to this court an account of his fees for professional services in preparing for trial, on an agreed statement of facts, the case of George F. Appleby, trustee, vs. William R. Smith, at law No. 18336, supreme court, District of Columbia, and in presence of Randolph Coyle, assistant attorney of the United States in and for the District of Columbia, has proved on oath to the satisfaction of this court that the services therein charged have been actually and necessarily performed as therein stated; and whereas said charges appear to be just and according to law, it is hereby ordered that the said account, amounting to the sum of $250, be, and the same is, approved by the court this 12th day of April, 1889.

CHARLES P. JAMES, Justice.

Supreme court, District of Columbia. In general term, April, 1888. George F. Appleby, trustee, vs. William R. Smith, defendant. Law, No. 18336.

Record for general term—Original declaration.

1. The plaintiffs sue the defendant to recover the possession of all that irregularly-shaped parcel of land situated in the city of Washington and District of Columbia, and known as square west of square numbered 576, in said city, and bounded by Maryland avenue, Second street, South B street, and Canal street, containing 26,000 square feet of ground, more or less, the right to the possession, use and occupation of which the plaintiffs claim, and of which they were lawfully in possession heretofore, to wit, on the 1st day of January, 1871, when the defendant unlawfully entered upon the said premises and unlawfully ejected the plaintiffs therefrom, and which he unjustly detains from the plaintiff; and the plaintiffs claim possession of the said described premises, together with the improvements, appurtenances, and costs of suit.

2. The plaintiffs, further suing the defendant to recover money from the defendant, complain and aver that the said defendant, on the said 1st day of January, 1871, or about that time, expelled and ejected the plaintiffs from the possession, use, and occupation of the premises heretofore mentioned and described, and still unlawfully keeps them expelled and ejected, and that the said defendant since about the said 1st day of January, 1871, has had and received, and still does receive, the whole issue and profits of the said parcel of land, and has appropriated them to his own use and benefit, and still does so appropriate them to his own use and advantage, and has deprived, and still does unlawfully deprive, the plaintiffs of all the rents, issues, and profits of the said property, to the injury and damage of the plaintiffs in the sum of $20,000, wherefore they bring this suit.

And the plaintiffs claim as follows, to wit:

First. The possession of the said premises; and Second. Judgment against the defendant for the sum of $20,000 for the use and occupation of the said premises, together with the costs of this suit.

ENOCH TOTTEN,
Attorney for Plaintiff.

The defendant is to plead hereto on or before the first special term occurring twenty days after the service hereof; otherwise, judgment.

ENOCH TOTTEN,
Attorney for Plaintiff.

[Filed April 16, 1883. R. J. Meigs, clerk.]

In the supreme court of the District of Columbia. Maria Fitzhugh, plaintiff, vs. William R. Smith, defendant. At law, No. 18366.

Pleas of defendant.

And the said William R. Smith, by George B. Corkhill, his attorney, comes and defends the force and injury, when, etc.; and says that he is not guilty of the said supposed trespasses and ejectment above laid to his charge, or any part thereof, in manner and form as the said plaintiff hath above thereof complained against him; and of this the said defendant puts himself upon the country.

2. And for a further plea in this behalf as to such of the said supposed trespasses in the second count of the said declaration mentioned as are therein alleged to have been committed between the 1st day of January, A. D. 1871, and the 12th day of September, A. D. 1874, the said defendant saith that the said plaintiff ought not to have or maintain her aforesaid action thereof against him, because he saith that he was not guilty of the said several supposed trespasses or any or either of them in manner and form as the said plaintiff hath above thereof complained against him at any time within three years next before the commencement of this suit, and this the said defendant is ready to verify.

GEORGE B. CORKHILL,
Attorney for Defendant.

[Filed April 18, 1883. R. J. Meigs, clerk.]

In the supreme court of the District of Columbia. Fitzhugh vs. Smith. At law, No. 18366.

Issue and replication.

The plaintiff joins issue with the defendant on the defendant's first plea.

And to the defendant's second plea, the plaintiff says that the defendant did commit said trespasses, as in the declaration alleged, within three years before the commencement of this suit.

ENOCH TOTTEN,
Attorney for Plaintiff.

In the supreme court of the District of Columbia. George F. Appleby, plaintiff, vs. William R. Smith, defendant. At law, No. 18,366.

Agreed statement of facts.

It is hereby stipulated and agreed that a jury be waived, and that the following are the facts in this case, and that this statement thereof may be taken as such, and may be treated as in the nature of a special verdict, and may be spread upon the record at large and be taken as a part thereof:

First. Daniel Carroll, of Duddington, on and before the 30th day of March, A. D. 1791, was seized in fee-simple and possessed of a tract of land now constituting a part of the city of Washington, of which the parcel mentioned and described in the declaration in this cause was a part.

Second. That under date January 22, 1791, the President of the United States for the time being duly appointed the said Daniel Carroll, together with David Stuart and Thomas Johnson, "commissioners for surveying the district of territory accepted * * * for the permanent seat of the Government of the United States and for performing such other offices as by law are directed." Vacancies in the board occurring from time to time by death or resignation were duly filled, and the board of three commissioners continued to exist and discharge its official functions until abolished by a law taking effect June 2, 1802, and were succeeded by the "superintendent of the city of Washington," who was in turn succeeded by the "commissioner of public buildings and grounds," the duties of the last-named officer being ultimately devolved on the Chief of Engineers of the United States Army.

Third. In contemplation of the laying off of the "Federal city," afterwards known as the city of Washington, upon their lands, the said Daniel Carroll and eighteen others, proprietors of the land upon which the said city was about to be laid off, on the 30th day of March, A. D. 1791, entered into an agreement in writing, under seal, with each other, a copy of which said agreement is filed herewith, marked Exhibit A, and made part hereof.

Fourth. In pursuance of the said agreement the said Daniel Carroll, by deed bearing date June 28, 1791, and acknowledged June 29, 1791, conveyed to Thomas Beall of George and John Mackall Gantt all of the land belonging to the grantor within the boundaries of the proposed Federal city, which boundaries embraced the parcel of land described in the declaration herein, upon certain trusts in said deed expressed, a copy of which said deed is filed herewith, marked Exhibit B, and made part hereof.

Fifth. That during the year 1791 President Washington employed one Pierre l'Enfant, a French engineer, to prepare a plan of the proposed Federal city, which was duly done (a copy of this map being herewith filed, marked Exhibit C, and made part hereof); but differences of opinion having arisen between the engineer on the one part and the President and commissioners on the other, he left the city, carrying with him his original plan. L'Enfant's connection with the affairs of the Federal city then ceased.

Sixth. Thereupon Andrew Ellicott was duly appointed chief surveyor of the Federal city, and was instructed by President Washington to prepare a complete plan for the Federal city, and to have the same engraved and published. This Ellicott accordingly did, taking the plan of L'Enfant as a substantial guide. Controversies having arisen between Samuel Davidson, one of the original proprietors of land adjacent to the President's square, and the commissioners of the Federal city concerning deviations from the L'Enfant plan, which controversies were by the commissioners referred to President Washington for determination, the latter, under date February 20, 1797, addressed a letter to the commissioners, a copy of which is hereto annexed, marked Exhibit D, and made part hereof. Copy of Ellicott's "Engraved Plan," as it became to be designated, is hereto annexed, marked Exhibit D^2, and made part hereof.

Seventh. Under date Philadelphia, March 2, 1797, President Washington addressed to Messrs. Beall and Gantt, the trustees under the deed from Carroll et al., a certain communication, a copy of which is herewith filed, marked Exhibit E, and made part hereof.

Eighth. Under date of July 23, 1798, John Adams, the then President of the United States, addressed to the said trustees a communication, a copy of which is hereto annexed, marked Exhibit F, and made part hereof. A copy of the map referred to in said communication of President Adams is hereto annexed, marked Exhibit G, and made part hereof.

Ninth. The parcel of land in controversy was not laid off into a square, parcel, or lot for building, on any one of the three plans hereinbefore referred to, nor is there any mention made thereof or allusion thereto in any of the divisions, settlements, or accounts between said Daniel Carroll, of Duddington, and the said United States, growing out of the matters and things contained in the deed of conveyance from said Daniel Carroll to said Beall and Gantt. The first published map of the city of Washington which we have been able to find upon which it appears laid down as a "square" is one prepared and published in the year 1870 by William Forsyth, who at that time filled no public office. "On this map the parcel in question is outlined, by what authority does not appear, and its dimensions marked. On later editions of this map this parcel is designated as "Square west of square 576." A copy of a small section of said map, on an enlarged scale, is hereto annexed, marked Exhibit H, and made part hereof.

Tenth. The parcel in controversy is situated in a locality which is low, was formerly swampy and subject to overflow in wet weather, and was covered with a thick growth of underbrush. In consequence of the digging and, from time to time, deepening of the Washington canal adjacent thereto, these low grounds, in 1827 and thereafter, were gradually drained, and being used as a dumping-ground, by degrees were converted into firm land.

Eleventh. Daniel Carroll, of Duddington, died during the year 1849, without having inclosed the said parcel or any part thereof, but during the month of November, 1857, his executrices caused a post-and-rail fence to be erected around said parcel, whereupon, under date February 17, 1858, the then commissioner of public buildings and grounds addressed a communication to said executrices, which was received by them, notifying them to remove said fence, a copy of which said communication is herewith filed, marked Exhibit I, and made part hereof. So far as is known, this fence was not removed, either by the said executrices or the United States, but was carried off piece-meal by trespassers and in the course of a year or so entirely disappeared.

Twelfth. On the 3d day of March, A. D. 1873, the Congress of the United States made an appropriation "for repairs to buildings, improvements to heating apparatus and walks, and for grading and inclosing square on Maryland avenue, opposite the Botanical Garden, bounded by Second, Third, and B streets, and for erecting thereon houses for storing pots, soil, coal, and plants" (17 Statutes, 519), and the defendant being at that time, as he had been for many years prior thereto aud now is, the superintendent of the Botanical Gardens, in pursuance of this appropriation, and under the direction of the Congressional Joint Committee of the Library, took and still holds possession as the agent of the United States, and for the public purpose indicated, of the land described by the act quoted, which embraced the parcel in controvery in this case, as well as portions of Canal street and a portion of the bed of the old Washington canal, which at this time was being filled up and converted into a sewer as provided by the act of Congress of July 15, 1870 (16 Statutes at Large, 309). A plat showing the lines of the tract actually inclosed by the defendant as agent of the United States, and indicating by dotted lines the part thereof claimed by the plaintiff, is herewith filed, marked Exhibit K, and made part hereof.

Thirteenth. The parcel of land in controvery contains 25,473 square feet of ground, and has a frontage of 212.80 feet on Maryland avenue, with a large frontage on Second street and on Canal street, and a small frontage on South B street, as indicated on Exhibit H.

Fourteenth. The parcel of land in controversy has never been assessed as private property for taxation by the authorities of the city of Washington or of the District of Columbia.

Fifteenth. The said Daniel Carroll, of Duddington, departed this life on the 9th day of May, A. D. 1849; and the original plaintiffs herein, Ann C. Carroll and Maria C. Fitzhugh, were his children, and at the time of the commencement of this action were invested with such title as the said Daniel Carroll, of Duddington, had in said parcel of ground, said original plaintiffs died pending this action, and their said title has become vested in George F. Appleby, trustee, and he has been regularly substituted as plaintiff in this cause, in their place and stead.

If the court shall be of the opinion, upon the fore oing facts, that the plaintiff is entitled to recover, then judgment shall be rendered for the plaintiff, otherwise for the defendant.

ENOCH TOTTEN,
Attorney for Plaintiff.
A. S. WORTHINGTON,
Attorney for Defendant.

In the supreme court of the District of Columbia. In General Term. George F. Appleby, trustee, plaintiff, vs. William R. Smith, defendant. Law—No. 18366.

Exhibits referred to in and filed December 27, 1887, with agreed statement of facts.

[Exhibit A.]

We, the subscribers, in consideration of the great benefits we expect to derive from having the Federal city laid off upon our lands, do hereby agree and bind ourselves, heirs, executors, and administrators, to convey in trust to the President of the United States, or commissioners, or such persons as he shall appoint, by good and sufficient deeds in fee-simple, the whole of our respective land which he may think proper to include within the lines of the Federal city, for the purpose and on the conditions following:

The President shall have the sole power of directing the Federal city to be laid off in what manner he pleases. He may retain any number of squares he may think proper for any public improvement or other public uses, and the lots only which shall be laid off shall be joint property between the trustees on behalf of the public, and equally divided between the public and the individuals as soon as may be after the city shall be laid off.

For the streets the proprietors shall receive no compensation, but for the squares or lands in any form which shall be taken for public buildings or any kind of public improvements or uses, the proprietors whose land shall be taken shall receive at the rate of £25 per acre, to be paid by the public.

The whole wood on the lands shall be the property of the proprietors, and should any be desired by the President to be reserved or left standing, the same shall be paid for by the public at a just and reasonable valuation, exclusive of the £25 per acre to be paid for the land on which the same shall remain.

Each proprietor shall retain the full possession and use of his land until the same shall be sold and occupied by the purchase of the lots laid out thereupon, and in all cases where the public arrangements as the streets, lots, etc., will admit of it, each proprietor shall possess his buildings and other improvements and graveyards, paying to the public only one-half the present estimate value of the land on which the same shall be, or £12 10*s.* per acre; but in cases where the arrangements of the streets, lots, squares, etc., will not admit of this, and it shall become necessary to remove such buildings, etc., the proprietors of the same shall be paid the reasonable value thereof by the public.

Nothing herein contained shall affect the lots any of the parties to this agreement may hold in the towns of Hamburgh or Carrollsburgh.

In witness whereof, we have hereunto set our hand sand seals this 30th day of March, in the year of our Lord 1791.

DANIEL CARROLL, of Duddington. [SEAL.]
And 18 others.

At the request of Thomas Beall, of Geo., and John M. Gant the following deed was recorded this 5th of January, 1792, to wit:

This indenture, made this twenty-eighth day of June, in the year of our Lord seventeen hundred and ninety-one, between Daniel Carroll, of Duddington, of the State of Maryland, of the one part, and Thomas Beall and John Mackall Gant, of the State of Maryland, of the other part, witnesseth, that the said Daniel Carroll, of Duddington, for and in consideration of five shillings to him in hand paid by the said Thomas Beall and John Mackall Gantt before the sealing and delivery of these presents, the receipt whereof he doth hereby acknowledge, and thereof doth acquit the said Thomas Beall and John Mackall Gantt, their executors and administrators, and also for and in consideration of the uses and trusts hereinafter mentioned to be performed by the said Thomas Beall and John Mackall Gantt, and the survivor of them, and the heirs of such survivor, according to the true intent and meaning thereof, hath granted, bargained, sold, aliened, released, and confirmed, and by these presents doth grant, bargain, sell, alien, release, and confirm unto the said Thomas Beall and John Mackall Gantt, the survivor of them, and the heirs of such survivor, all the lands of him, the said Daniel Carroll, of Duddington, lying and being within the following limits, boundaries, and lines, to wit: Beginning on the east side of Rock Creek at a stone standing in the middle of the road leading from Georgetown to Bladensburg; thence along the middle of the said road to a stone standing on the east side of the Reedy Branch of Goose Creek; thence southeasterly, making an angle of sixty-one degrees and twenty minutes with the meridian, to a stone standing in the road leading from Bladensburg to the Eastern Branch Ferry; thence south to a stone eighty poles north of the east and west line already drawn from the mouth of Goose Creek to the Eastern Branch; then east parallel to the said east and west line to the Eastern Branch; then with the waters of the Eastern Branch, Potomac River, and Rock Creek to the beginning, with their appurtenances, except all and every lot and lots of which the said Daniel Carroll, of Duddington, is seized, or to which he is entitled, lying in Carrollsburgh or Hamburgh, to have and to hold the hereby bargained and sold lands, with their appurtenances, to the said Thomas Beall and John Mackall Gantt, and the survivor of them, and the heirs of such survivor, forever, to and for the special trusts following, and none other, that is to say, that all the said lands hereby bargained and sold, or such part thereof as may be thought necessary or proper, be laid out, together with other lands within the said limits, for a Federal city, with such streets, squares, parcels, and lots as the President of the United States for the time being shall approve; and the said Thomas Beall and John Mackall Gantt, or the survivor of them, or the heirs of such survivor, shall convey to the commissioners for the time being appointed, by virtue of the act of Congress entitled "An act for establishing the temporary and permanent seat of the Government of the United States," and their successors, for the use of the United States forever, all the said streets, and such of the said squares, parcels, and lots as the President shall deem proper for the use of the United States, and that as to the residue of the lots into which the said lands hereby bargained and sold shall have been laid off and divided, that a fair and equal division shall be made of them; and if no other division shall be agreed on by consent of the said Daniel Carroll, of Duddington, and the commissioners for the time being, then such residue of the said lots shall be divided, every other lot alternate to the said Daniel Carroll, of Duddington; and it shall, in that event, be determined by lot whether the said Daniel Carroll, of Duddington, shall begin with the lot of the lowest number laid out on the said land, or the following number; and all the lots which may in any manner be divided or assigned to the said Daniel Carroll, of Duddington, shall thereupon, together with any part of the said bargained and sold land, if any, which shall not have been laid out in the said city, be conveyed by the said Thomas Beall and John Mackall Gantt, or the survivor of them, or the heirs of such survivor, to him, the said Daniel Carroll, of Duddington, his heirs and assigns, and that the said other lots shall and may be sold at such time or times, in such manner and on such terms and conditions as the President of the United States for the time being shall direct; and that the said Thomas Beall and John Mackall Gantt, or the survivor of them, or the heirs of such survivor, will, on the order or direction of the President, convey all the said lots so sold and ordered to be conveyed to the respective purchasers in fee-simple, according to the terms and conditions of such purchasers, and the produce of the sales of the said lots, when sold as aforesaid, shall, in the first place, be applied to the payment of money to the said Daniel Carroll, of Duddington, his executors, administrators, or assigns, for all the part of the land hereby bargained and sold which shall have been laid off in lots, squares, or parcels, and appropriated as aforesaid to the use of the United States, at the rate of twenty-five pounds per acre, being so paid or in any other manner satisfied, that then the produce of the same sales, or what thereof may remain as aforesaid, in money or securities of any kind, shall be paid, assigned, transferred, and delivered over to the President for the time being as a grant of money, and to be applied for the purposes and according to the act of Congress aforesaid, but the same conveyance to the said Daniel Carroll, of Duddington, his heirs or assigns, as well the conveyances to the purchasers, shall be on, and subject to, such terms and conditions as shall be thought reasonable by the President for the time being for regulating the materials and the manner of the buildings and improvements on the lots generally in the city, or in particular streets or parts thereof, for common convenience, safety, and order, provided such terms and conditions be declared before the sale of any of the said lots under the direction of the President, and in trust further and on the agreement that he, the said Daniel Carroll, of Duddington, his heirs and assigns, shall and may continue his possession and occupation of the said land hereby bargained and sold at his and their will and pleasure until the same shall be occupied under the said appropriations, for the use of the United States as aforesaid, or by purchasers; and when any lots or parcels shall be occupied under purchase or appropriation as aforesaid, then, and not till then, shall the said Daniel Carroll, of Duddington, relinquish his occupation thereof, and in trust also as to the trees, timber, and wood on the premises that he, the said Daniel Carroll, of Duddington, his heirs or assigns, may freely cut down, take, and use the same as his and their property, except such of the trees and wood growing as the President or commissioners aforesaid may judge proper and give notice shall be left for ornaments, for which the just and reasonable value shall be paid to the said Daniel Carroll, of Duddington, his executors, administrators, or assigns, exclusive of the £25 per acre for the land; and in case the arrangements of the streets, lots, and the like will conveniently admit of it, he, the said Daniel Carroll, of Duddington, his heirs and assigns, shall, if he so desires it, possess and retain his buildings and grave-yard, if any, on the hereby bargained and sold lands, paying to the President at the rate £12 10*s.* per acre of the land so retained because of such buildings and grave-yards, to be applied as aforesaid; and the same shall be thereupon conveyed to the said Daniel Carroll, of Duddington, his heirs and assigns, with his lots; but if the arrangements of the streets, lots, and the like will not conveniently admit of such retention, and it shall become necessary to remove such buildings, then the said Daniel Carroll, of Duddington, his executors, administrators, or assigns, shall be paid the reasonable value thereof in the same manner as squares or other ground appropriated for the use of the United States are to be paid for; and because it may so happen that by the deaths or removals of the said Thomas Beall and John Mackall Gantt, or from other causes, difficulties may occur in fully perfecting the said trust by executing all the said conveyances if no eventual provision is made, it is therefore agreed and covenanted between all the said parties that the said Thomas Beall and John Mackall Gantt, or either of them, or the heirs of either of them, lawfully may, and that they at any time, at the request of the President of the United States for the time being will, convey all or any of the said lands hereby bargained and sold which shall not then have been conveyed in execution of the trusts aforesaid to such person or persons as he shall appoint, in fee-simple, subject to the trusts then remaining to be executed, and to the end that the same may be perfected; and it is further granted and agreed between all the said parties, and each of the said parties doth for himself, respectively, and his heirs, covenant and grant to and with the others of them that he and they shall and will, if required by the President of the United States for the time being, join in and execute any further deed or deeds for carrying into effect the trusts, purposes, and true intent of this present deed.

In witness whereof the parties to these presents have hereunto interchangeably set their hands and affixed their seals the day and year first above written.

DAN. JENIFER, Jun.

On the 29th day of June, 1791, came before me, one of the judges of the general court, the within-named Daniel Carroll, of Duddington, and acknowledged the within and foregoing instrument of writing to be his act and deed, and on the same day and year came also before me Ann, the wife of the said Daniel Carroll, of Duddington; and she, being by me privately examined apart from and out of the hearing of her said husband, did release and relinquish all her right, title, and interest of dower in the within bargained and sold land and appurtenances, and she declared that she made such release of her dower and this her acknowledgment voluntarily and freely, without being induced thereto by fears or threats of ill-usage from her said husband, or through fear of his displeasure.

[Exhibit D 1.]

PHILADELPHIA, 20*th Feb.*, 1797.

GENTLEMEN: Reasons which I have frequently assigned have prevented me from acknowledging sooner the receipt of your letter of the 3rd instant relatively to the memorial of Mr. Davidson. Indeed, I have so often expressed my unwillingness to depart from the engraved plan in every instance where it could be avoided, that I have hoped no repetition of this sort would have been made to you by any of the proprietors.

Whether the area in front of the building intended for the President of the United States be circular, according to Major L'Enfant's plan, or square, as the engraved one represents, as immaterial in the abstract, or as it concerns the public and Mr. Davidson only; but if the gratification of that gentleman sets a principle afloat, and thereby opens a door to similar applications, it attaches an importance which may involve inextricable difficulties.

To what Mr. Davidson alludes in the second part of the following sentence: "I can venture to assert that numberless deviations were made by Major Ellicott from the original plan, and I have reason to believe that many have been made since," you, much better than I, can explain. That many alterations have been made from Major L'Enfant's plan by Major Ellicott (with the approbation of the Executive) is not denied. That some were deemed essential, is avowed; and had it not been for the materials which he happened to possess, 'tis probable no engraving from Major L'Enfant's draught would ever have been exhibited to the public; for after the disagreement which took place between him and the late commissioners, his obstinacy threw every difficulty it could in the way of its accomplishment.

To this summary may be added, that Mr. Davidson is mistaken if he supposes that the transmission of Major L'Enfant's plan of the city to Congress was the completion thereof. So far from it, it will appear by the message which accompanied the same that it was given as matter of information, to show what state the business was in, and the return of it requested. That neither House of Congress passed any act consequent thereupon. That it remained as before, under the control of the Executive. That afterwards several errors were discovered and corrected, many alterations made, and the appropriations (except as to the Capitol and President's house) struck out under that auhority, before it was sent to the engravers, intending that work, and the promulgation thereof, were to give it the final and regulating stamp.

I have been thus particular to show that Mr. Davidson is not treading on solid ground, or, in other words, that he is claiming, as a matter of right, what can only be yielded on the principle of harmony, or for mutual benefit; and therefore it only remains to be repeated, that if the proposed alteration would have a tendency towards inviting applications of a similar nature, I shall be decidedly against the measure. If, on the other hand, the case is singular, and no consequences would be involved in the acquiescence, as it is immaterial whether the area is semicircle or square, as contention may be avoided and both parties in a pecuniary point of view benefited, I leave the question, under the provisos before mentioned, to your own decision, as you must have a more comprehensive view of circumstances than I can acquire.

The other part of Mr. Davidson's memorial is yet more extraordinary, for if the proprietors, in consideration of having the permanent seat of the Government established among them, yielded a portion of their property for public uses, shall afterwards take upon themselves to decide what shall not be done with it, they may, by the same parity of reason, direct the uses to which the squares shall be applied. This is too absurd.

With esteem and regard, I am, gentlemen,

Y'r obedient serv't,
GO. WASHINGTON.

COMMRS. OF THE CITY OF WASHINGTON.

P. S.—I am informed that Mr. Hadfield is inquiring in this city for carvers. I earnestly recommend that all carving not absolutely necessary to preserve consistency may be avoided, as well to save time and expense as because I believe it is not so much the taste now as formerly.

[EXHIBIT F.]

John Adams, President of the United States of America, to Thomas Beall, of George, and John M. Gantt, trustees.

Whereas George Washington, late President of the United States, by his act bearing date the 2d of March, 1797, did request you, the said Thomas Beall, of George, and John M. Gantt, to convey all the streets of the city of Washington as they were laid out and delineated in the plan of the said city mentioned to be thereto annexed, and also several squares, parcels, and lots of ground appropriated to the use of the United States, particularly described in the said act, to Gustavus Scott, William Thornton, and Alexander White, commissioners appointed under the act of Congress entitled "An act for establishing the temporary and permanent seat of the Government of the United States," the annexing of which plan was at that time omitted:

Now, know ye, that I have caused the said plan to be annexed to the said act of the late President of the United States and to this writing; and I do hereby request you, the said Thomas Beall, of George, and John M. Gantt, to convey all the streets in the said city of Washington as they are laid out in the plan of the said city of Washington hereto annexed, and all the squares, parcels, and lots of ground described in the said act of the late President of the United States as public appropriations, to the said Gustavus Scott, William Thornton, and Alexander White, and their successors in office as commissioners aforesaid, to the use of the United States forever, according to the tenor of the act of Congress aforesaid.

Given under my hand and the seal of the United States this twenty-third day of July, in the year of our Lord one thousand seven hundred and ninety-eight.

[U. S. SEAL.] JOHN ADAMS.

By the President:
TIMOTHY PICKERING, Sec. State.

Grosvenor Lowrey, being duly sworn, says: The accompanying account against the Department of Justice for professional services and disbursements in the case of the United States vs. The American Bell Telephone Company, both bills being dated June 27, 1887, are true and correct in all respects.

The account is made out under employment of February 3, 1886; the times charged were actually and necessarily employed in investigating the matters embraced in the terms of my employment; the travel, correspondence, telegrams, etc., were necessary to the same. The gross sum charged, being $911.20, is justly due, and no part thereof has been paid; and all available vouchers for outlays and disbursements are secured and annexed to the original bill, of which the annexed is a duplicate, said bill being said to be lost.

W. W. BARBER,
Attorney for Defendants.

WILKESBORO, N. C., May 10, 1889.

SIR: Your petitioners would respectfully represent that at spring term, 1888, of Wilkes (North Carolina) superior court, they, together with Deputy Collectors Church and Rousseau, were sued by B. G. Dula for $10,000 damages. That said suit was removed to the United States circuit court at Statesville, N. C., and was tried at April term, 1889, of said court, when judgment was rendered in favor of defendants. That after said cause was removed to the United States circuit court an order was made by the Department of Justice for our defense, etc., a like order having also been made for the defense of the deputy collectors by the proper authorities.

That as soon as said suit was instituted the defendants employed W. W. Barber, an attorney at law in Wilkesboro, N. C., to prepare their defense. That it was absolutely necessary to employ counsel, else judgment would have been taken at said return of the superior court of Wilkes County by default, for want of an answer. That their attorney advised them that as this suit was brought for alleged wrongs done in the discharge of their official duty, that they should remove the same to the United States circuit court, which was done through their attorney.

That they, your petitioners, paid their attorney, W. W. Barber $75, a receipt for which is hereto attached.

This for services rendered while cause was in the State courts.

Wherefore your petitioners would most respectfully beg that they be reimbursed to the amount of $75 paid their attorney for the services above set forth.

J. P. GILREATH.

EXHIBIT No. 8.

District court for Yakima County, United States of America.

Robert H. Milroy, as United States Indian agent for the Yakima Agency, and Wyniar Stylux, Benson, Soliom, Indians, etc., plaintiffs, vs. Frank Taylor, defendant.

Complaint filed July 2, 1884. Temporary restraining order served July 11, 1884. Order for same signed by judge July 11, 1884. Demurrer and motion to strike from complaint filed October 11, 1884, and argued and determined at October term, 1884. Answer filed December 15, 1884. Trial had at May term, 1885, and taken under advisement and decided adversely to plaintiffs. Judgment of dismissal entered. Appeal to July term, 1886, of Territorial supreme court; not heard at that time owing to sickness of chief-justice. Argued at January term, 1887. Judgment of district court reversed and cause remanded for further proceedings. Trial in district court between the 18th and 21st of October, 1887, pursuant to above mandate, with judgment October 21, 1887, and decree substantially as prayed, except the Indians are limited in the extent of land along the Columbia River, as indicated in copy of decree.

More than one hundred days' actual service were given to this case, for which I charge $2,500. The time given in each of the years is as follows: In 1884, thirty days; in 1885, thirty days; in 1886, twenty days; and in 1887, twenty days; total, one hundred days, at $25 per day—$2,500.

EXHIBIT 5.

WASHINGTON TERRITORY, Yakima County:

In the district court of the second judicial district of Washington Territory, holding terms at Yakima City, in and for Yakima County.

United States of America, Robert H. Milroy, as United States Indian agent for the Yakima Agency, and Wyniar, Stylux, Benson, Soliom, Indians, etc., plaintiffs, vs. Frank Taylor, defendant.

Said plaintiffs allege for cause of action herein:

(1) That Robert H. Milroy is the duly appointed and acting Indian agent of said United States of and for the Yakima Indian Agency of said United States, and as such is by said United States placed in charge of the Yakima Nation or tribe of Indians, with all the duties and responsibilities pertaining to the office of a United States Indian agent or subagent in like cases.

(2) That said plaintiff Wyniar is an Indian belonging to the said Yakima Nation, or tribe of Indians, and is about the age of thirty-five years.

(3) That said Stylux is also an Indian of said Yakima Nation, and of the age of fifty years.

(4) That said Benson is also an Indian of the Yakima Nation, and of the age of fifty-five years.

(5) That said Soliom is also an Indian of the said Yakima Nation, or tribe, and of the age of forty years.

(6) That each of said Indians resides with his said tribe or nation, and is under the control of said United States Indian agent.

(7) That said plaintiffs Wyniar, Stylux, Benson, and Soliom are Indians and members of the Yakima tribe of Indians, occupying the Yakima Indian Reservation, in Washington Territory.

(8) That from time immemorial until the 9th day of June, 1855, the said tribe of Yakima Indians owned and occupied, among other lands, all that portion of said Territory of Washington bounded on the east and south by the Columbia River, on the west by the main ridge of the Cascade Mountains, and on the north by what is now Kittitas County, in Washington Territory.

(9) That said Columbia River is and ever has been a great and navigable river, and that said river has heretofore and still annually affords abundant supplies of salmon.

(10) That for a great many generations last past the said tribe of Indians have depended largely upon said fish for their subsistence, and to many members of said tribe and their families throughout said time such fish have been and still are the chief article of food.

(11) That said fish enter said Columbia River from the ocean during the spring and return again during the autumn and early fall, and it has heretofore been and still is the custom of the members of said Indian tribe, during said period, to catch said fish at certain ancient fisheries on said river, not only for their current support, but also to cure and preserve the same for their subsistence until the following season.

(12) That said fish in passing up and down and along said river pursue, and for a time beyond the memory of man have pursued, certain defined and ascertained parts thereof, and have not been and are not to be found or caught in any other part thereof.

(13) That the principal and almost exclusive fishery for said fish along said river, where the same bounds of the country heretofore owned and occupied by said tribe as hereinbefore alleged, is situated at that point in said river commonly known as the Tumwater Fishery, the same being in front of and bounded by the west one-half of north west one-quarter and southeast one-quarter of the northeast one-quarter of section 25, and the east one half of northeast one-quarter of section 26; all in township 2 north, range 13 east, Willamette meridian, and in part within the same, in Klikitat County, Washington Territory.

(14) That continuously since long prior to the occupancy of any portion of that country by the white race, now constituting the State of Oregon and the Territory of Washington, to the 9th day of June, 1855, the said particularly-described fishery was owned and enjoyed exclusively by the members of the said Yakima tribe of Indians and other friendly Indians under the license of said tribe, with the free and unobstructed right of way to and from the same, together with the free and unrestrained use of the land adjacent to said fisheries for all proper and convenient occupancy of the same by said Indians as places of abode for themselves during the fishing season, and of pasturage for their horses, and for all other purposes connected with the catching and curing of said fish.

(15) That on the 9th day of June, 1855, a solemn treaty was duly entered into and concluded between the Yakima Nation or tribe of Indians and other confederated tribes, on the one part, at the treaty ground of Camp Stevens, of Walla Walla Valley, which was afterwards, on the 8th day of March, 1859, duly ratified by the Senate of the United States, and which was afterwards, on the 18th day of April, A. D. 1859, duly proclaimed by the President of the United States, wherein and whereby the said Yakima Nation ceded to the said United States large areas of valuable territory, including, among other lands, what now constitutes the county of Klikitat and county of Yakima, in said Territory, and including the said fisheries, reserving therefrom, however, among other things, rights, and privileges, that certain reserve commonly called the Yakima Indian Reservation.

(16) That in and by the terms of said treaty the exclusive right was permanently secured to said confederated bands o tribes of Indians of taking fish in all streams bordering upon or flowing through said reservation, while by the terms of said treaty the right in common to the said confederated tribes and bands and the citizens of Washington Territory was also permanently secured of taking fish at all usual and accustomed places in said country so ceded as aforesaid, and of erecting temporary buildings thereon for the curing of said fish, t gether with all other rights incident thereto and proper for the full enjoyment of the same.

(17) That at the time of concluding, ratifying, and proclaiming said treaty as aforesaid, the said fishery, known as the Tumwater Fishery aforesaid, along and adjacent to the said land described in said section 25, was being used and enjoyed by said Indians as hereinbefore set forth, as the parties to said treaty at all such times fully knew and understood, and which said use and enjoyment has ever since been continued until interrupted by said defendant, Frank Taylor, as hereinafter set forth.

(18) That afterwards and on the 1st day of June, 1884, the said defendant, Frank Taylor, unlawfully and forcibly took possession of the said ancient fishery at said Tumwater, hereinbefore more particularly described, and without any right or authority of law excluded said plaintiffs, Wyniar, Stylux, Benson, and Soliom, and all the members of said Yakima Indians therefrom, and then and there fenced up, obstructed, and inclosed all the approaches thereto, and has ever since and still does so continue unlawfully and forcibly to hold possession of said fishery and to fence up, obstruct, and inclose all the approaches thereto, wholly excluding said plaintiffs, Wyniar, Stylux, Benson, and Soliom, and all the members of said Yakima Indians therefrom, and to wholly deprive them of each and every of their rights thereto and in the enjoyment thereof, and has heretofore and still does unlawfully entirely prevent said Indians and each of them from taking any fish from said river, at said accustomed fishery, and is threatening to continue so to do.

(19) That there is no other place or fishery at which said plaintiffs Wyniar, Stylux, Benson, and Soliom and said Indians of the said Yakima tribe can obtain said salmon so readily and plentifully.

(20) That the said plaintiffs Wyniar, Stylux, Benson, and Soliom have for a great many years last past in common with other members of their tribe caught and cured salmon at said Tumwater Fishery for their individual subsistence and that of their families, and are each dependent on such fish for their food.

(21) That each of said plaintiffs, Indians, is without any plain or remedy at law, and unless the equitable power of this honorable court is interposed in their behalf the said Indian plaintiffs and large numbers of said tribe, and especially the old men and women and children, will be left without any means of subsistence for the approaching winter season.

(22) That said defendant resides on the Columbia River in said Klikitat County.

(23) That a great length of time would be consumed in giving notice of an application for a temporary restraining order in this case, during which time said Indians will be entirely deprived of catching fish, and that if they should be compelled to await the granting of such order, the most valuable part of their fishing season will be entirely lost to them and they can not afterwards catch fish requisite for their support as aforesaid; and therefore an emergency exists for the granting of a restraining order in the premises, without notice.

Wherefore plaintiffs pray that a temporary restraining order be at once issued by this court or the judge thereof forbidding the said defendant, his agents or servants, from in any wise obstructing or hindering the said plaintiffs, Indians, and each and all of the members of said Yakima Nation from freely going to and using and enjoying said fishery as heretofore they have done, without let or hinderance, and that said plaintiffs have a judgment and decree of this court making such restraining order perpetual, and that the rights of each and all of said Indians be decreed and adjudged to be perfect and uninterrupted in the free use and enjoyment of said Tumwater Fishery, in common with the citizens of Washington Territory, and that they and each of them have such other and further relief as equitably they are entitled to, and that the plaintiffs recover the costs of this suit from defendant.

JOHN B. ALLEN,
United States Attorney for Washington Territory and Attorney for said Plaintiffs.

STATEMENT.

I was instructed by United States Attorney-General, December 26, 1888, by telegram, to appear for and defend General D. S. Stanley and aid-de-camp, arrested at Austin, Tex., for carrying out instructions of War Department, etc.

Upon receipt of said telegram General Stanley and aid-de-camp had been released by the sheriff, but were still under charge, and wanted counsel as to their future course in the premises, whether to return to Austin to answer said charge and insist upon the execution of the transfer of the Government property and the ejectment of the trespasser, Sulider, and requested me to meet them at San Antonio. Whereupon I proceeded from Cuero to San Antonio, and, after a full investigation of the law and the facts of the case, advised them to desist from further effort to eject the trespasser.

I proceeded to San Antonio on the 27th day of December, A. D. 1888, and returned on 29th day of December, A. D. 1888, and reported my action to United States Attorney-General, as per my letter of that date.

I, Rud. Kleberg, do solemnly swear that the above account is just and correct, and that the services charged for were actually and necessarily performed and the expenses incurred as therein stated.

RUD. KLEBERG.

EXHIBIT No. 12.

Schedule of the times when the services in the annexed account were performed.

March 4, 1889. Argument before the chancellor at Dover on the application for a preliminary injunction.

March 13, 1889. Services rendered the commissioners in estimating the land damages to complainants under the act of assembly of Delaware.

April 1, 1889. Services rendered in the order of review or appeal obtained by Sallie G. Hall and Joseph W. Hall for the decision of the first commissioners under an order granted by the associate judge, etc., of Sussex County under said act of assembly.

July 8, 1889. Services in obtaining an order or final decree from the chancellor dismissing the restraining order.

Divers personal interviews during the months of February, March, April, May, and June with General W. F. Smith, United States agent, and his chief clerk. I can not give the exact dates and times, as I kept no record of them. In March or April (two I think it was) personal interviews with United States contractor McLane and his agent. Correspondence more or less continuously during the entire time. Several days in my office considering the case (at different times) as to the proper course to pursue.

This is all I can now give in detail. The case and its surroundings were attended with all the worry and labor which is usual in such cases.

I also had to make two personal applications to the State treasurer to pay the money on the second award. This was early in April. A question arose how it should be paid,

OFFICE OF UNITED STATES ATTORNEY, DISTRICT OF SOUTH CAROLINA.
Columbia, S. C., April 15, 1889.

The State of South Carolina vs. William H. Douglass (keeper of Bull's Bay light station). Two criminal prosecutions.

HON. W. H. H. MILLER,
Attorney-General United States, Washington, D. C.

SIR: On February 15, 1888, S. C. Rowan, Vice-Admiral U. S. Navy, chairman of the Light-House Board, addressed a communication to the Secretary of the Treasury "stating that by deed dated 6th" March, 1851, Charles Juguot conveyed to the United States a piece of land containing 10 acres, more or less, together with a right of way, this land being required as a light-house site, and being now occupied for the purpose of the Bull's Bay (South Carolina) light station. The land is situated on the eastern end of Onesican or Bull's Island, in the parish of Christ Church, South Carolina. Mr. William H. Douglass is the keeper of Bull's Bay light station, and recently legal proceedings have been commenced against him for trespass. * * * The Board therefore respectfully requests that the honorable the Attorney-General be asked to direct the United States attorney for the proper judicial district to defend Mr. Douglass in this case; and to this end, that he be instructed to put himself in communication with Commander B. P. Lamberton, U. S. Navy, inspector of the sixth light-house district, whose address is Adger's North Wharf, Charleston, S. C. On February 20,1 888, Hon. Charles S. Fairchild wrote the Attorney-General of the United States, transmitting a copy of the aforesaid communication of Vice-Admiral Rowan, U. S. Navy, chairman of the Light-House Board, and requesting that, "if not inconsistent with the public interests in his charge, he would cause instructions to be issued to the United States attorney for the proper judicial district, in pursuance of the desire of the Light-House Board."

On February 23, 1888, Hon. A. H. Garland, then Attorney-General of the United States, wrote me, United States attorney for the district of South Carolina, inclosing aforesaid letters of Vice-Admiral Rowan, U. S. Navy, chairman of the Light House Board, and the Secretary of the Treasury, and instructing me "to render Commander B. P. Lamberton, U. S. Navy, inspector of the sixth light-house district, such legal assistance as may be necessary for the defense of the trespass suit instituted against W. H. Douglass, keeper of Bull's Bay light station." Communication was immediately had with Commander Lamberton, and it was found that criminal process had been commenced against Douglass, the light-house keeper of Bull's Bay light station, on an affidavit of one Thomas J. Avinger before Jacob Williman, trial justice, December 28, 1887, for trespassing on his, Avinger's, lands, and for being a participator in killing and eating Avinger's hogs. On conference with Commander Lamberton and his assistant engineer, B. B. Smith, esq., who thought it best and in the interest of the Government so to do, preparation was made for the defense of Douglass on both charges. An indictment was handed out by the solicitor, W. St. Julien Jervey, the prosecuting attorney for the State, to the grand jury of Charleston County, who found on February 27, 1888, a true bill thereon against Douglass for larceny of Avinger's hogs. A continuance to the next term was attained for Douglass on account of the absence of his witnesses.

The principal persons interested for the prosecution were Avinger, between whom and Douglass trouble had arisen about the limits of the light-house site, culminating in a resurvey thereof on the part of the United States in 1887, with results of which Avinger was not satisfied, and one D. J. Legare, who was said to be desirous of superseding Douglass as light-house keeper. On the 29th of February, A. D. 1888, an additional affidavit was made by Avinger before Trial Justice Jacob Williman setting forth more specifically the trespass on his land as they were alleged to be committed by Douglaas, the light-house keeper, and an additional warrant was issued against Douglass at the next term of the court of the general sessions. The trial of Douglass on the charge of larceny was had in Charleston, on June 18, 1888, before a petit jury, who found a verdict of "not guilty." The charge of trespass came up also on the criminal side of the court at Charleston before B. R. Burnett, esq., judicial trial justice, who dismissed the charge. This dismissal was not, however, after a trial on the merits, but a sufficient time had now elapsed to warrant the belief that the proceedings against Douglass have terminated finally. I will send bill of charges as soon as they shall have been approved in open court in accordance with the act of Congress.

Very respectfully,

LEROY F. YOUMANS,
United States Attorney.

EXHIBIT No. 16.

NASHVILLE, TENN., August 23, 1889.

SIR: In obedience to the suggestion contained in communication H. H. of the 12th instant, I herewith forward account (itemized) for mileage due witnesses for attendance upon the court at Nashville in behalf of the United States.

My letter to the Department of August 6, 1889, fully explains the condition of these claims. The claim of Isaac Denton Thomas, upon which judgment has been pronounced, is included in the present itemized account. The total amount is $1,771.60. Below is given the amount belonging to each fiscal year:

Fiscal year ending June 30—
1883	$19.80
1884	90.90
1885	219.60
1886	701.10
1887	516.40
1888	223.80
	1,771.60

I have, in almost every instance, given the number of the case on the docket in which the witness appeared, the name of witness, his county, and miles traveled, with amount due each witness.

The officers of the court at this place can readily verify the correctness of the account from the records of the court should it be necessary.

Respectfully.

JOSEPH R. DILLIN,
Attorney for Claimants.

The ATTORNEY-GENERAL,
Washington, D. C.

EXHIBIT No. 17.

AT CHAMBERS, UNITED STATES COURTS,
Fort Smith, Ark., August 26, 1889.

I take occasion to say that the account of A. C. King, esq., for legal services rendered the United States in the case against certain parties named therein for the murder of John D. Trammell, United States deputy marshal in Montgomery County, Ark., and the cases in the United States court at Fort Smith against the parties mentioned in the statement of Mr. King for illicit distilling and conspiracy to defraud the United States, together with the statement of Mr. King showing the foundation for said account, has been called to my attention, and many of the facts set out in said statement are known to me, and I have no doubt the statement by him is entirely correct.

It is a fact that at one time, about the 26th of June, 1888, moonshiners had about taken absolute control of Montgomery County, Ark. They had become so strong that many of the local officials, in their canvass for re-election, sought their influence.

They defied the United States civil authorities. The good people of the county who, although they were in a large majority, were in a state of absolute fear, so that until they had some brave, courageous man like Mr. King to lead them were unwilling to take any steps toward suppressing the moonshiners.

United States Deputy Marshal John D. Trammell, while in the line of his duty endeavoring to arrest illicit distillers, was shot to death on the highway by concealed assassins. Through the valuable aid and assistance of Mr. King, Trammell's supposed assassins have been indicted by the grand jury of Montgomery County, and many of the moonshiners have been convicted in the United States court at Fort Smith for illicit distilling and conspiracy to defraud the Government. The band of outlaws who set at defiance the laws of the United States in the county of Montgomery has been broken up. The good and law-abiding people of the county are in the ascendency. This result has been largely brought about by the aid, as an attorney, rendered by Mr. King.

Nothing could have been accomplished by a non-resident attorney, and nothing can be done now in the prosecution of the murderers of Trammell by a non-resident attorney. Mr. King is a gentleman of ability, of integrity, and he has the confidence and respect of the good people of the county.

I thought always until my attention was called to the matter by Hon. John H. Rogers, member of Congress for this district, that Mr. King was under a formal employment by the Department of Justice, but it seems this was not done, through some oversight, I suppose.

John D. Trammell was a brave and efficient officer. I think the Government of the United States owes it to his memory, to the cause of justice, and to the supremacy of law and order, to employ Mr. King to continue in the prosecution in the State court of his murderers.

Mr. King has fully earned the $1,000 named in his account as the amount claimed by him from the Government. To my knowledge he has been faithful, able, and fearless in the discharge of his duties. He has rendered great aid to the Government in the prosecution of the cases in the United States court for illicit distilling and conspiracy.

I recommend the payment to him of $1,000 for what he has already done, and request the Attorney-General to employ him to assist the prosecuting attorney of the State to prosecute the murderers of Trammell in the State court. If the Attorney-General has not the power under the circumstances to order the payment of the $1,000, then I request Congress to appropriate it to Mr. King, as he certainly has earned it and deserves it, as by his fidelity, ability, zeal, and courage peace has been restored to Montgomery County, and all illicit distilling has been broken up, and many of those who participated in violations of the laws of the United States are in the penitentiary.

I. C. PARKER,
United States District Judge.

I fully indorse the above, and join in the recommendations made by Judge Parker.

WM. H. H. CLAYTON,
United States Attorney, West. District Arkansas.

December 14, 1887. Affidavit for arrest of defendant La Foret for contempt. Order for arrest of defendant La Foret for contempt made. Warrant for arrest of defendant La Foret for contempt issued.

December 16, 1887. Warrant for arrest of defendant La Foret returned.

January 6, 1888. L. F. Coburn, esq., retained by defendant, Capt. William E. Dougherty, subject to subsequent appointment by Attorney-General, to be obtained by said defendant. Demurrer to complaint served and filed for both defendants.

January 7, 1888. Demurrer to complaint argued and overruled; time to answer given. Notice of motion to dissolve injunction served and filed.

January 9, 1888. Notice of motion to dissolve injunction made and argued and by the court denied.

January 18, 1888. Defendants' proposed bill of exceptions served and filed.

January 23, 1888. Plaintiff's amendment's to defendants' proposed bill of exceptions served and filed.

March 8, 1888. Notice of appeal from the order refusing to dissolve the injunction served and filed. Undertaking on appeal filed.

March 24, 1888. Answer of both defendants served and filed.

March 29, 1888. Plaintiff's notice of motion to strike out answer of defendants and for judgment on the pleadings served and filed.

March 29, 1888. Demurrer to defendants' answer served and filed. Defendants' bill of exceptions settled.

April 5, 1888. Motion to strike out defendants' answer and for judgment on pleadings made, argued, and by the court denied.

April 6, 1888. Demurrer to answer argued and overruled.

April 23, 1888. Transcript on appeal heretofore prepared and presented filed in Supreme Court.

The case here rested until June 26, 1889, when on motion of defendants' attorney the case was dismissed and all proceedings against defendant La Foret were dismissed; the temporary injunction was dissolved, each party paying his own costs and appeal to Supreme Court dismissed.

The principal point in argument on demurrer to complaint and made in answer was the status of the Klamath Reservation and the jurisdiction of this court.

L. F. COBURN,
Attorney for Defendants.

At a stated term, to wit, the July term A. D. 1889, of the circuit court of the United States of America, ninth circuit, in and for the northern district of California, held at the court-room in the city and county of San Francisco, on Saturday, the 24th day of August, in the year of our Lord 1889.

Present: The honorable Lorenzo Sawyer, judge.

In the matter of the account of L. F. Coburn, esq., assistant to the United States attorney for the northern district of California, for professional services rendered in a certain suit therein named.

An account of L. F. Coburn, esq., assistant to John T. Carey, esq., United States attorney for the northern district of California, for official services rendered in a certain suit therein named, amounting to the sum of $500, having been submitted to this court for approval, and it appearing to the satisfaction of the court, by the oath of the said L. F. Coburn, esq., upon the account, that the services have been actually and necessarily performed as stated, and the charges appearing to be just and according to law, it is hereby ordered that the said account, amounting to the sum of $500, be and the same hereby is, approved; and it is further ordered that a copy hereof certified by the clerk be annexed to the account and duplicate.

I hereby certify that the foregoing is a full, true, and correct copy of an original order entered in the above-entitled matter.

Attest my hand and seal of said court this 24th day of August, A. D. 1889.

[SEAL.]

L. S. B. SAWYER, Clerk.
By F. D. MONCKTON, Deputy Clerk.

EXHIBIT No. 24.

LOS ANGELES, CAL., September 4, 1889.

SIR: I have the honor to state that I was appointed special counsel for the United States by your letter of October 3, 1888 (file No. 1936, 1886), in the case of United States vs. Colton Marble and Lime Company, for timber trespass, in which letter it was stated that my compensation would be determined by the Attorney-General upon the completion of my services. I at once executed the oath of office and took charge of the case.

In your letter of January 17, 1889, I was also appointed special counsel in three cases of United States vs. Southern Pacific Railroad Company et al., all said cases pending in United States circuit court, southern district of California.

It has been nearly a year since I was appointed in the first case. During that time I have prosecuted the cases diligently, and they have taken a large part of my time by reason of the numerous and grave questions of law and fact which have been developed and the necessary research of voluminous records and archives of the United States surveyor-general's office for this State and of the land offices.

I have not yet been able to get the cases to a final trial by reason of the delays of the court and difficulty of procuring documentary evidence, but I have tried all the cases on general and special demurrer to the bills, and they were all overruled.

I beg leave to refer to my letter to you of May 31, 1889, as showing the progress I have made in them. I have worked for the Government now nearly a year in the most difficult cases I have ever been engaged in, and I have not received any compensation.

It is possible that under a strict interpretation of my appointment I am not entitled to any now, but I believe it is a matter in your sound discretion.

I am obliged to inform you that by reason of the prejudice of other business on account of these cases that I am financially cramped, and very much desire and need an allowance upon account of services which I have already performed.

In this connection, I beg leave to refer to my letter of November 26, 1888, transmitting an account and statement for services in the case vs. Colton Marble and Lime Company, on account, but not in full, which statement of account I inclose herewith. This account was allowed by the Attorney-General as stated in your letter to me of January 25, 1889 (H. H. file, No. 1938, 1886) for the sum of $750.

In compliance with my letter of January 21, 1889, this account was suspended or reserved until my employment was to be concluded, as stated in your letter to me of January 30, 1889 (H. H. File, No. 1938, 1886). I desire very much to continue in this case till concluded, but would be very much gratified if you would now permit the payment of the inclosed account in the case vs. Colton Marble Lime Company, not in full, but as s rvices rendered in that case up to November 26, 1888, on account of the urgent reasons stated.

As suggested by you in your letter to me of June 29, 1889 (A. G.), I will push this and the other cases to as speedy and successful conclusion as possible.

Respectfully,

JOSEPH H. CALL,
Special Assistant United States Attorney.

The ATTORNEY-GENERAL,
Washington, D. C.

The United States in account with Joseph H. Call, assistant United States attorney.

Legal services in case of United States vs. Colton Marble and Lime Company et al., in United States circuit court, southern district of California. To preparing and filing bill in equity, which was filed October 13, 1888	$250.00
(It took me several days (four or five) to prepare this bill; it was prepared by me solely, and afterwards submitted to the United States attorney.) The suit involves all the causes overlapping between the grant to the Atlantic and Pacific Railroad Company of July 27, 1866 (now forfeited), and grant to Southern Pacific Railroad Company, covering some 800,000 acres, and I was enabled to prepare the bill in this suit in so short a time by reason of the knowledge which I had obtained in some other somewhat similar cases.
To obtaining temporary restraining order	100.00
(I endeavored to obtain an order restraining defendants from removing some 3,000 cords of wood from the premises, and also to enjoin further trespass. The court granted the latter, but refused to enjoin the removal of the wood.)
To consultation with United States attorney and with attorneys for defendants and to examinations of facts and questions of law, October 15, 18, 19, 21, 22, and 23, 1888, six days fully employed	300.00
In case of United States vs. Colton Marble and Lime Company, action of law in replevin for some 3,000 cords of wood. To preparing and filing complaint, October 16 and 17, 1888, two days	100.00
(This action was rendered necessary by the refusal of the court to enjoin the removal of the wood, which order I had endeavored to obtain in the equity suit above mentioned.)
Total	750.00

United States vs. John R. Jones and G. W. Freeman. Criminal prosecution for timber trespass; 1,600,000 feet cut.

United States vs. same defendants. Civil case for value of 1,600,000 feet timber cut, at $10 per M.

In the United States circuit court for the western district of Louisiana. United States to C. J. Boatner, Dr.

For professional services as attorney at law in assisting District Attorney M. S. Jones, in the prosecution of above two cases, as follows:

July 7, 1888, examining pleadings and evidence, one day; Feb. 16, 18, 19, 24, 1889, examining pleadings, evidence, and law, summoning witnesses, getting documentary evidence, and otherwise preparing for trial, four days; Feb. 27, 28, 1889, trying criminal case, two days, March 1 and 2, 1889, trying civil cases, two days; total, nine days.. $270.00

STATE OF LOUISIANA, Parish of Ouachita:

Before me, the undersigned authority, personally appeared C. J. Boatner, who, being duly sworn, deposes and says that the services charged for in above bill were actually and necessarily rendered in the said cases and that the amount charged therefor is reasonable and proper.

Sworn to and subscribed before me this 17th day of July, 1889.

EXHIBIT NO. 20.

DEPARTMENT OF THE INTERIOR,
Washington, July 24, 1889.

SIR: I have the honor to acknowledge the receipt of your communication of the 19th instant, transmitting an account of R. M. Call, late United States attorney for the northern district of Florida, for services rendered in the investigation of a claim of the United States to certain lots in Pensacola, Fla., amounting to $100.

On February 20, 1888, Mr. F. C. Humphreys, clerk of the United States district court of Pensacola, Fla., addressed a communication to this Department, calling attention to certain parcels of lands in the city of Pensacola, Fla., the title to which was in the United States Government, and which were in the possession of squatters. This letter was referred to the Commissioner of the General Land Office, who made report thereon March 9, 1888, and my predecessor referred the whole matter to the Department of Justice with his letter of March 15, 1888, in which he said:

"I have the honor to submit said letter and report for your consideration, that you may, if you deem such course advisable, direct the proper district attorney to make an investigation of the claim of the Government, and ascertain whether or not such claim can be sustained."

I know of no reason why the account should not be paid, and I return the same to you for such disposition of the claim as may to you seem just and proper.

Very respectfully,

JOHN W. NOBLE,
Secretary.

The ATTORNEY-GENERAL.

The United States to R. M. Call, United States attorney, northern district of Florida, Dr.

UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT, Northern District of Florida:

Whereas R. M. Call, United States attorney for said district, has presented to this court the foregoing account for special services, and in open court has proved on oath to the satisfaction of the court that the services therein charged have been actually and necessarily performed as therein stated; and whereas the charge of $100 appears to be just and reasonable and according to law:

It is therefore ordered that said account for $100 be, and the same is hereby, approved and allowed.

HARRY T. TOULMIN,
United States Judge.

I, Philip Walter, clerk United States district court, do hereby certify that the foregoing order is duly entered on the minutes of the United States district court, page 245.

EXHIBIT No. 28.

YANKTON, DAK., June 28, 1889.

SIR: I have the honor to transmit herewith my account for special services rendered in the cases of George L. Barney vs. W. W. Anderson and Louis Benoist vs. Charles McChesney.

These services were rendered upon orders to that effect from the honorable Attorney-General to my predecessors in office, Messrs. Carland and Purcell.

The case of Barney vs. Anderson was a case against W. W. Anderson as United States Indian agent at Crow Creek and Lower Brule Indian Agency for false imprisonment. The damages claimed were $10,000.

The case was dismissed by the court upon the motion and demurrers of the defendant.

As the decision of the court practically settled the issues in the case the action, if again commenced, can not be successfully maintained, and the decision is final.

The case of Benoist vs. McChesney is an action against Charles McChesney as United States Indian agent at Cheyenne Agency, for $3,500 damages for the taking from the plaintiff of a large number of horses and cattle, in pursuance to an order to that effect from the honorable Commissioner of Indian Affairs.

In the McChesney case a demurrer to our answer was argued and overruled, an amended answer was filed setting up an additional defense, and a motion to continue made by the plaintiff was resisted by the defense and allowed by the court.

In these two cases I have been in attendance upon the Hughes County court during the entire week, commencing June 23. As these cases were of much importance, I also spent what would amount to several days' very careful work in the preparation of the cases before coming to Pierre. In my account I have made no specific charges for these services, which were actually and necessarily rendered. Neither have I made any charges for mileage in going from Yankton to Pierre and returning. This mileage, under the fee bill, would amount to $52.

In view of these facts, I am satisfied that the honorable Attorney-General will find my bill to be reasonable and approve the same in the amount in which it is rendered. I have asked for that amount only which I know to be right and which I hope to receive.

Very respectfully,

J. C. MURPHY,
United States Attorney.

Total bill for 1887	1,100.00

To attendance on said court at Butte City, May term, 1888, when said case was set for trial, and then arguing challenge interposed by defendants to the panel of the jury in said cause and assisting United States Attorneys Smith and Hobson, in all about three days, at $50 (case continued to October term, 1888)	150.00
October term, 1888, to two days' attendance at said term in said cause, at $50 per day	100.00
To professional services in said case, No. 138, rendered at divers times in vacation in 1888 in preparing for trial of same and in conference with associate counsel and talking with witnesses from date of filing amended complaint in January, 1888, to October, 1888, in all about nineteen days	500.00
Total bill for 1888	750.00

RECAPITULATION.

Total bill for 1886	$950.00
Total bill for 1887	1,100.00
Total bill for 1888	750.00
Total bill rendered	2,800.00

Will state in this connection that nothing has been paid for services for nearly three years' work.

INDIAN DEPREDATION CLAIMS.

LETTER

FROM

THE SECRETARY OF THE INTERIOR,

TRANSMITTING,

With the papers in each case, a schedule of Indian depredation claims determined since last report.

JANUARY 18, 1890.—Referred to the Committee on Indian Depredation Claims and ordered to be printed.

DEPARTMENT OF THE INTERIOR,
Washington, January 15, 1890.

SIR: In compliance with the provisions contained in the act of March 2, 1889 (25 Stat., 998), making appropriations for the Indian service for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1890, I have the honor to transmit herewith a schedule of Indian depredation claims, numbering 159, whose examination was completed on January 1, 1890, together with the papers in each of the claims and the determination of the Department in each of the respective cases.

These claims comprise those finally considered and determined since the date of the report of January 16, 1889, submitting a prior schedule of such claims, which will be found printed in House Ex. Doc. No. 103, Fiftieth Congress, second session.

The letter of the Commissioner of Indian Affairs, dated 8th instant, to this Department on the subject, is herewith inclosed.

Very respectfully,

GEO. CHANDLER,
Acting Secretary.

The SPEAKER OF THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES.

DEPARTMENT OF THE INTERIOR,
OFFICE OF INDIAN AFFAIRS,
Washington, D. C., January 8, 1890.

SIR: In compliance with the provisions of an act entitled "An act making appropriations for the current and contingent expenses of the Indian Department," etc., approved June 29, 1888 (25 Stats., p. 234), I have the honor to transmit herewith a list of Indian depredation claims in favor of citizens of the United States and against Indian tribes holding treaty relations with the Government which were investigated pursuant to said act to this date.

Said list contains the number of the claims, name, and post-office address of each claimant, character of the property stolen or destroyed, Indians charged with the depredation, when committed, when filed, amount claimed, amount allowed, date of action, and the "date and clause of the treaty creating the obligation for payment," and also what funds, now existing "by reason of treaty or other obligation, out of which the same should be paid."

Accompanying each claim herewith is the original record of the testimony presented and all former action had, together with a letter embodying office "opinions and conclusions upon all material facts, and all the evidence and papers pertaining thereto."

Very respectfully,

T. J. MORGAN,
Commissioner.

The SECRETARY OF THE INTERIOR.

JOHN TAYLOR.

LETTER

FROM

THE SECRETARY OF THE INTERIOR,

TRANSMITTING

Papers in the claim of John Taylor.

JANUARY 18, 1890.—Referred to the Committee on Indian Depredation Claims and ordered to be printed.

DEPARTMENT OF THE INTERIOR,
Washington, January 16, 1890.

SIR: I have the honor to transmit herewith copy of a communication of 30th September last from the Commissioner of Indian Affairs inclosing certain papers in the depredation claim of John Taylor No. 2498, which claim was transmitted to Congress in January, 1889. (See Ex. Doc. 103, Fiftieth Congress, second session.)

The papers referred to were returned to the Indian Office from the House of Representatives on the 23d of September, 1889, and are as follows:

Affidavit of John H. Taylor, claimant; affidavits of Alexander McNary and Wallace G. Bishop; copy of Indian agent's report dated December 14, 1881; office letter of May 11, 1882, and Department letter of July 19, 1882.

The Commissioner states that this testimony does not, in the opinion of his office, justify any change in the conclusions heretofore reached in this case, and in compliance with his recommendation the papers are herewith returned with the request that they be filed with the above claim.

Very respectfully,

JOHN W. NOBLE,
Secretary.

The SPEAKER OF THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES.

DEPARTMENT OF THE INTERIOR,
OFFICE OF INDIAN AFFAIRS,
Washington, September 30, 1889.

SIR: On December 15, 1888, this office made a report on depredation claim No. 2498 of John H. Taylor; amount, $2,025, and pursuant to Department letter of December 18, 1888, the claim, with all the papers on file, was transmitted to Congress January, 1889 (Ex. Doc. 103, Fiftieth Congress, second session).

On the 23d instant, the following papers were returned to this office from the House of Representatives, by virtue of the act of March 3, 1885:

Affidavit of John H. Taylor, the claimant; affidavits of Alexander McNary and Wallace G. Bishop; copy of Indian agent's report, dated December 14, 1881; office letter of May 11, 1882, and Department letter of July 19, 1882.

This testimony does not, in the opinion of this office, justify any change in the conclusions heretofore reached in the case, and I have the honor to recommend that these papers (which are herewith inclosed) be transmitted to Congress to be filed with above claim.

Very respectfully,

R. V. BELT,
Acting Commissioner.

The SECRETARY OF THE INTERIOR.

DEPARTMENT OF THE INTERIOR,
Washington, July 19, 1882.

SIR: In compliance with the first clause of section 445, Revised Statutes, I have the honor to transmit herewith the reports, papers, and evidence in the claim of John H. Taylor for compensation on account of depredations alleged to have been committed by Indians of Oregon Territory, amounting to $2,025.

A report of the Commissioner of Indian Affairs, dated May 11, 1882, shows the nature, character, and amount of said claim, the evidence presented in support thereof, and the action taken by that officer, under the rules and regulations prescribed by this Department of the investigation of such claims.

He recommends an allowance of the sum of $1,725 as the probable value of the property charged for, viz:

6 mules, at $300 each	$1,800
6 pack-saddles, at $20 each	120
4 covers, at $7 each	28
14 gunny sacks, at 50 cents each	7
7 lash ropes, at $6 each	42
7 head-halters, at $4 each	28
	2,025

The claim is alleged to have originated in 1856, was filed in 1859, but not investigated until 1881.

The tribe of Indians committing the depredation is not mentioned. The witnesses testified in 1857 from personal knowledge, being present with the train at the time and place of depredation.

The investigation made by Agent Milroy in 1881 does not throw any additional light on the case.

This claim to the extent of charges for property spoliated at proper prices is probably a just one.

The testimony, however, is entirely ex parte, and the long delay in action on the case has probably put it out of the power of the claimant or the Department to throw more light on the case by further proof.

It is submitted for such action as Congress may find to be right and proper.

Very respectfully,

H. M. TELLER,
Secretary.

The SPEAKER OF THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES.

UNITED STATES INDIAN SERVICE,
PUYALLUP, NESQUALLY, ETC., AGENCY,
Olympia, Wash., December 14, 1881.

SIR: I report the following upon the Indian spoliation claim of John H. Taylor, for $2,053. The proofs filed in support of this claim do not accord with the requirements of the rules and regulations prescribed sixteen years after said claim accrued, but are sufficient to show that the property named was lost by an Indian spoliation in time of war and that the claim is just.

Respectfully,

R. H. MILROY,
U. S. Indian Agent.

Hon. COMMISSIONER INDIAN AFFAIRS.

DEPARTMENT OF THE INTERIOR,
OFFICE OF INDIAN AFFAIRS,
Washington, May 11, 1882.

SIR: I have the honor to submit herewith the claim of John H. Taylor, filed in this office in 1859, amounting to $2,025, on account of depredations alleged to have been committed by Indians in 1856, no tribe being mentioned.

The claimant in his sworn declaration of February 17, 1857, states that his pack train, in charge of Alexander McNary and Solomon Fogle, and accompanied by Wallace Bishop, on the 6th day of July, 1856, and while crossing the Siskiyou Mountain, was attacked by Indians, which resulted in the death of said Fogle and the destruction of his pack train, consisting of six mules and other property valued at $2,025, as shown by the declaration, and that no part of said property was ever recovered.

In support of his claim he files the affidavits of Alexander McNary and Wallace Bishop, who were with the train at the time of the attack, and who corroborate the statements made in the declaration.

Agent R. H. Milroy, to whom the claim was referred for examination, and a copy of whose report dated December 14, 1881, is herewith submitted, sustains the justness of the claim.

I am satisfied the depredation occurred as stated, and the claimant should recover the amount of loss actually sustained, and I am inclined to think that $1,725 would have replaced the property lost, which amount it is therefore recommended may be appropriated to indemnify Mr. Taylor for his loss, to be paid from public funds, there being no funds due any of the Indians in Oregon or Washington Territory under treaty stipulations.

Very respectfully, your obedient servant,

E. S. STEVENS,
Acting Commissioner.

LETTER

FROM

THE SECRETARY OF THE INTERIOR,

TRANSMITTING

Papers in the claim of Henry Shepard,

JANUARY 18, 1890.—Referred to the Committee on Indian Depredation Claims and ordered to be printed.

DEPARTMENT OF THE INTERIOR,
Washington, January 16, 1890.

SIR: I have the honor to transmit herewith copy of a communication of 30th September last, from the Commissioner of Indian Affairs, inclosing certain papers in the depredation claim of Henry Shepard, No. 2447, which claim was transmitted to Congress in January, 1889. (See Ex. Doc. 103, Fiftieth Congress, second session.)

The papers referred to were returned to the Indian Office from the House of Representatives on the 24th September, 1889, and are as follows:

Affidavit of Henry Shepard, the claimant; joint affidavit of Henry Keile and John Switzer; office report of June 11, 1880, and Department letter of December 13, 1880.

The Commissioner states that this testimony does not in the opinion of his office justify any change in the conclusions heretofore reached in this case, and, in compliance with his recommendation, the papers are herewith returned with request that they be filed with the above claim.

Very respectfully,

JOHN W. NOBLE,
Secretary.

The SPEAKER OF THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES.

DEPARTMENT OF THE INTERIOR,
OFFICE OF INDIAN AFFAIRS,
Washington, September 30, 1889.

SIR: On June 18, 1888, this office made a report on depredation claim No. 2447 of Henry Shepard, amount $3,595.93; the same was approved by Department letter of June 21, 1888, and the claim, with the office report and all the papers then on file, was transmitted to Congress, January, 1889 (Ex. Doc. 103, Fiftieth Congress, second session).

On the 24th instant, the following papers were returned to this office from the Clerk of the House of Representatives, pursuant to act of March 3, 1885:

Affidavit of Henry Shepard, the claimant; joint affidavit of Henry Keile and John Switzer; office report of June 11, 1880, and Department letter of December 13, 1880.

This testimony does not, in the opinion of this office, justify any change in the conclusions heretofore reached in the case, and I have the honor to recommend that these papers (which are herewith inclosed) be transmitted to Congress to be filed with above claim.

Very respectfully,

R. V. BELT,
Acting Commissioner.

The SECRETARY OF THE INTERIOR.

DEPARTMENT OF THE INTERIOR,
OFFICE OF INDIAN AFFAIRS,
Washington, June 11, 1880.

SIR: I have the honor to transmit herewith a claim of Henry Shepard for $3,636 on account of the loss of property alleged to have been destroyed by the Yakama Indians in Washington Territory. The claimant in his sworn declaration says that on the 26th and 27th days of March, 1856, during the Washington and Oregon Territory Indian war, and at the time of the Cascade massacre, the above named Indians burned, stole, and otherwise destroyed property belonging to him to the amount of $3,636.

Henry Keil and John Switzler, in a joint affidavit, aver that they are acquainted with the claimant, and that they are knowing to the loss of his property. Another joint affidavit in the case by F. M. Vanderpool and J. T. Bowles, in regard to the depredation, contains nothing more in effect than that of Keil and Switzler. Neither claimant or witnesses name the place where the alleged depredation was committed, nor do they state any other facts in the case which would convey the idea that they have any personal knowledge of the theft. I therefore respectfully recommend that the claim be disallowed.

Very respectfully, your obedient servant,

E. J. BROOKS,
Acting Commissioner.

The SECRETARY OF THE INTERIOR.

STATE OF OREGON, County of Multnomah, ss:

On this 16th day of February, 1871, personally appeared Henry Shepard, who upon oath says that during the Oregon and Washington Territory Indian war of 1853 and 1856 he lost the following-named goods, chattels, and property on the 26th and 27th of March, 1856, at the time of the Cascade massacre, which property was lost by fire and otherwise destroyed by hostile Indians. That a list of which property is now on file in the Indian Office, Washington City, D. C., the same having been filed there by Governor, late General, Stevens, deceased, in 1857 or 1858, amounting to $3,636. That the goods, chattels, or property mentioned in schedule "A" are nearly all he lost at that time. The schedule already filed in the Indian Office contains the amounts opposite each article, etc.

That this property was actually lost, or destroyed by hostile Indians, and that the same was a total loss to him.

He hereby constitutes and appoints McSelbut Bell his true and lawful attorney to collect said claim from the United States, with full power of substitution of other attorneys, and to sign his name whenever or wherever necessary.

HENRY SHEPARD.

Also personally appeared Henry Kiel and John Switzer, who upon oath say that they know Henry Shepard, the person who signed the above affidavit, and know that he is the identical Henry Shepard who lost property, chattels, and goods at the Cascades in March, 1856, and that we have no interest in this claim.

DEPARTMENT OF THE INTERIOR,
OFFICE OF INDIAN AFFAIRS,
Washington, September 30, 1889.

SIR: On June 27, 1887, this office made a report on depredation claim No. 1809, of Raymond Brothers, amount, $3,800; and pursuant to Department letter of June 28, 1887, the claim, with all the papers then on file, was transmitted to Congress January, 1888. (Ex. Doc. 34, Fiftieth Congress, first session.)

On the 23d instant the following papers pertaining to this case were returned to this office from the House of Representatives, pursuant to act of March 3, 1885:

Affidavit of Winthrop Raymond; affidavits of James B. Snapp and John H. Scanland; Office letter of September 23, 1879, and Department letter of February 17, 1880.

This testimony does not, in the opinion of this office, justify any change in the conclusions heretofore reached in this case, and I have the honor to recommend that these papers (which are herewith inclosed) be transmitted to Congress, to be filed with above claim.

Very respectfully,

R. V. BELT,
Acting Commissioner.

The SECRETARY OF THE INTERIOR.

TERRITORY OF MONTANA, County of Madison, ss:

Before me, the undersigned, the clerk of the district court of the first judicial district of the Territory of Montana, in and for the county of Madison, on this 25th day of January, A. D. 1879, personally came Winthrop Raymond, who, being by me first duly sworn according to law, deposes and says: My name is Winthrop Raymond; my age is thirty-one years; I reside at Virginia City, in the county of Madison, and Territory of Montana; I am a member of the firm or copartnership of Raymond Brothers, which copartnership or firm is composed of my brother, William H. Raymond and myself; that said firm is doing business at said Virginia City, Mont., and elsewhere, their principal place of business being at said Virginia City, and Madison County, Mont.; that (among other things) the said Raymond Brothers are engaged in the business of importing from Kentucky and other States, to their ranch, situated in the Sweet Water Valley, in Madison County, Mont., fine and improved studs (horses and mares), and in raising, producing, or breeding fine and improved horses at their said ranch; that they have been so engaged in such business for the four (4) years last past, and were so engaged at their said ranch in the month of August, A. D. 1878; that on or about the 20th day of August, A. D. 1878, the hostile Bannack Indians, who were then "on the war path," and were then raiding through some of the settled and other portions of Montana (said Indians being the Fort Hall band of Bannacks, and theretofore under the leadership of "Buffalo Horn" and others of their chiefs and head men), made a raid upon the ranch, herding and grazing lands of the said firm, and then and there stole and drove away therefrom thirty-four head of fine brood mares, young horses, and colts, of the property and chattels of the said firm of Raymond Bros.; that the mares so stolen and taken away by the said hostile Indians, were imported to their said ranch by the said firm of Raymond Bros. from Kentucky and other States, as aforesaid, and possessed fine strains of blood, and were of the improved breeds and of some of the best trotting families of horses in the said State of Kentucky and other States, as aforesaid, and were very valuable as brood mares and for the purposes of breeding fine horses; that the young horses and colts so stolen and taken by the said hostile Bannack Indians, as aforesaid, were the descendants of the said and other brood mares of equal value and breeds, from horses (stallions), also imported from Kentucky and other States, of great value for their purpose of breeding; that all of the said mares were with foal by the fine stallion of the said Raymond Bros., called and known as Commodore Belmont, and were more valuable from that fact; that said thirty-four head of mares, young horses, and colts, so stolen and taken away by the said hostile Bannack Indians, as aforesaid, with the exception of those thereof which had been theretofore recovered by the said firm of Raymond Bros., as hereinafter stated, were known to be in the camp and possession of the said hostile Indians at the time of the attack made upon them, the said hostile Indians, by a portion of the United States troops under the command of General Nelson A. Miles, Colonel of the Fifth Infantry, United States Army, on or about the 5th day of September, 1878, near Clark's Fork Cañon (said Clark's Fork being a tributary of the Yellowstone River), and within the limits of Crow Indian Reserve; that the force then at the disposal for immediate use of General Miles being small, and, as affiant is informed and believes, too small to warrant him in attacking the said hostile Indians, he, the said

General Miles, in order to induce some friendly Indians belonging to the Crow tribe of Indians, promised them all the horses they might be able to capture from the said hostile Bannack Indians in case they would join his force of troops and assist in making an attack upon the said hostile Bannacks, and that they might keep as their own all horses by them so captured, said General M iles being at that time unaware of the fact that the said Bannacks had in their p ossession any horses stolen by them from settlers; that some of the said mares, horses, and colts so stolen and taken from the said firm of Raymond Bros. by the said hostile Bannack Indians were killed in the said battle between the said Bannacks and the troops under the command of the said General Nelson A. Miles, on the said 5th day of December, A. D. 1878; that some and others of the said mares, horses, and colts were captured by the said Crow Indians at, during, and subsequent to the said battle.

Affiant further states that the said Raymond Bros. have been put to, and necessarily were compelled to and did expend large sums of money and consume much time in following the said hostile Bannacks for the purpose of recovering their said property so stolen by the said hostile Bannacks.

That after the battle hereinbefore mentioned the said Raymond Brothers obtained an order from the said Nelson A. Miles, colonel of the Fifth Infantry, U. S. Army, and commander of the district of the Yellowstone, for the return of the said property, if any thereof could be found within his said military district, which order bore the date of November 23, 1878.

That the said Raymond Brothers have recovered 15 head of the said 34 head of the horses, mares, and colts, so stolen from them by the said hostile Bannacks, but have been unable to recover or secure the return of the other 19 head thereof, after having made every possible effort in their power so to do.

Affiant further states that the average value of the said 19 head of mares, horses, and colts so stolen by the said hostile Bannacks and not recovered or returned to the said Raymond Brothers, was a nd is the sum of $200 per head, amounting in the aggregate to the sum of $3,800.

Wherefore affiant and his said copartner pray that they be recompensed by the Government or the Department of the Interior in the loss they have sustained as aforesaid, an d further says not.

WINTHROP RAYMOND.

Subscribed and sworn to before me this 25th day of January, A. D. 1879, and I do hereby certify that the said Winthrop Raymond is a respectable person, to whose affidavit full faith and credit are due, and should be given; that the foregoing affidavit was read by him before his name was subscribed, or he was sworn thereto.

Witness my hand and seal of office the day and year aforesaid.

TERRITORY OF MONTANA, County of Madison, ss:

Before me, the undersigned, the clerk of the district court of the first judicial district of the Territory of Montana, in and for the county of Madison, on this 25th day of January, A. D. 1879, personally came James B. Snapp, who being by me first duly sworn, according to law, deposes and says: My name is James B. Snapp; my age is forty-two years; I reside at Home Park Ranche, in the county of Madison, Territory of Montana; I am engaged in raising horses and cattle; my place of residence is in the neighborhood or vicinity of the ranch of the Raymond Brothers, in said county; I have heard read the foregoing affidavit (which is hereunto annexed) and know the contents thereof; I am cognizant and known to many of the facts therein stated, and have reason to believe that the matters and things therein stated are true. I am well acquainted with the said Winthrop Raymond, and know him to be a man of good moral character, and know that his reputation for truth and veracity is good in the said county of Madison and elsewhere, where he is known. I was one of a party of the citizens of the said county of Madison, Montana, who pursued the said hostile Bannack Indians in August, A. D. 1878, for the purpose of recovering horses by the said hostile Indians stolen from the said Raymond Brothers and other settlers and citizens. I was acquainted with the horses stolen by the said Indians from the said Raymond Brothers, and I believe that the value placed thereon by the said Winthrop Raymond, in his affidavit, to wit, $200 per head, to be reasonable and just, and that said horses were of the average value of $200 each; I am cognizant of the fact that the number of horses so stolen by the said hostile Indians from the said Raymond Brothers, was about the number stated in the said affidavit of Winthrop Raymond, and that the number thereof by them recovered was about the number by him stated therein; the said horses were fine and improved breeds, imported by said Raymond Brothers from Kentucky and other States, and were valuable.

Affiant further states that full faith and credit are due and should be given to the affidavit and statements of the said Winthrop Raymond. The said firm of Raymond Brothers is composed of William H. Raymond and the said Winthrop Raymond, and further deponent says not.

JAMES B. SNAPP.

Subscribed and sworn to before me this 25th day of January, A. D. 1879, and I hereby certify that the said James B. Snapp is a respectable person to whose affidavit full faith and credit are due and should be given; that the foregoing affidavit was read to said deponent previous to his name being signed thereto.

Witness my hand and official seal on the day and year last aforesaid. Done at Virginia City, in the county of Madison, Mont.

TERRITORY OF MONTANA, County of Madison, ss:

Before me, the undersigned, the clerk of the district court of the first judicial district of the Territory of Montana, in and for the county of Madison, on this 25th day of January, A. D. 1879, personally came John H. Scanland, who, being first duly sworn according to law, on his oath deposes and says: My name is John H. Scanland; I reside at Virginia City, Madison County, Mont.; my age is thirty-eight years, and I am by occupation the proprietor of a livery and feed stable, and buying and selling horses; I have been engaged in this business for the ——— years last past.

I am well acquainted with William H. Raymond and Winthrop Raymond, comprising the firm of Raymond Brothers, doing business in the city of Virginia and county of Madison, Mont.; that I have known the said William H. Raymond and Winthrop Raymond, and been acquainted with them for thirteen years last past; that the said Winthrop Raymond is a man of good moral character, whose reputation for truth and veracity in said city, county, and Territory, and wherever he is known, and among those who know him is unimpeachable, and that all his statements under oath are entitled to and should receive full faith and credit. I have read the annexed affidavit of the said Winthrop Raymond and know the contents thereof, and I believe and have good reason to believe that all the facts therein stated are true; many of the facts therein stated are within my own personal knowledge, viz: That the Raymond Brothers were and are the owners of the horses and mares and colts therein mentioned, that they were stolen and taken away by the said hostile band of Bannack Indians, and that nineteen of said mares, horses, and colts were never recovered by the said Raymond Brothers; that the said horses were of the average value of $200 per head, and that the said Raymond Brothers were put to and did expend much time and money in attempting to recover the said horses so stolen and taken away by the said Bannack hostiles, and that they used every effort and exertion to recover their said property that was possible, are all facts within my own personal knowledge, and I hereby affirm and corroborate Winthrop Raymond's statements in that particular. And further deponent says not.

JOHN H. SCANLAND.

Subscribed and sworn before me on this 25th day of January, A. D. 1879, and I hereby certify that the said affidavit was read by the said John H. Scanland before his name was subscribed or he was sworn thereto, and that the said John H. Scanland is a respectable person to whose affidavit and statements full faith and credit are due.

DEPARTMENT OF THE INTERIOR,
OFFICE OF INDIAN AFFAIRS,
Washington, September 23, 1879.

SIR: I have the honor to submit herewith for your action a claim of "Raymond Brothers" for $3,800 on account of depredations alleged to have been committed by the Bannack Indians in 1878.

Winthrop Raymond, of the firm of Raymond Brothers, in his sworn declaration, dated January 25, 1879, states that he is a resident of Virginia City, in the Territory of Montana, that he with his brother, William H. Raymond, form the firm of Raymond Brothers; thaat said firm, among other things, have been engaged, for the past four years, in the business of importing from Kentucky and other States, to their ranch situated in Sweet Water Valley, in Madison County, Mont., a fine and improved stock of horses, and in raising and breeding such horses; that on or about the 20th of August, 1878, the Fort Hall band of hostile Bannack Indians, under the leadership of "Buffalo Horn," and other of their chiefs and headmen, made a raid on claimants' ranch, and stole and drove away therefrom of said stock 34 head of fine brood mares, young horses, and colts, the property of said firm, and which were afterwards known to be in the camp of the hostile Bannacks; that with the assistance of General Nelson A. Mills, claimants have recovered 15 head of the stock stolen, but have been unable to recover or secure the return of the other 19, although every effort has been made to do so; and that the average value of the stock unrecovered is $200 per head, amounting in the aggregate to $3,800.

The claimants in their declaration give only a general description of the stock stolen. They do not place any distinct valuation upon each animal alleged to have been taken. They also fail to show that they have not received compensation in whole or in part for their loss, or endeavored to obtain private satisfaction therefor. The declaration is otherwise materially defective.

Accompanying the claim and in support thereof, are the affidavits of James B. Snapp and John H. Scanland.

The former avers that he resides at his ranch, situated in Madison County, Mont., in the neighborhood of the ranch of Raymond Brothers, whom he knows to be men of good character and reputation, and has reasons to believe that the statements made by Winthrop Raymond—one of the firm of Raymond Brothers—are true, as many of the facts stated by him lie within his personal knowledge; that affiant was one of a party who pursued said hostile Bannacks in August, 1878, in order to recover the stock stolen from Raymond Brothers and others; and that he believes the number of horses, colts, etc., stolen from said firm and the number subsequently recovered by them, is as stated in the declaration of Winthrop Raymond. He also avers that from his knowledge of the stock unrecovered he believes them to be worth about $200 per head.

John H. Scanland in his affidavit alleges that he is a resident of Virginia City, in Montana Territory, and is proprietor of a livery stable; that he is well acquainted with Raymond Brothers, who are men of good moral character, etc., and entitled to credit; that the stock mentioned in the claimant's declaration was the property of Raymond Brothers, and was stolen by the hostile Bannacks; and that nineteen of said horses, mares, and colts, valued at $200 each, have never been recovered, although every effort has been made to do so. Affiant also avers that he has good reason to believe that all the statements contained in the declaration of Winthrop Raymond, of the firm of Raymond Brothers, are true.

Neither of these deponents state when the depredation was committed, nor do they set forth any of the circumstances connected therewith. They have no personal knowledge of many of the facts stated, and their affidavits do not comply with the requirements of the Department in such cases.

It is not shown by the declaration or otherwise that the stock mentioned was being properly guarded or cared for, at the time it was taken, or that the loss thereof was not occasioned by the carelessness or negligence of the claimants or their employés.

The agent reports that the Indians in council aver that they have no personal knowledge of the alleged depredation, and if said property was stolen it must have been taken by the Bannack Indians who were on the war-path, none of whom are now on the reservation.

In view of the facts herein set forth, and as the allegations of the claimants are incomplete and unsubstantiated by sufficient evidence, I respectfully recommend that the claim be disallowed.

Very respectfully, your obedient servant,

E. J. BROOKS,
Acting Commissioner.

The SECRETARY OF THE INTERIOR.

DEPARTMENT OF THE INTERIOR,
Washington City, February 17, 1880.

SIR: In compliance with the terms of the seventh section of the act approved May 29, 1872, entitled "An act making appropriations for the current and contingent expenses of the Indian Department, and for fulfilling treaty stipulations with various Indian tribes, for the year ending June 30, 1873, and for other purposes," I have the honor to transmit herewith the claim of Raymond Brothers, amounting to $3,800 for compensation on account of depredations committed by Bannack Indians.

A letter (copy inclosed), dated the 23d day of September, 1879, from the Commissioner of Indian Affairs, reporting the nature, character, and amount of said claim, is accompanied by the evidence presented in support thereof, and shows the action taken by that officer under the rules and regulations prescribed by this Department for the investigation of such claims; all which is respectfully submitted for the consideration of Congress as contemplated by said seventh section of the act aforesaid.

Very respectfully, your obedient servant,

E. MONTOYA & SONS.

LETTER

FROM

THE SECRETARY OF THE INTERIOR,

TRANSMITTING

Papers in the Indian depredation claim of E. Montoya & Sons.

JANUARY 18, 1890.—Referred to the Committee on Indian Depredation Claims and ordered to be printed.

DEPARTMENT OF THE INTERIOR,
Washington, January 16, 1890.

SIR: I have the honor to transmit herewith copy of a communication of 30th September, 1889, from the Commissioner of Indian Affairs, inclosing certain papers in the depredation claim of E. Montoya & Sons, No. 2646, which claim was transmitted to Congress in January, 1889 (see Ex. Doc. 103, Fiftieth Congress, second session).

The papers referred to were returned to the Indian Office from the House of Representatives on the 23d of September, 1889, and are as follows:

Joint affidavit of claimants; joint affidavit of Ricardo Pino and Mauricio Micra; copy of Indian agent's report, dated February 20, 1881; office letter of April 5, 1881, and Department letter of January 12, 1882.

The Commissioner states that all of the above affidavits were executed before a justice of the peace whose official character is not certified to, but if this testimony were in legal form it would not justify his office in changing the opinion heretofore expressed in this case; and, in compliance with his recommendation, the papers are herewith returned with request that they be filed with the above claim.

Very respectfully,

JOHN W. NOBLE,
Secretary.

The SPEAKER OF THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES.

DEPARTMENT OF THE INTERIOR,
OFFICE OF INDIAN AFFAIRS,
Washington, September 30, 1889.

SIR: On April 4, 1888, this office made a report on depredation claim No. 2646, of E. Montoya & Sons, amount $8,300, and pursuant to Department letter of April 7, 1888, the claim, with all the papers then on file, was transmitted to Congress, January, 1889 (Ex. Doc. 103, Fiftieth Congress, second session).

On the 23d instant, the following papers pertaining to this case were returned to this office from the House of Representatives, pursuant to act of March 3, 1885:

Joint affidavit of claimants; joint affidavit of Ricardo Pino and Mauricio Miera; copy of Indian agent's report, dated February 20, 1881; office letter of April 5, 1881, and Department letter of January 12, 1882.

All of above affidavits were executed before a justice of the peace whose official character is not certified to, but if this testimony were in legal form it would not justify this office in changing the opinion heretofore expressed on this claim.

I have the honor to recommend that these papers (which are herewith inclosed) be transmitted to Congress to be filed with above claim.

Very respectfully,

R. V. BELT,
Acting Commissioner.

TERRITORY OF NEW MEXICO, County of Socorro:

On this the 31st day of October, A. D. 1880, personally appeared Ricardo Pino and Mauricio Miera, residents of Socorro County, Territory aforesaid, who, being duly and severally sworn according to law, do declare and say that they are immediate neighbors of Estanislao Montoya, Desiderio S. Montoya, and Eutimio Montoyo of the firm of E. Montoya & Sons, who subscribed to the accompanying affidavit in their presence; that they have read said affidavit and know its contents to be true from the fact that they were eye-witnesses to said robberies by said Indians.

They further declare and state that they knew the animals stolen, and that they know them to be worth full the amount mentioned in announced account, and that they know that E. Montoya & Sons have never sought private satisfaction or revenge from said Indians, and that they have no interest in this claim in any manner whatever, and that they have never borne arms against the United States.

MESCALERO AGENCY,
South Fork, N. Mex., February 20, 1881.

SIR: I have the honor to return herewith the claim of Messrs. Montayo & Sons. The locality where these depredations are said to have been made is from 130 to 140 miles distant from here, and no communication except by mail, and I have no acquaintance there. Can find no one here that is acquainted with the parties, and consequently can not investigate the credibility of the claimant or witnesses without going there. As the claimants say, the stock was stolen by Indians "belonging to the band of the Chief Victoria," and they are yet "on the war-path" or dead, I can not "submit the claim to them in council."

The Indians that are here have no knowledge of the depredations.

Very respectfully, your obedient servant,

S. A. RUSSELL,
U. S. Indian Agent.

Hon. COMMISSIONER OF INDIAN AFFAIRS,
Washington, D. C.

DEPARTMENT OF THE INTERIOR,
OFFICE OF INDIAN AFFAIRS,
Washington, April 5, 1881.

SIR: I have the honor to submit herewith, the claim of E. Montoyo & Sons, filed in this office December 13, 1880, amounting to $8,300, on account of depredations alleged to have been committed by Mescalero Apache Indians in 1880.

The claimants in their sworn declaration of October 31, 1880, state that they are residents of the town of San Antonio, Socorro County, Territory of New Mexico; that on the 23d of May, 1880, Mescalero Apache Indians, belonging to Victoria's band, stole from them sheep and burros valued at $8,300.

In support of their claim they file the joint affidavit of Ricardo Pino and Manricio Miera, dated October 31, 1880, who state that they are residents of Socorro County, Territory of New Mexico; that they are immediate neighbors of the claimants; that they have read said affidavit and know its contents to be true, from the fact that they were eye witnesses to said robberies; that they knew the animals stolen; that they were worth the amounts mentioned, and that they have no interest whatever in this claim.

Under date of February 20, 1881, S. A. Russell, U. S. Indian agent at the Mescalero Agency, N. Mex., reports that the Indians at the agency have no knowledge of the depredations.

After considering the facts in this case, I find—

1st. The witnesses fail to state where or the circumstances under which they saw the Indian take said stock.

2d. The claimants fail to show that at the time the depredations were committed the property stolen was being properly guarded and cared for, and that the loss thereof was not occasioned by the negligence or carelessness of himself or employés, or that any one was in charge of said stock at the time of the alleged depredations.

I am of the opinion, therefore, that claimants are not entitled to indemnity for their losses.

Very respectfully, your obedient servant,

E. M. MARBLE,
Acting Commissioner.

The SECRETARY OF THE INTERIOR.

DEPARTMENT OF THE INTERIOR,
Washington City, January 12, 1882.

SIR: In compliance with the terms of the seventh section of the act approved May 29, 1872, entitled "An act making appropriations for the current and contingent expenses of the Indian Department, and for fulfilling treaty stipulations with various Indian tribes, for the year ending June 30, 1873, and for other purposes," I have the honor to transmit herewith the claim of E. Montoya & Sons, amounting to $8,300, for compensation on account of depredations committed by Mescalero Apache Indians.

A letter dated the 5th day of April, 1881, from the Commissioner of Indian Affairs, reporting the nature, character, and amount of said claim, is accompanied by the evidence presented in support thereof, and shows the action taken by that officer, under the rules and regulations prescribed by this Department for the investigation of such claims; all which is respectfully submitted for the consideration of Congress as contemplated by said seventh section of the act aforesaid.

Very respectfully, your obedient servant,

S. J. KIRKWOOD,
Secretary.

The SPEAKER OF THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES.

51ST CONGRESS, 1st Session. } HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES. { Ex. DOC. No. 128.

51ST CONGRESS, 1st Session. } HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES. { EX. DOC. No. 129.

ARETAS WHITCOMB.

LETTER

FROM

THE SECRETARY OF THE INTERIOR,

TRANSMITTING

Papers in the Indian depredation claim of Aretas Whitcomb.

JANUARY 20, 1890.—Referred to the Committee on Indian Depredation Claims and orderd to be printed.

DEPARTMENT OF THE INTERIOR,
Washington, January 17, 1890.

SIR: I have the honor to transmit herewith a copy of a communication of 30th September, 1889, from the Commissioner of Indian Affairs, inclosing certain papers in the Indian depredation claim of Aretas Whitcomb, No. 62, which claim was transmitted to Congress in January, 1888 (see Ex. Doc. 77, Forty-ninth Congress, second session).

These papers were returned to the Indian Office from the House of Representatives on the 23d September, 1889, and are as follows:

Letter from claimant; affidavits of Eliza Richards and Eliza Dexter; Office letter of August 5, 1881, and Department letter of January 12, 1882.

The Commissioner states that this testimony does not, in the opinion of his office, justify any change in the conclusions heretofore reached in this case, and in compliance with his recommendation the papers are herewith returned with request that they be filed with the above claim.

Very respectfully,

JOHN W. NOBLE,
Secretary.

THE SPEAKER OF THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES.

DEPARTMENT OF THE INTERIOR,
OFFICE OF INDIAN AFFAIRS,
Washington, September 30, 1889.

SIR: On December 2, 1886, this office made a report on depredation claim No. 62, of Aretas Whitcomb, amount $23,000, and pursuant to Department letter of December 4, 1886, the claim, with all the papers then on file, was transmitted to Congress January, 1887 (Ex. Doc. 77, Forty-ninth Congress, second session).

On the 23d instant the following papers pertaining to this claim were returned to this office from the House of Representatives, pursuant to act of March 3, 1885:

Letter from claimant; affidavits of Eliza Richards and Eliza Dexter; Office letter of August 5, 1881; and Department letter of January 12, 1882.

This testimony does not, in the opinion of this office, justify any change in the conclusions heretofore reached in this case, and I have the honor to recommend that these papers (which are herewith inclosed) be transmitted to Congress to be filed with above claim.

Very respectfully,

R. V. BELT,
Acting Commissioner.

The SECRETARY OF THE INTERIOR.

SEMIAHMOO, WHITCOMB COUNTY, WASH., July 14, 1881.

COMMISSIONER OF INDIAN AFFAIRS:

SIR: I have delayed sending these testimonies, in hopes of getting others to go with them. I sent to Nebraska for witnesses, but since we left that country one of those we sent for has died, and others have moved away. It has been so long, and we are so far away, it makes slow work. If I was able to go there, I think I could hunt up plenty of witnesses, but as it is, I don't know how it will be.

Will you please to tell me what further witness we need. We thought we had all the witness that was required, or we might have secured many more before we left the place. Some three or four Indians said they would testify to the Indians burning the mill, but we thought there was no use, because we could hear nothing from it. We thought that W. A. Berley had destroyed it—he said he had—and now it has been so long, and I have failed the first time trying, that I am afraid I shall not be able to get any further witnesses. Nevertheless, if it is needed, I will try.

Now we are old and feeble, not able to earn our living; twice the Indians have stripped us of all we had (or nearly all), once in Nebraska and once in Arizona, and if you can help us please help us. I send with this two witnesses, all that I could get here that I thought would do any good. There are others here that knew something about it; they saw the mill before and after it was burned, and that is about all.

Yours, respectfully,

ARETAS WHITCOMB.

TERRITORY OF WASHINGTON, County of Whatcom, ss:

Personally appeared before me, a notary public in and for the county of Whatcom, W. T., the undersigned deponent, and says my name is Eliza Richards.

That I was a resident of Nebraska, Dixon County, from 1867 until 1859, continuously, and that I lived within 2 rods of steam grist and saw mill belonging to Aretas Whitcomb; that I am personally knowing to the burning of said mill, together with a large amount of other property stored in the said mill; and further that I firmly believe that the burning was done by the Sioux Indians.

Further the deponent saith not.

ELIZA RICHARDS.

Subscribed and sworn to before me this 13th day of May, A. D. 1881.
[SEAL.]

A. W. STEWART,
Notary Public.

TERRITORY OF WASHINGTON, County of Whatcom, ss:

Personally appeared before me, a notary public in and for Whatcom County, W. T., the undersigned deponent and says that my name is Eliza Dexter, and that I was a resident of Nebraska from the year 1856 to the year 1859, and that I was a resident of said State at the time of the burning of a steam grist and saw mill belonging to Aretas Whitcomb, said mill situated on the Missouri River, in the county of Dixon, State of Nebraska; that I lived within 10 rods of said mill at the time of the burning; that about 2 o'clock a. m., when the alarm of fire was given, I went to the door and saw a torch in the hand of some person coming from the burning mill toward the dwelling-houses, four in number, and on seeing that the inmates of the houses were aware of their presence the torch disappeared over the bank of the river; that a Frenchman who lived with the Indians at the time of the burning of the mill told me afterward that the Indians intended to burn the dwelling houses and people as well as the mill, but were prevented by the barking of the dogs at the houses. After the burning the parties who did the burning went toward where a portion of the Sioux were living. This circumstance, with the statement of a Frenchman, led me to believe that it was the Indians who did the burning of the said mill.

Further this deponent saith not.

ELIZA DEXTER.

DEPARTMENT OF THE INTERIOR,
OFFICE OF INDIAN AFFAIRS,
Washington, August 5, 1881.

SIR: Referring to the report of this office, dated April 1, 1874, submitting the claim of Aretas Whitcomb, amounting to $24,000, on account of alleged Indian depredations, I have the honor to inclose herewith the affidavits of Eliza Richards and Eliza Dexter, and a letter from said claimant, received on the 2d instant, and respectfully recommend that the same be transmitted to Congress to be filed with the other papers in the case.

Very respectfully, your obedient servant,

E. L. STEVENS,
Acting Commissioner.

The SECRETARY OF THE INTERIOR.

DEPARTMENT OF THE INTERIOR,
Washington City, January 12, 1882.

SIR: In compliance with the terms of the seventh section of the act approved May 29, 1872, entitled "An act making appropriations for the current and contingent expenses of the Indian Department, and for fulfilling treaty stipulations with various Indian tribes, for the year ending June 30, 1873, and for other purposes," I have the honor to transmit herewith additional evidence in the claim of Aretas Whitcomb for compensation on account of depredations committed by Indians.

A letter dated the 5th day of August, 1881, from the Commissioner of Indian Affairs, reporting the nature, character, and amount of said claim, is accompanied by the evidence presented in support thereof, and shows the action taken by that officer under the rules and regulations prescribed by this Department for the investigation of such claims; all which is respectfully submitted for the consideration of Congress, as contemplated by said seventh section of the act aforesaid.

LETTER

FROM

THE SECRETARY OF THE INTERIOR,

TRANSMITTING

Papers in the Indian depredation claim of Richard F. Blinn.

JANUARY 20, 1890.—Referred to the Committee on Indian Depredation Claims and ordered to be printed.

DEPARTMENT OF THE INTERIOR,
Washington, January 17, 1890.

SIR: I have the honor to transmit herewith copy of a communication of 3d of October, 1889, from the Commissioner of Indian Affairs, inclosing certain papers in the Indian depredation claim of Richard F. Blinn, No. 899, which claim was transmitted to Congress in January, 1887.

These papers were returned to the Indian Office from the House of Representatives on September 24, 1889, and are as follows:

Three letters from Mr. George Strain, dated March 15, March 18, and April 5, 1881; office letter of April 9, 1881, and Department letter of January 12, 1882.

In compliance with the Commissioner's recommendation the said papers are herewith returned with request that they be filed with the above claim.

Very respectfully,

JOHN W. NOBLE,
Secretary.

The SPEAKER OF THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES.

DEPARTMENT OF THE INTERIOR,
OFFICE OF INDIAN AFFAIRS,
Washington, October 3, 1889.

SIR: On October 18, 1886, this office submitted a report on depredation claim No. 899 of Richard F. Blinn, amount, $2,400; and pursuant to Department letter of October 22, 1886, the claim, with all the papers then on file in this office, was transmitted to Congress January, 1887. Subsequently, to wit, on September 24, 1889, the following papers pertaining to this claim were returned to this office by the Clerk of the House of Representatives, pursuant to act of March 3, 1885:

Three letters from Mr. George Strain, dated March 15, March 18, and April 5, 1881; office letter of April 9, 1881, and Department letter of January 12, 1882.

I have the honor to recommend that these papers (which are herewith inclosed) be transmitted to Congress to be filed with above claim.

Very respectfully,

R. V. BELT,
Acting Commissioner.

The SECRETARY OF THE INTERIOR.

PERRYSBURGH, WOOD COUNTY, OHIO.

March 15, A. D. 1881.

SIR: Your favor of the 8th instant, in reply to my letter of the 28th ultimo, informing that the depredation claim of Richard F. Blinn, filed February 23, 1871, for $2,400, was on the 1st day of May, 1873, reported to the honorable Secretary of the Interior with a recommendation that the same be allowed for $1,200, that it can not be paid except by special act of Congress, came duly to hand, which I have the honor to acknowledge with my sincere thanks.

Allow me to say that I do not clearly understand why, when the amount of loss sworn to by the claimant, sustained by the witness, is $2,400, only $1,200 was recommended to be allowed, the Cheyenne admitting the depredation.

The claimant, since the filing, is deceased, leaving brothers and sisters; his heirs at law, father and mother, surviving. The mother, since claimant's death, is also deceased.

I am authorized as appears in the power of attorney filed with the claim.

The heirs reside in this vicinity.

In order to obtain special act of Congress for the payment of any sum of money allowed in the premises I suppose I shall need certified copies to attach to the petition for such special act, and wish to prepare and present the same at next session of Congress through the Representative of this district; and provided any sum of money is allowed and so authorized to be paid, to speedily collect and distribute the same in pursuance of law.

Will you therefore please kindly furnish such copies, and any blanks for my convenience, consistently and in harmony with the rules and usages of the office? and very greatly oblige, very respectfully,

GEORGE STRAIN.

The COMMISSIONER OF INDIAN AFFAIRS,
Washington, D. C.

PERRYSBURGH, WOOD COUNTY, OHIO,
March 28, A. D. 1881.

SIR: Your favor of the 19th in reply to mine of 15th instant—

"That, as all of the papers in the case of Richard F. Blynn were forwarded to the honorable Secretary of the Interior on the 1st day of May, 1873, and transmitted to Congress January 17, 1874, it will be necessary for (me) to procure any copies (I) may need from the proper committee of Congress. Office of Indian Affairs has no further control of the papers"— came duly, and for which you have my sincere thanks.

Therefore please kindly, in the rules and usages of the office, refer my late letter in said matter, including this, to said proper committee of Congress.

I have the honor to remain, very respectfully,

GEORGE STRAIN.

The COMMISSIONER OF INDIAN AFFAIRS,

PERRYSBURGH, WOOD COUNTY, OHIO,
April 5, A. D. 1881.

SIR: Your favor of the 31st ultimo, advising that it is not customary for Congress to furnish copies of papers on file with committees, and the better way for (me) is to procure any copies (I) may need through the honorable Representative, duly received, is now acknowledged with my sincere thanks; yet said proper committee might seem entitled to have all said letters, all correspondence in the case, and therefore, well as for any other good reason, would I still respectfully ask that all my late letters, including this, may be, in the rules and usage of the Office of Indian Affairs, transmitted to said proper committee, wherein

I have the honor to remain, very respectfully,

SIOUX INDIANS AT DEVIL'S LAKE AGENCY, N. DAK.

LETTER

FROM

THE SECRETARY OF THE TREASURY,

TRANSMITTING,

With accompanying papers, a letter from the Secretary of the Interior, recommending an appropriation of $25,000 for the immediate relief of Sioux Indians at Devil's Lake Agency, N. Dak.

JANUARY 20, 1890.—Referred to the Committee on Indian Affairs and ordered to be printed.

TREASURY DEPARTMENT,
January 17, 1890.

SIR: I have the honor to transmit herewith, for the consideration of Congress, copy of a communication from the Secretary of the Interior of the 15th instant, and accompanying papers, in relation to an appropriation of $25,000 for the immediate relief of the Sioux Indians of Devil's Lake Agency, N. Dak.

Respectfully yours,

W. WINDOM,
Secretary.

The SPEAKER OF THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES.

DEPARTMENT OF THE INTERIOR,
Washington, January 15, 1890.

SIR: I have the honor to transmit herewith a communication received from the Commissioner of Indian Affairs, dated the 14th instant, relative to the impoverished condition of the Sioux Indians of Devil's Lake Agency, N. Dak., and in which he recommends an appropriation by Congress of the sum of $25,000, or so much thereof as may be necessary for their immediate relief.

I concur in the recommendation of the Commissioner, and request that the letter and inclosures be forwarded to Congress for the favorable action of that body.

I have the honor to be, very respectfully,

GEO. CHANDLER,
Acting Secretary.

The SECRETARY OF THE TREASURY.

DEPARTMENT OF THE INTERIOR,
OFFICE OF INDIAN AFFAIRS,
Washington, D. C., January 14, 1890.

SIR: I have the honor to submit herewith, in duplicate, a copy of a report made by Arthur M. Tinker, U. S. Indian inspector, in accordance with Department instructions of the 21st of October, 1889, relative to the condition and necessities of the Sioux Indians located at Devil's Lake Agency, N. Dak.

The inspector states that the Devil's Lake Sioux are farmers; that they live upon their own individual farms, ranging from 40 to over 100 acres each; that the land is very fertile and usually produces fine crops of wheat, oats, and vegetables, and that they have always had a surplus to sell until the seasons of 1888 and 1889. He also states that they are fairly well supplied with farming tools and machinery, and take fair care of them, as good as the average white farmer; that the records of the agency show that during the season of 1887, the Indians cultivated 4,000 acres, and the crop raised was 75,000 bushels of wheat, 25,000 bushels of oats, 8,000 bushels of vegetables, and 2,500 tons of hay, being the largest crop ever produced upon the reservation.

For the season of 1888 about the same amount of land was under cultivation, but owing to frost the yield was about a two-thirds crop, viz, 55,000 bushels of wheat, 25,000 bushels of oats and barley, and about 3,000 tons of hay.

In the season of 1889 the Indians made a start to raise the largest crop ever produced on the reservation, thereby hoping to pay all their outstanding indebtedness and have a surplus fund to carry them through this winter. Every person plowed and planted more than ever before, and the amount of land under cultivation was, it is said, 5,500 acres. In the spring and early part of the season the crops promised a large yield, but no rain fell and in June hot winds came which blasted the entire crop of that country. It served all alike, white men and Indians residing on and about the reservation and vicinity. The inspector states that at a large council called by him to ascertain the condition of these people and hear their troubles, he could hear of but one person who had made a crop and got back as much seed as was planted.

The inspector concludes his report with the statement that these Indians are now very poor; that many are now suffering and that all will be before next harvest time; that they want rations, clothing, and seed to plant the coming spring to start them again, and that, in his opinion, they must receive help from some source or they will perish.

In view of the fact that this office has no funds at its disposal applicable to the relief of these people, and, concurring in the views expressed by the inspector as to the help needed at this time, I have caused a form of a bill to be prepared for the relief of the Devil's Lake Sioux appropriating the sum of $25,000, or so much thereof as may be necessary, with the recommendation that the same be transmitted to the honorable the Secretary of the Treasury, to be forwarded to the Congress for favorable action.

Very respectfully,

T. J. MORGAN,
Commissioner.

The SECRETARY OF THE INTERIOR.

DEPARTMENT OF THE INTERIOR,
OFFICE OF INDIAN AFFAIRS,
Washington, October 21, 1889.

The SECRETARY OF THE INTERIOR:

SIR: I have the honor to state that on the 15th of August last, George W. Gordon, special United States Indian agent, was directed by this office, after the completion of certain other duties to proceed to Devil's Lake Agency, Dak., and there make a full examination in regard to the failure of the crops of the Indians and the alleged necessity for furnishing all of them with full rations of flour and meat and with clothing, and also to investigate other agency matters.

So far his other duties have not permitted him to make the investigation desired. I therefore respectfully request that an inspector be sent out at once, if practicable, to perform the duties assigned to Special Agent Gordon by the letter from this office already referred to, a copy of which is herewith inclosed.

Very respectfully,

T. J. MORGAN,
Commissioner.

DEPARTMENT OF THE INTERIOR,
OFFICE OF INDIAN AFFAIRS,
Washington, August 15, 1889.

SIR: This office is in receipt of several letters from Agent Cramsie, of the Devil's Lake Agency, Dak., stating that on account of the almost entire failure of all crops on the reservation, it will be necessary to purchase, for all the Indians of the reservation, full rations of pork and flour and some clothing during the current fiscal year and until the crops of next year are available.

He submits an estimate for 328,500 pounds of flour and 164,200 pounds of pork, also for a large amount of dry goods, blankets, boots, and shoes, bed comforts, hats, caps, notions, etc., amounting in all to over $30,000.

These Indians have, for a number of years, been entirely self-supporting. During the year 1887, they raised 75,000 bushels of wheat, 25,000 bushels of oats, and 8,000 bushels of vegetables, also cut 2,500 tons of hay; during 1888, when there was a partial failure of crops, they raised 55,000 bushels of wheat, 25,000 bushels of oats and barley, and also cut 3,000 tons of hay. This office is unable to understand how Indians, who for a number of years were self-supporting, can in one year, on account of failure of crops, become again so dependent as to require to be supplied, every man, woman, and child, for a whole year, with full rations of meat and flour and also with clothing, bedding, etc.

There is no treaty with these Indians requiring the United States to furnish them with anything; Congress appropriates annually $6,000 as a gift, which amount is used for the payment of necessary agency employés and for furnishing destitute Indians of the agency with small rations of flour and meat, consequently the supplies asked for by the agent can not be furnished without making an appeal to Congress next winter for an appropriation.

Before deciding to do so, this office desires to be thoroughly convinced that these supplies are absolutely required, and you are directed, after you have completed the duties assigned you at the Santee and Yankton Agencies, to proceed to the Devil's Lake Agency and there make a full examination in regard to the failure of the crops of the Indians, and the alleged necessity for furnishing all of them with full rations of flour and meat, and with clothing, etc. If you should find that the failure of the crops is as complete as reported by the agent, you will inquire whether there are not a number of Indians who are able to support themselves and their families without assistance from the Government; if so, how many; whether others cannot get along with occasional issue of supplies and how many are absolutely destitute and must be entirely supported by the Government. To again feed an entire tribe of Indians, who for years have been self-supporting is a step backward, which this office is not inclined to take without being fully convinced that it is an absolute necessity, and for that reason your examination should be searching and your report full and complete.

While at the agency you are also authorized to examine into the workings of the agency proper, the agent's accounts, his purchases and other expenditures, and to investigate any matter which may be brought to your attention while at the agency.

Very respectfully,

R. V. BELT,
Acting Commissioner.

GEORGE W. GORDON,
Special Indian Agent, Santee Agency, Nebr.

FORT TOTTEN, N. DAK.,
December 12, 1889.

SIR: According to instructions contained in your communication of the 21st October, 1889, inclosing communication of the Commissioner of Indian Affairs of same date, also inclosing instructions to George W. Gordon, special Indian agent, of 15th August, 1889, directing him to proceed to Devil's Lake Agency, N. Dak., and there make a full examination in regard to the failure of the crops of the Indians, and the alleged necessity for furnishing all of them with full rations of flour and meat, and with clothing, etc., the above instructions having been forwarded me to make the examination, and make and forward a special report of same, which report you will please find as follows, viz:

The Indians living on this reservation are farmers, they live on their own individual farms, not in villages and large camps, as is done on most of the other reservations. Some of them have farms of more than 100 acres of plowed land managed by a single individual. Fully one-half of the farms contain from 40 to 60 acres. The balance plow from 5 to 40 acres each. The lands are very fertile, and usually produce fine crops of wheat, oats, and vegetables, same as are generally produced by white farmers in this locality.

Good crops have as a rule always been grown here, and they have always had a surplus to sell until the seasons of 1888 and 1889.

These people are fairly well supplied with farming tools and machinery, and take fair care of them, as good as the average white farmer.

There are now owned on this reservation by the Indians between thirty and forty self-binding harvesting-machines, a large number of mowers, horse-rakes, seed-drills, and other machinery. Many are better provided than the white farmers in this vicinity.

The records of this agency show that during the season of 1887 the Indians cultivated 4,000 acres, and the crop raised was 75,000 bushels of wheat, 25,000 bushels of oats, 8,000 bushels of vegetables, and cut 2,500 tons of hay. This was the largest crop ever produced on this reservation.

For the season of 1888 about the same amount of land was under cultivation and the crop was about a two-thirds crop.

Wheat, 55,000 bushels, oats and barley, 25,000 bushels, and about 3,000 tons of hay. This year, just before time to harvest the crop, it looked splendidly, and all were sure of a large crop to repay them for their time and labor spent, but a very severe frost came, and for a time all thought the crop ruined, but instead of a total failure, as expected, they received the amount stated; but the quality was only fair, and some of the Indians had a hard time to pay their debts and live through the winter. The only way they did pull through was from the sale of wood, which they cut and sold off the reservation to their white neighbors.

Last spring (season of 1889) the Indians made a start to raise the largest crop ever raised on this reservation, thereby hoping to pay all their outstanding accounts, and have a surplus fund to carry them through this winter. Every person plowed and planted more than ever before, and the amount of land under cultivation was, it is said, 5,500 acres. They worked with a will, and in the spring and early part of the season never did a crop promise a larger yield, but no rain came to moisten the parched earth, and in June the hot winds came, blasted the entire crop of this country. It served all alike, white men and Indians residing on and about the reservation and vicinity. Fields after fields can be seen where no attempt has been made to harvest the crop. There was nothing to harvest. On old land nothing was raised; on some few new wet pieces enough was got to sow next season.

To show how little was produced this season, I know of no better illustration than by showing the time it has taken to thrash the grain for the past three seasons (1887, 1888, 1889). In 1887 two steam thrashing-machines and two 10-horse-power thrashing-machines were constantly at work from the time the grain was fit to thrash until long after snow came, which was about the middle of November.

In 1888 one steam thrashing-machine, two 10-horse-power and four 8-horse-power thrashing-machines were run about the same number of days as the year before.

There was plenty of straw, but little grain, and that of a poor quality.

This season (1889) only one 10-horse-power thrashing-machine was used, and that had but two sittings. Had the grain been all in one place it could have been finished in half a day.

At a large council, called by me to see the condition of these people and hear their troubles, I could learn of but one person who had made a crop and got back as much as was planted, and this is the result: Planted: wheat, 42 bushels; oats, 30 bushels. Crop raised: wheat, 100 bushels; oats, 60 bushels. This was raised on new, low, wet, land.

These people's clothes had at some time been good, and were made of good materials, much better than issue clothing, but it was badly worn and showed age.

I have gathered from the records at the military post (Fort Totten) the rain-fall for the months of January, February, March, April, May, June, July, and August for the years 1887 and 1889, which was as follows: 1887, January, .91 inch; February, .75 inch; March, .82 inch; April, .97 inch; May, 1.49 inches; June, 5.90 inches; July, 5.39 inches; August, 2.41 inches; total, 18.53 inches. The showers of June and July were good soaking rains and were what the crops needed. For the same months of 1889 the rain-fall was as follows: January, .24 inch; February, .64 inch; March, .16 inch; April, .60 inch; May, .62 inch; June, 1.56 inches; July, 2.56 inches; August, 2.69 inches. All the showers were light during June and July.

In June there were six showers; in July nine, two of them being hail, and one of them very severe. A total of 8.56 inches. A difference of almost 10 inches. The ground was very dry in January, 1889, and very little snow came during the winter. The rain that fell in June and July came in such small showers that it did little or no good. Had the rain that came on the 12th of August come thirty days before some of the fields would have been saved. Much of the grain planted never sprouted until after the rain of 12th of August.

There is not the slightest doubt but what these Indians are now poor, very poor, and many are now suffering, and all of them will before next harvest time. Only one man have I been able to find who has seed enough to plant next spring, and he will not have that if he is obliged to eat it. These Indians can't get much if any credit, and those who could have traded their limit. The only means they now have of getting a living is from the sale of wood taken off the reservation and sold to the whites, and that industry does not furnish them much money, as some of the military wood reserve has been thrown open to the suffering white families. They have taken away, so I have been informed by the Army officers in charge, between 4,500 and 5,000 cords. This amount of wood so taken reduces the demand for the Indian's wood, and his market is about gone.

These Indians are improvident and very poor managers, never thinking what their wants may be in the future; when they have enough to eat they are as a rule happy, and since they have been getting their living by farming they have always had crops enough to carry them through until this season. They are good workers in most cases, no one can deny this, and their present trouble does not come from idleness. They have a few horses and cattle, just enough to work their farms. They know nothing about stock-raising as an industry. If they do not get aid from somewhere soon they will be obliged to kill their animals to sustain life. When their stock is gone I do not see how they can make another crop; they will have nothing to do the work. Perhaps there are some few who could pull through with a little help of rations, and not much clothing, but as a rule they are about as near flat as they well can be and live. To put in another crop seed must come from somewhere. They can not purchase it, their money is all gone, and so is their credit. They now owe many people for seed they had to plant last spring, and for supplies to carry them through the summer until after harvest. Mr. Frank Palmer, the Indian trader here, sold them on credit over 1,000 bushels of seed wheat and has not collected a dollar, and now don't propose to invest any more of his money that way. Others are in the same boat.

These Indians are not worse off than many of their white brothers in two or three of the adjoining counties, and their crops in 1888 were about the same as on this reservation, and this season they are total failures. The auditor of Ramsey County (once a part of this) told me that his county did not begin to raise its seed in ten townships in that county; that the county relief committee had furnished over one hundred families with rations and clothing. It is estimated that five hundred families will have to be aided; two hundred families in part and three hundred families will have to be carried until after next harvest. All of the five hundred families must have more or less clothing furnished the grown members, and all the children must be provided for. Supplies are being sent from the East almost every day, and are given out twice each week by the committee in charge. Many of these people had been well to do before these two bad seasons. Most all the farms are mortgaged for all they are worth and for more than they can be sold: so is most of the stock and agricultural implements and farming tools. A large number of the farmers had to mortgage the crop they expected to get to get seed to put in last spring.

The legislature of North Dakota has just passed a bill to appropriate $100,000 to purchase seed for these people next spring.

In addition to the wood these white people have taken from the military reserve, more than 350 tons of coal has been sent from the East and more is expected. Many of the people who got wood from the reserve came a long distance, some as far as 30 to 40 miles, taking in some cases three and four days to make the round trip.

I do not see that the Indians can be expected to be in any better condition than their white neighbors. These Indians, in my opinion, must receive help from some source or they will perish, and that aid can not come too quickly; many of them need it to-day, and will continue to need help until after next harvest, just the same as the white people. They want rations, clothing, and seed to plant in the spring to start them in business again. I do not think all will need full rations, but enough to patch up and carry them through the season; others will require full rations of flour and pork. Most of them need clothing; some a full suit, others only a part; just how much, and to whom, the agent knows best, as he knows every family.

The estimate forwarded by Agent Cramsie to the Commissioner of Indian Affairs was not for a full ration for each Indian upon the reservation; it was only intended to furnish those who were absolutely in need with one pound of flour and half a pound of pork per day. Neither beef or groceries were asked for.

The above estimate, I believe, is not considered a ration at other reservations where rations are regularly issued.

Inclosed please find the communication from the Commissioner of Indian Affairs of 21st October, 1889, also instructions to George W. Gordon, special Indian agent Devil's Lake Agency, which I return.

I remain, very respectfully,

ARTHUR M. TINKER,
U. S. Indian Inspector.

INDIAN DEPREDATION CLAIM OF E. MONTOYA & SONS.

LETTER

FROM

THE SECRETARY OF THE INTERIOR,

TRANSMITTING

Papers in the Indian depredation claim of E. Montoya & Sons.

JANUARY 20, 1890.—Referred to the Committee on Indian Depredation Claims and ordered to be printed.

DEPARTMENT OF THE INTERIOR,
Washington, January 17, 1890.

SIR: I have the honor to transmit herewith copy of a communication of the 30th September, 1889, from the Commissioner of Indian Affairs, inclosing certain papers in the Indian depredation claim of E. Montoya & Sons, No. 1973, which claim was transmitted to Congress in January, 1888. (See Ex. Doc. 34, Fiftieth Congress, first session.)

These papers were returned to the Indian Office from the House of Representatives on 23d September, 1889, and are as follows:

Joint affidavit of the claimants; formal application of E. Montoya & Sons; joint affidavit of Tereso Lopez, Pelagio Armijo, and Ramon Galbave; copy of Indian agent's report, dated June 8, 1880; office letter of April 4, 1881, and Department letter of January 12, 1882.

The Commissioner states that all the above affidavits were executed before a justice of the peace, whose official character is not certified to, but that if this testimony were in legal form it would not justify any change in the conclusions heretofore reached by his office on the case, and, in compliance with his recommendation, the papers are herewith returned with request that they be filed with the above claim.

Very respectfully,

JOHN W. NOBLE,
Secretary.

The SPEAKER OF THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES.

DEPARTMENT OF THE INTERIOR,
OFFICE OF INDIAN AFFAIRS,
Washington, September 30, 1889.

SIR: On November 2, 1887, this office submitted a report on depredation claim No. 1973, of E. Montoya & Sons, amount $6,770, and pursuant to Department letter of November 4, 1887, the claim, with all the papers then on file, was transmitted to Congress January, 1888. (Ex. Doc. 34, Fiftieth Congress, first session.)

On the 23d instant the following papers were returned to this office from the House of Representatives:

Joint affidavit of the claimants; formal application of E. Montoya & Sons; joint affidavit of Tereso Lopez, Pelagio Armijo, and Ramon Galbave; copy of Indian agent's report, dated June 8, 1880; office letter of April 4, 1881, and Department letter of January 12, 1882.

All the above affidavits were executed before a justice of the peace, whose official character is not certified to, but if this testimony were in legal form it would not justify any change in the conclusions on the case heretofore reached by this office, and I have the honor to recommend that these papers (which are herewith inclosed) be transmitted to Congress to be filed with above claim.

Very respectfully,

R. V. BELT,
Acting Commissioner.

The SECRETARY OF THE INTERIOR.

To the Hon. Board of Award of Indian Claims, Washington, D. C.
(Through U. S. Indian agent, Mescalero Agency, N. Mex.):

GENTLEMEN: You will find inclosed our account against the Government for stock stolen from our ranch, 8 miles west of this place.

These animals have been stolen by the Mescalero Apache Indians, who belong to the Mescalero Indian Reservation, South Fork, N. Mex. Those of our account stolen on June 7, 1879, were taken from our ranch and were trailed to the above-mentioned reservation, and it is positively certain that the stock were stolen by the above-mentioned Indians.

Since then we have made every effort in our power to recover said mentioned stock, but have failed in so doing.

Those mentioned in our account of date March 12, 1880, were stolen on the night of March 12, 1880, and were also trailed to the same reservation.

We respectfully submit our account and ask that we should be advised, so soon as possible, of any and all necessary steps to be taken in order to recover payment for our stock.

We inclose our sworn statement of the correctness of our claim.

Hoping that this will receive soon and favorable notice, we remain,

Most respectfully,

E. MONTOYA & SONS.

U. S. INDIAN SERVICE,
Mescalero Agency, South Fork, N. Mex., June 8, 1880.

SIR: I have the honor to forward herewith the claim of E. E. Montoya & Sons for depredations said to have been committed by the Apache Indians.

I have submitted these claims to the Mescalero Indians, now at this agency, assembled in council. They deny all knowledge of these animals having been stolen by their people, and assert positively that they do not believe they were. That if taken by the Indians it was Warm Spring Indians and not Mescaleros. That San Antonio is nearer where the Warm Spring (Victoria's band) Indians live and in their line of travel.

The residence of the Mr. Montoyas is San Antonio, is near, not quite 150 miles from this agency. It has been impossible for me to learn anything about them or their witnesses without going there. If in such cases it is your wish that I visit the different localities I will try and do so, although it may be laborious and expensive.

Very respectfully, your obedient servant,

S. A. RUSSELL,
U. S. Indian Agent.

Hon. COMMISSIONER OF INDIAN AFFAIRS,
Washington, D. C.

DEPARTMENT OF THE INTERIOR,
OFFICE OF INDIAN AFFAIRS,
Washington, April 4, 1881.

SIR: I have the honor to submit herewith the claim of E. Montoyo & Sons, filed in this office June 17, 1880, amounting to $6,770, on account of depredations alleged to have been committed by Mescalero Apache Indians in 1879 and 1880.

The claimants in their sworn declarations of April 8 and December 4, 1880, state that on the 7th of June, 1879, Mescalero Apache Indians stole from their ranch horses and mules valued at $1,020; also on the night of March 12, 1880, horses and mules valued at $5,750; that since the alleged stealing they have made every effort in their power to recover said stock, but failed in so doing.

In support of their claim claimants file the joint affidavit of Tereso Lopez, Pelagio Armijo, and Ramon Galban, dated April 8, 1880, who state that they are residents of Socorro County, Territory of New Mexico, and immediate neighbors of Estanislao Montoyo, Desiderio S. Montoyo, and Eutinio Montoyo, of the firm of E. Montoyo & Sons; that they have read said declaration and know its contents to be true, from the fact that they were eye witnesses to said robberies; that they knew the animals, and that they were herders of the stock; that the animals were worth the amounts mentioned, and that they have no interest whatever in this claim.

Under date of June 8, 1880, the agent at the Mescalero agency reports that the Indians in council deny all knowledge of these animals having been stolen by their people, and positively assert that they do not believe they were

After considering the facts in this case I find:

First. That the evidence presented is insufficient and unsatisfactory.

Second. That the witnesses (claimants' herders) fail to give any evidence showing that they endeavored to prevent the Indians from taking said stock.

Third. The claimants fail to show that at the time the depredation was committed the property was being properly guarded and cared for, and that the loss thereof was not occasioned by the negligence or carelessness of themselves or employés.

I am of the opinion, therefore, that claimants are not entitled to indemnity for their losses.

Very respectfully, your obedient servant,

E. M. MARBLE,
Acting Commissioner.

SIR: In compliance with the terms of the seventh section of the act approved May 29, 1872, entitled "An act making appropriations for the current and contingent expenses of the Indian Department, and for fulfilling treaty stipulations with various Indian tribes, for the year ending June 30, 1873, and for other purposes," I have the honor to transmit herewith the claim of E. Montoyo & Sons, amounting to $6,770, for compensation on account of depredations committed by Mescalero Apache Indians.

A letter dated the 4th day of April, 1881, from the Commissioner of Indian Affairs, reporting the nature, character, and amount of said claim, is accompanied by the evidence presented in support thereof, and shows the action taken by that officer, under the rules and regulations prescribed by this Department for the investigation of such claims; all which is respectfully submitted for the consideration of Congress, as contemplated by said seventh section of the act aforesaid.

FOR THE RELIEF OF WILHELM BOEING.

LETTER

FROM

THE SECRETARY OF WAR,

TRANSMITTING

A draught and recommending the passage of a bill for the relief of Wilhelm Boeing.

JANUARY 21, 1890.—Referred to the Committee on Claims and ordered to be printed.

WAR DEPARTMENT,
Washington, D. C., January 20, 1890.

I have the honor to respectfully submit the accompanying draught of a bill for the relief of Wilhelm Boeing, in the matter of certain lands claimed by him and upon which it is alleged the canal connecting Lake Superior and Duluth Harbor, Minnesota, has been built.

The history of this canal, together with the fact that it was taken exclusive charge and control of by the United States under various acts of Congress, is to be found in the decision of the Supreme Court of the United States in the case of Wisconsin vs. Duluth (96 U. S., 387).

Under the act of Congress of August 11, 1888 (25 Stat., 407), the Government of the United States accepted from the city of Duluth certain real estate on which the canal entrance and piers to the harbor of Duluth are located. The lands embraced in the proposed legislation are abutting upon and covered by the same canal. There is no evidence in this Department that the title to them was ever vested in the city of Duluth, which originally constructed the canal, or in the United States, which now maintains this water-way. The claimant, Wilhelm Boeing, alleges that he is the owner of the lands in question under a deed of conveyance executed by M. H. Alworth on March 2, 1889. By his attorney, under date of August 27, 1889, he proposes to donate sufficient land for the construction of a canal at another point further up on Minnesota Point, and if this can not be done he asks among other things that jurisdiction be conferred upon the Court of Claims to give him relief.

From the large interests of commerce involved and the expenditures already incurred in the improvement of the harbor of Duluth, in connection with the canal, it is not deemed advisable at this time to entertain any proposition for the removal of this water-way and the construction of another one elsewhere.

I recommend, therefore, the adoption of the other remedy proposed by the claimant, which I have taken the liberty to formulate in the accompanying draughtof a bill.

Very respectfuly your obedient servant,

REDFIELD PROCTOR,
Secretary of War.

The SPEAKER OF THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES.

A BILL for the relief of Wilhelm Boeing.

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives in Congress assembled, That jurisdiction be, and is hereby, conferred on the Court of Claims to hear, try, and determine, according to the rules and practice now in force in said court and the provisions of this act, the claim of Wilhelm Boeing, against the United States, for compensation for certain city lots of which he claims to be the owner, situate in the city of Duluth, in the county of St. Louis and State of Minnesota, the same being part of the ground abutting upon and occupied by the embankment and bed of the canal connecting Lake Superior with Duluth Harbor; and if the said court shall find said Wilhelm Boeing has a valid title to said lots, said court shall award him fair and reasonable compensation for the value of the ground now occupied, and under the control of the proper officers of the United States, by the embankment and bed of said canal and for the purposes of operating the same; and the receipt of such compensation for said lands shall thereafter bar any further claim by said Wilhelm Boeing tor the use of said ground or the value thereof; and before receiving the same, the said Wilhelm Boeing shall execute a release to the United States for all right, title, and interest whatsoever in and to the said property; and that any defense, set-off, or counterclaim may be pleaded by the United States as defendant, as in cases within the general jurisdiction of the court, and either party shall have the same right of appeal as in such cases.

PUBLIC BUILDING AT TROY, N. Y.

LETTER

FROM

THE SECRETARY OF THE TREASURY,

RELATIVE TO

A further increase in the limit of cost of the public building at Troy, N. Y.

JANUARY 21, 1890.—Referred to the Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds and ordered to be printed.

TREASURY DEPARTMENT,
OFFICE OF THE SECRETARY,
Washington, D. C., January 20, 1890.

SIR: I have the honor to call your attention to the advisability of increasing the limit of cost of the United States post-office, court-house, etc., building at Troy, N. Y., from $300,000 to $500,000, instead of to $400,000, as recommended in my letter to you dated the 15th instant. This increase is asked with a view to enlarging the building to a greater extent than was contemplated by the estimate of $400,000, to permit the use of better material, with granite for facing exterior walls, and to make the building fire-proof. The increase in the size of the building is required for the proper transaction of the postal business.

Respectfully yours,

WM. WINDOM,
Secretary.

AQUIA CREEK, VIRGINIA.

LETTER

FROM

THE SECRETARY OF WAR,

TRANSMITTING

Reports upon the survey and preliminary examination of Aquia Creek, Virginia.

JANUARY 21, 1890.—Referred to the Committee on Rivers and Harbors and ordered to be printed.

WAR DEPARTMENT,
Washington City, January 18, 1890.

The Secretary of War has the honor to transmit to the House of Representatives, in compliance with the river and harbor act of August 11, 1888, a letter from the Chief of Engineers, together with a copy of a report of Mr. S. T. Abert, United States agent, upon the survey of Aquia Creek, Virginia, and also a copy of his report upon the preliminary examination of the same.

REDFIELD PROCTOR,
Secretary of War.

The SPEAKER OF THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES.

OFFICE OF THE CHIEF OF ENGINEERS,
UNITED STATES ARMY,
Washington, D. C., January 17, 1890.

SIR: I have the honor to submit herewith a copy of the report dated January 13, 1890, upon the survey of Aquia Creek, Virginia, made by Mr. S. T. Abert, United States agent, to comply with the requirements of the river and harbor act of August 11, 1888, and accompanying sketch.

A copy of the report upon the preliminary examination of the locality dated December 3, 1888, is also herewith.

The project for improvement proposes the excavation of a channel from Brent's Point to the Narrows 150 feet wide and 8 feet deep at low water; channel at mouth of Austen's Creek 80 feet wide and 8 feet deep, and building brush and pile dike at a cost of $101,278.

Very respectfully, your obedient servant,

THOS. LINCOLN CASEY,
Brig. Gen., Chief of Engineers.

Hon. REDFIELD PROCTOR,
Secretary of War.

PRELIMINARY EXAMINATION OF AQUIA CREEK, VIRGINIA.

UNITED STATES ENGINEER OFFICE,
Washington, D. C., December 3, 1888.

GENERAL: In compliance with your order of September 29, 1888, I have the honor to submit a report upon the result of a preliminary examination of Aquia Creek, Virginia.

DESCRIPTION.

From Wharton's Landing to the Narrows the course of the creek winds through marshes with a depth of from 3½ to 17 feet at low water; from the Narrows to the mouth the depth varies from 4 to 6 feet; below the Narrows the creek expands to three-quarters of a mile wide and then gradually widens to about 3½ miles at the mouth. From the Narrows to the mouth the distance is about 4½ miles. Before the improvement (in 1878) the least depth in the channel was about 2 feet at low water. It is now about 4 feet.

PAST HISTORY OF THE IMPROVEMENT.

Report of a survey of the creek, made under the order of Col. William P. Craighill, will be found in the Report of the Chief of Engineers for 1872, page 708.

Between 1872 and 1878, $10,000, appropriated by Congress, were expended in cutting a channel near Austin's Creek and Wharton's Landing, and from a point below the Narrows nearly as far as the railroad bridge, a distance of 4,750 feet, and for a distance of about 1,800 feet below the bridge. Three cuts were made with a width of about 50 feet and a low-water depth of from 4 to 5 feet. The total length of the cuts was 2⅓ miles, and the least bid for the dredging was 11¾ cents.

The depth in the improved channel has but slightly changed since the close of work, about ten years since, but shippers find the depth insufficient for the present demand upon the navigable condition of the creek.

A petition signed by shippers and farmers of Stafford County has been received respectfully requesting an improvement of the creek to meet the present demands of trade.

STATISTICS OF TRADE.

From letters before me I am able to gather the wishes of those interested in regard to the depth of the channel desired, and also to estimate the present trade of the creek.

Mr. Flatford estimates the value of shipments at about $75,000 and the receipts at $15,000, or the total shipments and receipts above the railroad bridge at about $90,000 annually.

The largest items in the statistics are found in railroad ties, pine and oak wood, poplar and cedar, and in lumber. Poplar is shipped to Philadelphia, where it is converted into pulp for paper manufactures; but the large barges with the material are delayed by the necessity of completing their loads below the bridge.

The Aquia Creek quarries have been known and worked for many years. They afford an inexhaustible supply of stone, which can be economically worked, and the stone has been used in building parts of the Capitol and Treasury Department, at Washington, D. C.

The present cost of shipping seems to be the chief objection to its extensive introduction into the markets of the country.

Shippers desire a channel of not less than 8 feet in depth at low water, and of a width at bottom of 100 feet.

This desire seems to me to be reasonable, and I respectfully recommend the creek as worthy of improvement.

The least amount which will enable me to make the survey and report contemplated by the act, including a project with estimate of the cost of the improvement is $350.

Very respectfully, your obedient servant,

S. T. ABERT,
United States Agent.

The CHIEF OF ENGINEERS, U. S. A.

SURVEY OF AQUIA CREEK, VIRGINIA.

UNITED STATES ENGINEER OFFICE,
Washington, D. C., January 13, 1890.

GENERAL: I have the honor to submit the report in duplicate of a survey for the improvement of Aquia Creek, Virginia, made in obedience to your order of April 1, 1889.

Description.—The creek has been described in the report of Capt. C. B. Phillips upon a survey made by him under the direction of Major Craighill in 1871. (See Report of Chief of Engineers for 1872, page 708.)

Aquia Creek lies wholly in Stafford County, Va., and is a tributary of the Potomac River, into which it empties about 41 miles below Washington. The head of navigation is at Wharton's Landing, about $7\frac{1}{4}$ miles from the mouth of the creek. The channel near this point is very shallow and narrow. Dent's Landing, about three-quarters of a mile below Wharton's Landing, is as high as navigation can be carried with safety. It is not practicable, except at great expense, out of proportion to the trade, to maintain a channel farther up-stream, and improvement above Dent's Landing is not recommended.

The only obstructions from Dent's Landing to the "Narrows," 2 miles farther down, consist of the following:

(1) A short bar, about 350 feet in length, at the mouth of Austen's Creek, where the channel is very narrow and the depth at low water is not more than 4 feet.

(2) A wreck of a vessel about 100 feet long at Coal Landing, which occupies a portion of the channel. This was sunk about 1881. It has a depth of about 2 feet at low water upon the highest portion. (See sounding-book, this survey, last page.)

(3) One large snag, in the channel but visible, about four-tenths mile below coal landing.

With these exceptions, the depths at low water from Dent's Landing to Coal Landing are from 5 to 15 feet; and from Coal Landing to the "Narrows" are from 8 feet to 16 feet. No improvement is required in this distance but the removal of the obstructions named.

At the "Narrows," $2\frac{3}{4}$ miles below Wharton's Landing, the stream suddenly widens, the width below varying between the "Narrows" and the mouth from 1,000 feet to 1 mile. From this point nearly to the mouth for a distance of 19,000 feet, or somewhat more than $3\frac{1}{2}$ miles, there was originally a continuous shoal, on which the depth at low water varied from 2 feet at the upper end to 6 feet at the lower end

The bottom is principally soft mud. It is this shoal which forms the principal obstruction to the navigation of the creek.

Through the upper end of this flat, from the "Narrows" to a point about 1,800 feet below the Richmond, Fredericksburg and Potomac Railroad bridge, a distance of about 8,500 feet, a channel from 40 to 50 feet wide and about 5 feet deep at low water was dredged between 1874 and 1878.

It was carried to the original natural channel, having a depth of about 5 feet at low water, below the railroad bridge. Vessels pass through the railroad bridge by means of a draw, which is only 28 feet in width. This draw was improperly located to suit the convenience of the railroad rather than navigation, and at present it seems best to accept its position and to make the new cut pass under the bridge at this point. The channel formerly dredged is still about 40 feet wide and from 4 to 5 feet deep, the dimensions having been but little changed by filling. In some places the depth has increased since dredging. Its width and depth are, however, insufficient for good navigation.

The parts of this shoal which now offer the greatest obstruction are those off and below Davis' Point and Watson's Point, where no channel has been excavated. At these places the depths are from 4 to 4½ feet at low water. Vessels can not be loaded in the creek to deeper draught than this, as the range of tide is very small—about 1.4.

From the lower end of this shoal at Thorny Point to deep water in the Potomac River, the channel is more than 7 feet deep, except at one short bar just below Simms' Point, where the depth is from 5 to 7 feet for a distance of about 600 feet.

Survey.—The field work of the survey was begun on September 3, 1889, and was closed on September 16, 1889. On account of the small amount of funds available the observations were necessarily limited in their extent to such only as were most needed for the purposes of an estimate.

The survey covered the distance from Wharton's Landing to the 9-foot curve on the Potomac River which is about 8.1 miles.

Base-line, shore stations, etc.—A base-line 2558.8 feet long was measured near Thorny Point. Upon this was based a system of triangles by which fourteen shore-stations were located at the prominent points from the mouth of the creek to the "Narrows."

From these stations the sounding ranges were located by triangulation. At the railroad bridge the work was checked by a base-line 1,110.95 feet in length, measured on the bridge. The observations, on being platted, were found to agree very closely with those of the former survey.

The hubs placed at the stations were of locust, carefully set in the ground and suitably marked with tacks. They will be useful in connection with any future operations.

The important channel ranges were referenced by marks placed on the shore and on the bridge. (See chart and field-notes.)

Soundings.—From Wharton's Landing to Coal Landing, a distance of 1½ miles, lines from 100 to 200 feet apart, perpendicular to the channel, were located by measurement for about 3,300 feet at the bars, and soundings were taken along these lines, across the channel, at intervals of 10 feet. From Coal Landing to the "Narrows" no examination was required, the depth being already sufficient.

For the entire distance of 5.4 miles, from the "Narrows" to the 9-foot curve in the Potomac River, lines perpendicular to the channel, from 200 to 800 feet long and about 400 feet apart, were carefully sounded.

The entire distance over which soundings were located by measurement or triangulation was about 6 miles. But few soundings were taken except those on and near the proper course for a channel. The shoreline of the survey made by Captain Phillips in 1871, and the soundings of that survey, except in and near the channel, have been used in the drawing.

Borings.—Nineteen borings were taken at points along the channel. Their positions are shown upon the chart herewith. The bottom at and near Wharton's Landing was found to be sand on top, then clay and gravel. From the "Narrows" to Simms' Point, including nearly the whole length of the proposed dredging, it is very soft mud, except at one point above the railroad bridge known as the "gravel pile," where it consists of sand and gravel with small stones, of the character of soft sand-stone. The extent of this hard material is limited to a distance of about 200 or 300 feet along the channel.

From Simms' Point outward to the 9-foot curve the material is mostly sand. No difficulty was experienced in reaching a depth of from 11 to 17 feet below low-water level, except at the "gravel pile," where the penetration was difficult, but still practicable.

For much the greater part of the proposed channel, the softness of the bottom is such as will make it necessary to dredge a wide cut to allow for long slopes of the sides, which will assume a slope of probably not more than 1 foot in 10, or possibly still flatter. (See chart and sounding-book for borings.)

Range of tide.—On account of storms the tides were too irregular during the short stay of the party to properly determine the range. The mean range observed was 1.1 feet at Thorny Point. The range at Liverpool Point, on the Potomac River, 6 miles above the mouth of the creek, is stated on the Coast Survey charts to be approximately 1.4 feet. This is probably more nearly correct.

Gauge references.—The low-water level, as determined by observations and other information received during the survey, was referenced at four points, as follows, viz:

(1) At Wharton's landing three galvanized nails were placed $6\frac{1}{10}$ feet above low-water level, in a leaning sycamore at the water's edge.

(2) At the northeast end of the draw-bridge, on the lower legs of the third bent of the trestle from the shore, a row of nails was placed at 2 feet above low water.

(3) Between the landing at the "Richmond Ducking Club" house and the landing at Thorny Point, on a pile about 50 feet from high-water mark, a row of nails was placed at 3 feet above low water, and 2 nails were placed at 2 feet above low water.

(4) On the third pile outward from station D, at the inner end of the old railroad wharf, a row of nails was placed 3 feet above low-water mark.

Cross-section.—A rough cross-section of the creek, taken near Thorny Point, upon a line on which the depth in the channel is not less than 10 feet for a width of 150 feet, shows the following result:

	Approximate width.	Approximate area of cross-section.
	Feet.	Square feet.
At low water	3,400	13,940
At high water	3,500	18,770

RESOURCES OF TRIBUTARY COUNTRY.

The creek passes through a fertile farming country, a part of which is dependent upon the navigation for supplies. Large quantities of pine, oak, and poplar timber are found near the upper part. The pine and oak timber furnish sawed lumber and firewood, which are shipped to Washington; and railroad ties, sent principally to Philadelphia. The poplar wood is shipped to Philadelphia and is used for the manufacture of paper. Five or six saw-mills are said to be engaged in sawing lumber, a part of which is shipped. There are several fisheries on the creek.

The quarries of sand stone existing at several points above the railroad bridge are well known. The stone is a whitish gray in color, is easily worked, and some of it is of excellent quality for building. The durability of the best grade has been well tested. As with most quarries, there are several grades. The quantities are said to be almost inexhaustible. The quarries are conveniently situated for water transportation of their product. Stone from these quarries was largely used in the construction of some of the earlier public buildings in Washington, notably in the Capitol, in the Treasury, and in the White House. Recently but little of the stone has been shipped, which is probably largely due to the ease with which other stone is procured, and the difficulty and cost of transportation arising from the lack of a suitable channel in the creek.

Navigation and trade.—The principal shipments are those of cordwood, poplar wood, and railroad ties. The former is shipped in light-draught sail-vessels, schooner-rigged, known as "long-boats." The poplar wood and ties are shipped in barges which must be of greater draught, to enable them to safely ply Chesapeake Bay and Delaware Bay to Baltimore and Philadelphia. The barges have a draught of 8 feet when loaded. They load down to 4½ feet deep at the landings, pass over the bars at high water and complete their loads from lighters or long-boats at deep water at the mouth of the creek.

A considerable amount of lumber, piles, cedar posts, spokes, produce, and grain is shipped. Fish and garden truck are shipped at certain seasons.

The larger part of the shipments by water is from Coal Landing. The remainder is mostly from landings above that point.

The annual value of shipments by water is stated by Mr. R. L. Flatford, of Garrisonville, Va., who is largely interested in the trade, to be approximately $74,500, and the annual receipts of merchandise, etc., by water are placed by him at approximately $15,000, making a total annual value of trade by water of about $89,500.

Mr. Flatford says:

> I believe if we could have our creek dredged so that a vessel or barge drawing 8 feet of water could come and go without hindrance that our trade would be increased at least 20 per cent.

Major E. D. T. Myers, of Richmond, Va., general superintendent of the Richmond, Fredericksburg and Potomac Railroad, states that the average number of vessels passing the draw of the railroad bridge in the summer months is 28 per month.

The trade would probably be considerably increased by shipments of stone if a channel were made suitable for the vessels required for its transportation.

Future improvement.—A channel for the navigation of the creek from its mouth to the "Narrows," should have a depth at low water of from 7 to 8 feet and a bottom width of from 90 to 100 feet. This will permit the egress at most stages of tide of loaded barges drawing 8 feet of water, and the necessity of lightering part of the loads a distance of five or six miles will be avoided. It will permit the entrance at all stages of such steamers as now ply the Potomac River and its tributaries. The depth proposed is the controlling depth at the entrance of the channel from the lower limit of the survey to Thorny Point. The proposed width, 100 feet at bottom, is necessary to enable vessels to pass each other safely in the long cut.

On account of the soft character of the material, and the consequent long slope which the sides of the cut will assume, it will be necessary to make the excavation 150 feet wide in order to secure and maintain the bottom width proposed (100 feet). This would probably be as economical and as safe as to build structures to maintain the width, while the beating of sailing vessels of light draught, or at high water, outside of and across the channel would not be interfered with by longitudinal dikes.

It is assumed from the present fair condition of the cuts which were dredged below the "narrows" from ten to fifteen years ago that there will be no necessity for structures to maintain the dredged channel below the "narrows," provided the excavated material be deposited upon lines nearly parallel to the channel and on both sides of it, so as to confine the greater part of the strength of the tidal current between the lines of deposit.

Below the railroad bridge the deposit should be made in three portions on each side of the channel; the upper deposit should leave a channel of about 1,100 to 1,200 feet wide at its upper end; the middle portion of the deposit should be at about 600 feet from the outer edge of the channel upon each side, and the lower or third portion should diverge so as to leave a channel-way of about 1,500 feet wide at the lower end. This width would permit the beating of vessels drawing about 5 feet of water. Above the bridge, where beating is not practicable on account of the shoal on each side, the deposits may be placed at distances of not less than 100 feet from the edges of the cut. Sufficient openings should be left at suitable points to permit the tidal flow into and out of the large bays on each side, and to allow the necessary ingress and egress of fishing-boats.

The deposits should be placed to the height of low water or half-tide, if practicable, and may be 100 to 300 feet wide at base. Even in depths of 3 or 4 feet at low water, and in less, they will probably become covered with a kind of water-grass, which in the late summer grows over the shallow portion of the creek. This will protect the deposits from erosion and will render them less likely to spread. In the summer and fall it will force more of the current through the channel. Along the crest of the bank the willows should be encouraged to grow and any sort of suitable shrubbery should be planted.

A comparison of the charts so far as it could be made shows that apparently no large amount of deposit of silt has occurred since the survey made by Captain Phillips in 1871.

Through the short bar at the mouth of Austen's Creek, above Coal Landing, a cut 80 feet in width will be sufficient. The protection of the channel there would require about 100 feet of dike built of piles and brush, to deflect the current of Austen's Creek at its entrance into Aquia, so that its course may be more oblique to the main channel. If such an improvement as is suggested herein be made, the railroad company should be required to provide a draw with a width of from 36 to 40 feet in place of the one now in use. The present draw is only 28 feet wide, which is barely sufficient to admit some of the larger vessels now passing it.

The lines of the proposed cut and of the proposed deposits of dredged material are indicated on the chart herewith. The hatched portions show the required dredging, which is in three parts, viz:

At Austen's Creek for a length of about 350 feet (80 feet wide).

From the "Narrows" to Thorny Point, a distance of 19,000 feet (150 feet wide).

Below Simms' Point for a length of about 600 feet (150 feet wide).

ESTIMATE.

The estimate for the improvement, based upon the chart herewith transmitted, is as follows, the items being named in the order of importance, viz:

Excavation from Brent's Point to the "Narrows," for a cut of 150 feet wide and 8 feet deep at low water, 434,390 cubic yards of soft mud, at 20 cents	$86,878
Excavation at the mouth of Austen's Creek, for a cut 80 feet wide and 8 feet deep at low water, 3,760 cubic yards of sand and mud, at 25 cents	940
For building 100 linear feet of brush and pile dike at the mouth of Austen's Creek, at $2.50 per linear foot	250
	88,068
The above are estimated to be the contract prices. To this must be added for superintendence, inspection, and other contingencies, 15 per cent., which amounts to	13,210
Making the total cost	101,278

To be completed for the above amount in not less than three years the appropriations should be about $33,800 for each year.

A cut 100 feet wide and from 6 to 7 feet deep at low water could be made for about one-half of the above estimate, but it would more rapidly decrease in width on account of the nature of the bottom.

As stated the decrease in the depth of the work already done has been found to be small after a lapse of from 10 to 15 years.

The cost of removing the wreck at Coal Landing is not included, as this may be done from the indefinite appropriation for removing sunken vessels.

The following drawings accompany this report:

(1) A field map, scale $\frac{1}{10000}$, which is submitted in an incomplete condition on account of want of funds to finish it.

(2) A general map* (scale $\frac{1}{60000}$). The field books and other records of the survey are in this office.

The survey was skillfully made, with limited means at my command, by the party under Mr. L. R. Grabill, assistant engineer.

SURVEY OF THE KENNEBUNK RIVER, MAINE.

LETTER

FROM

THE SECRETARY OF WAR,

TRANSMITTING

Reports upon the survey and preliminary examination of Kennebunk River, Maine.

JANUARY 22, 1890.—Referred to the Committee on Rivers and Harbors and ordered to be printed.

WAR DEPARTMENT,
OFFICE OF THE SECRETARY,
Washington, January 20, 1890.

The Secretary of War has the honor to transmit to the House of Representatives, in compliance with the requirements of the river and harbor act of August 11, 1888, a letter from the Chief of Engineers, together with a copy of the report of Lieut. Col. Jared A. Smith, Corps of Engineers, upon the survey of the Kennebunk River, Maine, and a copy of his report upon the preliminary examination of the same.

REDFIELD PROCTOR,
Secretary of War.

The SPEAKER OF THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES.

OFFICE OF THE CHIEF OF ENGINEERS,
UNITED STATES ARMY,
Washington, D. C., January 17, 1890.

SIR: I have the honor to submit herewith a copy of the report dated January 11, 1890, upon the survey of Kennebunk River, Maine, made by Lieut. Col. Jared A. Smith, Corps of Engineers, to comply with the requirements of the river and harbor act of August 11, 1888, and accompanying drawings.

A copy of the report upon the preliminary examination of the locality dated January 7, 1889, is also herewith.

The project for improvement contemplates the preservation of the channel of the river at the "Wading Place" by constructing a jetty and training wall with a view to contracting the sectional area and forcing the currents through the part where depth is required, and the repair of the wooden pier and the east and west jetties. The total estimated cost is given at $20,000.

Very respectfully, your obedient servant,

THOS. LINCOLN CASEY,
Brigadier-General, Chief of Engineers.

Hon. REDFIELD PROCTOR,
Secretary of War.

PRELIMINARY EXAMINATION OF KENNEBUNK RIVER, MAINE.

UNITED STATES ENGINEER OFFICE,
Portland, Me., January 7, 1889.

SIR: I have the honor to submit the following report of a preliminary examination of the Kennebunk River, Maine.

In compliance with instructions from the Chief of Engineers I visited the Kennebunk River, December 1, 1888.

The navigable portion of the river is practically limited to the part from its mouth to the bridge, a distance of less than 1¼ miles; the bridge, however, is provided with a draw and small vessels occasionally go to points above.

The river is in the collection district of Kennebunk, of which Kennebunk is the port of entry.

From above the bridge to the mouth of the river on the east sidesi situated the village of Kennebunkport, which is a port of delivery.

Improvements were commenced upon the Kennebunk River in 1798 by the State of Massachusetts, under sanction of Congress, which authorized a duty for re-imbursing the expense.

From March 2, 1829, to March 3, 1881, inclusive, Congress made appropriations amounting to $65,175 for improving the Kennebunk River.

Two jetties were constructed across the bar at the mouth of the river.

The east jetty is about 545 feet long and has a substantial pier head at the outer end to serve as a base for a beacon.

On the shore end the jetty has a wing extending obliquely inland a distance of 225 feet.

The west jetty is of essentially the same type, though smaller; its length is 290 feet, and the wing extends 160 feet obliquely from the jetty. Both jetties are built of heavy stone carefully laid up in steps without mortar. These piers have both been much injured by the action of the sea in heavy gales, assisted no doubt by the effects of changing temperature and by the ice.

The first jetty on the east side was of wooden cribs filled with stone, and the present stone jetty utilizes the old work in part for a foundation. The old wood-work extended several hundred feet above the mouth of the river for a shore protection, and a pier about 300 feet long, like a wharf, was built for a similar purpose about 1,000 feet above the mouth of the river.

The title to the land immediately bordering the shore on the east side, covering the place where the works named were built, is vested in the United States, though the descriptions and marks for the boundaries do not seem to be entirely explicit.

The present commerce of the Kennebunk River is very small. The latest statistics received are for the year ending June 30, 1888, viz.:

Arrivals and departures of vessels coastwise	75
Vessels built in the district	3
Tonnage of vessels built	75

The improvements already made seem to me to be as great as the business and commerce of the place justify.

It does not however appear to be good policy to permit the works already built to become ruined from lack of care and repairs. The channel proper of the river does not appear at present to require any attention.

It would seem that such repairs or reconstruction of works already built as may be needed to maintain them in good condition should be carried out, but the amount of navigation does not justify anything further.

With especial reference to the preceding remarks I consider the river worthy of improvement.

It will be impracticable to give an estimate of expense of repairs until a small survey can be made to obtain dimensions and details of the old works for which the office has no drawings. Such a survey will cost $100.

Very respectfully, your obedient servant,

JARED A. SMITH,
Lieut. Col., Corps of Engineers.

The CHIEF OF ENGINEERS, U. S. A.

SURVEY OF KENNEBUNK RIVER, MAINE.

UNITED STATES ENGINEER OFFICE,
Portland, Me., January 11, 1890.

GENERAL: In compliance with the requirements of section 13 of river and harbor act of August 11, 1888, communicated with instructions from Chief of Engineers dated April 1, 1889, I have the honor to submit the following report of a survey of the Kennebunk River, Maine.

A preliminary report was submitted January 7, 1889, in which the river and its commerce were described. Later in the season it was reported to me that the east jetty had been considerably injured in heavy storms.

In June, 1889, I made a careful examination of the west pier, and subsequently employed Mr. William B. Bennett to make a survey of all the piers and the Government land.

The maps of the river from surveys made in 1877 and 1878 being sufficient for all present purposes, no further survey of the channel has been made.

During a period extending from 1829 to 1881 fourteen appropriations, aggregating $65,175, were made for the improvement of the Kennebunk River. (See Report of Chief of Engineers, 1888, page 392.)

Under these appropriations the jetties of stone, the wooden pier, and other works mentioned in my preliminary report were constructed.

In addition to these works the channel was widened in several places and deepened in two places by dredging to a depth of 4 feet at mean low water, and the tops of some ledges of rock were removed to the same depth.

The range of tides in the Kennebunk River is 9 feet between the planes of mean low and mean high water.

The dredging which was done does not appear to have resulted in any permanent benefits, as the channel has filled so much that coal-vessels of more than 10½ feet draught of water cannot be sure of an entrance at high water on the low range of tides. This makes it somewhat difficult to procure suitable vessels and doubtless increases the cost of freight.

The principal point where the filling has occurred is at the "Wading Place," which was formerly deepened.

To accompany and explain this report I forward in a separate roll two tracings in sheets numbered 1 and 2. The map upon sheet number 2 gives the soundings which were taken after the dredgings were completed and they do not represent the present condition.

To preserve the channel at the "Wading Place" it will be necessary to construct a jetty and training wall which shall contract the sectional area of the river and force the currents through the part where the depth is required. There seems to be but little doubt that with this improvement a depth of 5 feet or more at low water may be maintained over the shoal, and this would permit the loading of vessels at least 2 feet deeper than the present limited draught.

The old wooden pier just below the "Wading Place" is very insecure. Its original design was to prevent vessels from being drifted upon the rocky shore where the channel changes direction. The pier consists of a crib-work of timber floored over at a considerable height above the bottom and held down by a weight of gravel and clay.

Kennebunkport being a summer resort, this pier is much frequented by visitors, especially women and children. Some five or six years ago a portion of the flooring and its load fell in, and that part was subsequently repaired. In a place like this it is quite impracticable to prevent the gathering of visitors upon the pier, and it should therefore be made secure.

The location of the pier is indicated upon the map of mouth of river. Both the east and the west jetties at the mouth of the river need extensive repairs.

The plan and general features of sections and elevations of the two jetties are indicated upon sheet 1 of the tracings. The details given also indicate clearly the general condition of the works and the injuries which have been received.

The east jetty not only requires to be substantially relaid where the break has occurred, but repairs are required to foundations in various places.

It is apparent that the heavy seas running upon shore in the angle formed by the two parts of east jetty (see map on sheet 2) hold much of the sand in suspension, and so wash it through the open spaces to the channel on the other side.

To remedy this trouble, as well as to give greater stability to the work, the outer stones where the sand is so washed may be laid in a mortar of hydraulic cement.

The repairs required to the west jetty are few and simple, consisting merely in relaying a portion of the wall and possibly adding a few stones where settling has been discovered.

As remarked in my preliminary report, the commerce of the Kennebunk River is not large. Kennebunk is however a port of entry.

The present annual consumption of coal at Kennebunk port is 7,000 tons, and the annual increase is said to be about 10 per cent.

About 250,000 feet, board measure, of lumber is also brought in by water.

I recommend that the work be not undertaken until funds at least sufficient to complete the repairs can be made available in a single sum.

The estimated cost of the improvement and repairs described is as follows, viz:

Jetty and training wall, 5,500 tons stone, at $1.25		$6,875
Repairing wooden pier by filling with stone:
Outer walls, 2,000 tons split stone, at $2	$4,000
Filling, 2,000 tons rubble-stone, at $1.25	2,500
		6,500
Repairing east jetty, removing and relaying 2,000 cubic yards of stone (part in motar), at $2.50		5,000
Repairing west jetty, removing and relaying 200 cubic yards of stone, at $2.50		500
Contingencies of engineering, etc.		1,125
Total		20,000

Very respectfully, your obedient servant,

JARED A. SMITH,
Lieut. Col., Corps of Engineers.

PUBLIC BUILDING AT OTTUMWA, IOWA.

LETTER

FROM

THE SECRETARY OF THE TREASURY,

RECOMMENDING

An additional appropriation for completion of approaches to the public building at Ottumwa, Iowa.

JANUARY 22, 1890.—Referred to the Committee on Appropriations and ordered to be printed.

TREASURY DEPARTMENT,
OFFICE OF THE SECRETARY,
Washington, D. C., January 21, 1890.

SIR: I have the honor to request that an additional appropriation of $2,500 be made that the United States post-office building at Ottumwa, Iowa, may be completed.

I would respectfully submit for your information the following statement:

Limit of cost of site and building		$40,000.00
Cost of site	$213.44
Erection and completion of the building, excluding post-office screen, heating apparatus, and approaches	29,783.00
Extra to original contract for substituting pressed brick in place of red brick for facing of exterior walls	1,700.00
Contract for post-office screen	2,096.16
Contract for heating apparatus	2,879.00
Contingent and minor items, including cost of preparation of plans, specifications, superintendence, etc	3,118.15
Total		39,789.75
Balance available to date		210.25
Estimated cost of approaches not yet contracted for		2,500.00

The additional $2,500 is requested that the approaches may be completed. This sum will place the building in a complete condition, ready for occupancy.

Respectfully yours,

WM. WINDOM,
Secretary.

SURVEY OF UNION RIVER AND UNION RIVER BAY, MAINE.

LETTER

FROM

THE SECRETARY OF WAR,

TRANSMITTING

Reports upon the survey and preliminary examination of Union River and Union River Bay, Maine.

JANUARY 22, 1890.—Referred to the Committee on Rivers and Harbors and ordered to be printed.

WAR DEPARTMENT,
Washington City, January 20, 1890.

The Secretary of War has the honor to transmit to the House of Representatives, in compliance with the requirements of the river and harbor act of August 11, 1888, a letter from the Chief of Engineers together with the report of Lieut. Col. J. A. Smith, Corps of Engineers, upon the survey of Union River and Union River Bay, Maine, and also a copy of his report upon the preliminary examination of the same.

REDFIELD PROCTOR,
Secretary of War.

The SPEAKER OF THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES.

OFFICE OF THE CHIEF OF ENGINEERS,
UNITED STATES ARMY,
Washington, D. C., January 18, 1890.

SIR: I have the honor to submit herewith a copy of the report dated January 11, 1890, upon the survey of Union River and Union River Bay, Maine, made under the direction of Lieut. Col. Jared A. Smith, Corps of Engineers, to comply with the requirements of the river and harbor act of August 11, 1888, with accompanying map.

A copy of the report upon the preliminary examination of the locality dated November 30, 1888, is also herewith.

The survey embraced the portion of the Union River between the head of navigation to Lord's wharf, a distance of $1\frac{1}{3}$ miles, and of the bar at the mouth of the river for a distance of $1\frac{1}{2}$ miles. The proposed improvement of the river is to obtain by dredging a channel 6 feet deep at mean low water, and from 100 to 150 feet wide, at an estimated cost of $132,000. For the bar at the mouth it is proposed to contract the channel by constructing a jetty and training-wall from the western shore across Horton's Rocks, thence parallel to and about 800 feet from the eastern shore, at an estimated cost of $73,700.

Total estimated cost of the improvement including contingencies, $225,000.

Very respectfully, your obedient servant,

THOS. LINCOLN CASEY,
Brig. Gen., Chief of Engineers.

Hon. REDFIELD PROCTOR,
Secretary of War.

PRELIMINARY EXAMINATION OF UNION RIVER AND UNION RIVER BAY, MAINE.

UNITED STATES ENGINEER OFFICE,
Portland, Me., November 30, 1888.

SIR: In accordance with instructions from the Chief of Engineers in letter dated August 28, 1888, I have to submit the following report of a preliminary examination of the Union River, and Union Bay, Maine.

On the 16th of October I visited the river and in company with two regular pilots in a small boat went over the part where the obstructions are found.

To describe the situation a brief history is necessary.

About seventeen years ago the channel of the river was quite thoroughly improved under appropriations as follows:

By act of Congress approved July 11, 1870	$15,000
By act of Congress approved March 3, 1871	15,000
Total	30,000

There were removed from the channel about 80,000 cubic yards of slabs, edgings, and other refuse of saw-mills, besides a large quantity of rock in ledge and bowlders.

A good channel was made affording a depth of 3 to 4 feet at mean low water and 15 feet at ordinary high water. (Report Chief of Engineers 1872, page 928.)

The mill refuse thus removed was only a small portion which had lodged between the river banks.

The saw-mills, which have been the cause of most of the trouble, are located upon the river above the head of navigation, and much of the material thrown into the stream is washed down to the navigable channel where it sinks and becomes imbedded with mud and sand.

There is a large amount of mill waste in the river above the dam, and occasionally masses break away in freshets and are lodged below. I was informed that in a freshet two years ago last spring the vast quantity of water-logged slabs, edgings, shavings, etc., which came over the dam, added to what was already below, formed a jam entirely across the channel, and when it finally broke through, the opening was in a different place from the former channel. All the difficulty in the river proper is within 1½ miles from the head of navigation, the upper half mile of which forms the harbor of Ellsworth.

I thrust down an iron pointed pole in many places within the distance obstructed, and in every instance the iron point stuck into wood.

The examination was made at low water; a large portion of the area between the river banks was seen to be a tangled mass of slabs, sticks, shavings, sawdust, and dirt, entirely above low water level. These wooden shoals change from year to year and make the low water channel very crooked and shallow.

A steam saw-mill located on the wharves apparently consumes all its waste, but the mills above, which are driven by water power, make but very little effort to keep sawdust and all small waste out of the river.

I visited one of the mills at the dam, perhaps half a mile above the head of navigation, and found a flume carrying a strong current of water under the mill with chutes leading into it, carrying off the waste. The water in the river was full of sawdust and strewn with floating wood. On every obstruction, at the banks or in the stream, piles of sticks and other waste were lodged. A large mass of slabs below the mills, on each side of the river, was on fire, indicating that some care is now taken to keep the slabs out of the channel.

Of course the channel dredged seventeen years ago has no trace of its location left, and it is equally evident that were a new channel to be dredged it would not remain long while present conditions exist.

Even were the dumping of mill waste into the river to be stopped, it is probable that the amount now in the stream, above as well as below the dam, would be sufficient to renew the obstruction from time to time.

About 3 miles below Ellsworth the river becomes very broad and forms what may properly be called the head of Union River Bay. This wide part of the river, or upper part of Union River Bay, is more than a mile long and has an average width of more than half a mile. The slackened currents due to the increased width, have allowed the mill waste to form an extensive deposit.

The upper part of Union River Bay, which forms the mouth of Union River, is very shallow at low water, having been so much filled with mill waste as to destroy the anchorage, which is said to have once been good, and to form an extensive bar.

The coast survey charts indicate that the bar is of sawdust, though it doubtless contains edgings, bark, and slabs.

At average high water vessels drawing 12 feet or perhaps a little more can get over the bar. The coast survey charts give 10 feet as the mean rise and fall of tides.

Although the sawdust and small sticks, when soaked with water, are sufficiently heavy to sink where the current is not rapid, yet when disturbed, such material is difficult to maintain in place; it is very baffling and consequently expensive to dredge.

About seventeen years ago the mouth of the river was improved by removing ledges and bowlders, and it is probable that an improvement of the river and bar would involve some further removal of stone.

A channel dredged through such a bar can not be considered a permanent improvement unless protected in such a manner as to retain the banks and to prevent further lodgment of material by increasing the current in the cut.

A permanent improvement to the channel in the river and bay would therefore be somewhat expensive.

Ellsworth, at the head of navigation on Union River, has a population of a little more than 5,000. A branch of the Maine Central Railroad passes through the town. The place is central to a considerable section of country for which it is a base of supplies.

A list of vessels visiting Ellsworth for the current season shows that the navigation of the river, even in its present condition, is quite extensive.

The list may be condensed as follows:

First—Coasting vessels running to New York.
Number of different vessels		27
Largest tonnage	tons	216
Smallest tonnage	do	82
Total registered tonnage	do	3,183
Greatest draught	feet	13
Least draught	do	9

These vessels all made six or more trips except one which made but five.

The total registered tonnage for all the trips to Ellsworth amounted to 19,759 tons.

Freights are usually very much greater than the measured and registered tonage.

Second. Coasting vessels running to Boston, etc.
Number of different vessels		28
Largest tonnage registered	tons	250
Smallest tonnage registered	do	50
Total tonnage registered	do	2,271
Draught	feet	8 to 11
Trips of each, greatest number		16
Trips of each, least number		8
Tonnage for total of trips	tons	18,308
Smaller coasting vessels:
Number of vessels		11
Total tonnage	tons	385
Number of trips of each		10 to 25
Total tonnage for all trips	tons	7,229
Miscellaneous, other vessels		20
Total tonnage	tons	600
Average trips		3
Total for all trips	tons	1,800

RECAPITULATION.

Total number of vessels		69
Total registered tonnage	tons	6,437
Total number entrances and clearances		682
Total tonnage for all entries, etc	tons	47,096

The following list gives approximately the shipments by water of some of the principal articles of freight during one year past:

Staves	number	40,000,000
Barrel heads	pieces	240,000,000
Long lumber, board measure	feet	25,000,000
Shingles	number	20,000,000
Laths	do	12,500,000
Wood	cords	5,000
Brick	number	1,000,000

The navigation of Union River and Union River Bay is sufficient in my opinion to make them worthy of improvement.

In order, however, that the situation may be understood, it should be remembered that the process of filling the river with sawdust, bark-edgings, etc., is still going on; the waste is thrown in above the point where the river is navigable and therefore seems to be beyond the control of the United States. The State laws are entirely inadequate to fully stop the difficulty even if the laws were enforced.

While the State, town, and individuals permit the continued disposal of mill waste as described, and also the dumping of miscellaneous rubbish into the river, I can not feel justified in submitting a recommendation that the United States shall clear it away.

A survey in sufficient detail to form a definite basis for plans and estimates will cost $600.

Very respectfully, your obedient servant,

JARED A. SMITH,
Lieut. Col., Corps of Engineers.

The CHIEF OF ENGINEERS, U. S. A.

SURVEY OF UNION RIVER AND UNION RIVER BAY, MAINE.

UNITED STATES ENGINEER OFFICE,
Portland, Me., January 11, 1890.

GENERAL: I have the honor to submit the following report of a survey of the Union River and Union River Bay, Maine.

My preliminary report submitted November 30, 1888, described the river and its commerce so fully that but little further discussion is required beyond the mere engineering features of a possible improvement.

In August, 1889, Mr. F. S. Burrowes, United States Assistant Engineer, with the party which had been employed in surveys at other places, completed a survey of the parts of the river in which the obstructions occur. The broad part of the river at its mouth is a part of Union River Bay, and is the only portion of the bay which requires any attention at this time.

For the details of the survey some further points regarding the material deposited in the river and for the plan of improvement which has been matured under my supervision, I refer to Mr. Burrowes's report, which is appended hereto and to the two tracings which are forwarded in a separate roll.

It will be observed that the total expense of the improvement is estimated to be $225,000.

Whether the channel when once dredged in the river will remain in good condition is a matter of grave doubt. It certainly will not so remain while the present custom of depositing mill refuse is continued, and it is probable that even without such continuance the material already there may from time to time become detached and forced into the channel.

As no drift of heavy wood has been formed at the mouth of the river, it is probable that the channel over the bar would be maintained without difficulty.

Very respectfully, your obedient servant,

JARED A. SMITH,
Lieut. Col., Corps of Engineers.

The CHIEF of ENGINEERS, U. S. A.

REPORT OF MR. F. S. BURROWES, ASSISTANT ENGINEER.

UNITED STATES ENGINEER OFFICE,
Portland, Me., January 10, 1890.

COLONEL: I have the honor to submit the following report upon a survey of Union River and Union River Bay, Maine, made under your direction in August, 1889, in accordance with river and harbor act of August 11, 1888.

The tidal portion of Union River begins at the city of Ellsworth and runs southerly 4½ miles, where it empties into Union River Bay, which is one of the arms of Blue Hill Bay.

Owing to the lack of funds necessary to make a complete survey of the river two detached surveys were made, one extending from the head of navigation to Lord's wharf, a distance of 1⅓ miles, and the other, covering the bar at the mouth, a length of 1½ miles, leaving an unsurveyed portion between of 1⅔ miles. The chart of the U. S. Coast Survey shows depths varying from 7 to 23 feet at mean low water throughout this unsurveyed interval.

The surveys were plotted on two separate sheets, which are herewith submitted: Chart No. 1 shows the river between Ellsworth and Lord's wharf, and is drawn to a scale of 1:2000. Chart No. 2 shows the bar at the mouth of the river, and is drawn to a scale of 1:3000. A triangulation was made for each survey, the high-water lines and wharves being filled in between by stadia measurement. The soundings were located by intersection with two transits, and depths measured with a lead on a graduated brass chain.

The soundings on both charts are reduced to the plane of mean low water as established by the U. S. Coast Survey in 1879. The bench-mark used is thus described by the coast survey. The guage was fastened to the southeast corner of Captain Bonsey's wharf on the right bank of Union River, 1½ miles below Ellsworth. The bench-mark is a hole drilled in ledge of rock 20 meters northwest from guage and one meter from high water-mark and filled with lead. It is 40 feet from the northeast corner of Captain Bonsey's house. The bench-mark is 15.55 feet above mean low water. Two auxillary bench marks were established, the elevations of which were obtained by water level at high tide from the coast survey bench mark.

Bench mark No. 1 is shown on Chart No. 1, and is a horizontal drill hole in ledge 170 feet above Tinker's wharf and is 9.0 above mean low water.

Bench mark No. 2 is shown on Chart No. 2, and is a horizontal drill hole in ledge on the point 2,150 feet below the spindle, and is 12.1 feet above mean low water.

The mean range of tides as determined by the coast survey at the same time is 10 feet.

From the narrows to Ellsworth there is a crooked channel having a general depth of only a little more than 2 feet at mean low water. In 1871 and 1872 the United States Government dredged a channel in a nearly direct line between the narrows and the old steam-boat landing at Ellsworth. It was made 150 feet wide and 4 to 5 feet deep at mean low water. The present survey indicates that no permanent benefit was derived from the improvement then made. The rapid filling which has taken place is undoubtedly the result of the large quantities of slabs, edgings, shavings, sawdust, and other saw-mill waste which have been and are now thrown into the river. The flats at low water are seen to be a compact mass of slabs, edgings, butts, sawdust, etc., and at times the surface of the river is so covered with floating débris as to make it difficult to get through it with a small boat. The people living along the banks of the river gather some of the best of the floating wood and pile it above high-water mark to dry for their winter's supply of fuel. In one case I knew of a small sloop coming into the river and loading with wood from the stream. The supply, however, greatly exceeds the demand, and the most of it floats up and down with the tide until it gradually becomes saturated and sinks to the bottom to perform its part in obstructing the channel.

The river at the mouth widens to more than 3,000 feet, and a large bar has formed there which leaves only a narrow channel along the eastern shore with an available depth of a little more than 4 feet at mean low water. This bar, as shown by sixty-one borings made, is composed of saw-dust, sand, and mud. The almost entire absence of mill waste, other than saw dust, would seem to indicate that all the larger refuse lodges in the narrow river above.

The commerce of the river, which is quite extensive, consists almost exclusively in carrying out sawed lumber and bringing in coal and some small supplies. The vessels used for this purpose can not have a depth of draught much greater than the flow of the tide, and are towed in and out at extreme high water, one small tow-boat performing the whole service. A small-steam boat, connecting with the Boston and Portland boats, makes tri-weekly trips between points in Blue Hill and Union River Bays, and when the tide serves, lands at Lord's wharf, 1⅓ miles below Ellsworth. Generally, however, the nearest landing it makes is at Surry, near the head of Patten's Bay.

The following estimate is to obtain a channel by dredging from Lord's wharf to Ellsworth with a depth of 6 feet at mean low water, and a width through the narrows of 100 feet, and thence a width of 150 feet to and in front of the wharves at Ellsworth. As this channel is at the head of the tidal basin it is thought that if the natural conditions were partially restored and maintained, the depth would hold without the aid of contraction works. In order to obtain a clear depth of 6 feet it will be necessary in material of this nature to make an allowance for dredging at least a foot below grade, and the quantities in the estimate are calculated on that basis for situ measurements.

As the river at its mouth has an abnormal width, it is proposed to contract it by a jetty and training wall running from the western shore across Horton's Rocks and thence parallel to and about 800 feet from the eastern shore. It is to be built of rough stone, with top six feet wide and six feet above mean low water, and side slopes of 45 degrees. The jetty and training wall will have a combined length of 6,700 feet and the training-wall will be marked in three places with rough stone beacons built to a height of six feet above mean high water.

ESTIMATES.

220,000 cubic yards (in scows) dredging, slabs, edgings, etc., at 60 cents	$132,000
67,000 tons of stone for jetty and training-wall, at $1.10	73,700
Contingencies	19,300
Total	$225,000

Very respectfully, your obedient servant,

F. S. BURROWES,
Assistant Engineer.

MILFORD HARBOR, CONN.

LETTER

FROM

THE SECRETARY OF WAR,

TRANSMITTING

In response to a resolution of the House a report concerning the further improvement of Milford Harbor, Conn.

JANUARY 22, 1890.—Referred to the Committee on Rivers and Harbors and ordered to be printed.

WAR DEPARTMENT,
Washington City, January 21, 1890.

The Secretary of War has the honor to transmit to the House of Representatives, in response to its resolution of the 18th instant, as follows:

Resolved, That the Secretary of War be, and he hereby is, requested to transmit to this House copies of recent surveys and reports made to him by the engineers of the War Department relating to the dredging and improvement of Milford Harbor in the State of Connecticut.

A letter from the Chief of Engineers dated the 20th instant, and a copy of a report from Col. D. C. Houston, Corps of Engineers, concerning the further improvement of that harbor.

REDFIELD PROCTOR,
Secretary of War.

The SPEAKER OF THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES.

OFFICE OF THE CHIEF OF ENGINEERS,
UNITED STATES ARMY,
Washington, D. C., January 20, 1890.

SIR: I have the honor to return herewith resolution of the 18th instant from the House of Representatives—

That the Secretary of War be, and he hereby is, requested to transmit to this House copies of recent surveys and reports made to him by the engineers of the War Department relating to the dredging and improvement of Milford Harbor, in the State of Connecticut.

And in reply to its reference to this office, beg leave to submit the accompanying copy of report of December 31, 1889, from Col. D. C. Houston, Corps of Engineers, concerning the further improvement of the harbor in question.

Very respectfully, your obedient servant,

THOS. LINCOLN CASEY,
Brig. Gen., Chief of Engineers.

Hon. REDFIELD PROCTOR,
Secretary of War.

INDORSEMENT ON LETTER OF DECEMBER 14, 1889, FROM HON. O. H. PLATT, UNITED STATES SENATE, REQUESTING THAT EXAMINATION BE MADE OF MILFORD HARBOR, CONNECTICUT, WITH REPORT AS TO NECESSITY AND ADVISABILITY OF DREDGING OUT THE CHANNEL TO THE UPPER WHARVES, ETC.

ENGINEER OFFICE, U. S. ARMY,
New York, December 31, 1889.

* * * * * * *

The river and harbor act of August 11, 1888, appropriated $5,000 for Milford Harbor, "to complete the improvement." This referred to the partial project submitted in 1881 for dredging an 8-foot channel through the bar and up to Merwin's Wharf, at an estimated cost of $11,000. This project has been completed and some repairs have been made to Long Jetty. In my annual report for 1889 I submitted an estimate of $2,500 for completing those repairs.

The original project for the improvement of this was:

1st. For breakwater at Welch's Point, to consist of riprap granite, in pieces of a ton an upward in weight, to have a triangular cross-section slopding 45 degrees each side and rise 9 feet above mean low water, and to extend from the shore out to the curve of 15 feet depth, being 890 feet long, and requiring 24,290 tons at $2.50	$60,725
Superintendence, etc	6,275
Total	67,000
2d. For protecting 2,100 feet of the east shore of the harbor from erosion by small jetties made with rocks lying on the shore, abont 100 feet apart, extending from highest water out as far as low water, and raised to the height of the high water 20 jetties, at $250 each	5,000
Add for superintendence	500
Total	5,000
3d. To dredge a channel across the bar at the mouth of the Wepauwog River to a depth of 4 feet and a width of 100 feet, 25,000 cubic yards, at 25 cents	6,250
To prevent filling up again requires a jetty on the east side which will also help to confine the action of the tide to the channel-way. This to be built of piles and riprap stone for a length of 550 feet, at an estimated cost of...	5,000
	11,250
Add for superintendence, etc	1,250
Total	12,500

Making a total for all purposes at Milford Harbor of $85,000.

It also contemplated the improvement of the harbor up to the head of navigation in Milford. The following appropriations have been made and expended in improving this harbor:

June 23, 1874	$5,000
March 3, 1875	13,000
June 18, 1878	10,000
June 14, 1880	5,000
August 2, 1882	5,000
August 11, 1888	5,000
Total	43,000

The east bluff has been protected from erosion by means of small jetties; the jetty on the east side of the channel, "Long Jetty," has been built; and the channel has been dredged 3 feet deep and 100 feet wide up to Merwin's Wharf, thence 4 feet deep and 60 feet wide to Town Wharf and thence 4 feet deep and 40 feet wide to the Straw Works Wharf, at the head of navigation.

A revised estimate of $87,000 was made for the breakwater in 1882 (Annual Report of the Chief of Engineers for 1882, Part I, page 632). Owing to small appropriations, no work has been done on the proposed breakwater. By reference to these projects it will be seen that the object of the breakwater was to provide a harbor of refuge exterior to the harbor proper of Milford. As the breakwater constructed and proposed at the entrance to New Haven Harbor (only 7 miles east of Welch's Point) since the project for Milford Harbor was made, will provide a capacious harbor of refuge, there is no longer any necessity for a breakwater at Welch's Point.

The 4-foot channel dredged in 1878–'80 was not deep enough to be of much benefit to navigation. It is claimed that if the channel were deepened to 8 feet at mean low water the additional depth would be utilized, and a regular steamer would be run between Milford and New York City. The cost of making the channel 8 feet deep at mean low water and 100 feet wide is estimated at $30,000.

I inclose a letter from Mr. W. B. Brotherton, chairman of a commit tee of citizens in reference to the needs of this harbor.

D. C. HOUSTON,
Colonel of Engineers.

LETTER OF MR W. B. BROTHERTON.

UNITED STATES POST OFFICE,
Milford, Conn., December 24, 1889.

DEAR SIR: Yours of the 20th received in regard to commercial statistics of Milford Harbor above Marwin's Wharf.

In reply, would say that it is impossible for me to give much of a report, for the reason that I have not kept a record of arrivals and departures of vessels above the point mentioned. I know that there have been a number of vessels to the upper or town wharves during the year when they have happened to strike the tide right and have water enough, but ordinarily they all have to stop at Merwin's Wharf. You must have some report of the number. You understand, of course, that being obliged to stop so far down near the mouth of the harbor necessitates a long pull on the part of our merchants and manufacturers of all merchandise coming by water.

Another matter that our people have in view, provided we get our channel in shape, and that is putting on a small steamer to run between here and New York, to carry freight principally. This project has been considered for sometime, but has never been pushed by our business men, for the reason that we had such a poor channel, and in the event of putting on a boat she would be getting aground every time she came in, and that, of course, would necessitate lightering and expense, to say nothing of the delay and vexation.

What is desired is a channel about 100 feet wide and 8 feet deep at low water, then we could get along very nicely. What the expense would be I do not know, but one thing I do know, it would be a great accommodation to the 4,000 inhabitants of Milford, besides a part of the town of Orange, that depends upon Milford for some of its supplies.

Please excuse this lengthy letter, but I have been compelled to be rather long-winded in order to have you understand in any way our situation. In a nut-shell, we have demands, but we lack facilities.

Yours, very respectfully,

W. B. BROTHERTON.

Col. D. C. HOUSTON,
Corps of Engineers.

EMPLOYÉS IN NAVY DEPARTMENT.

LETTER

FROM

THE SECRETARY OF THE NAVY,

TRANSMITTING

A report showing the names of employés in the Navy Department, their compensation and time employed; also stating that they have been usefully employed, and that their services are required for the prompt dispatch of business.

JANUARY 22, 1890.—Referred to the Committee on Expenditures in the Navy Department, and ordered to be printed.

NAVY DEPARTMENT,
Washington, January 18, 1890.

SIR: In compliance with section 191 of the Revised Statutes, I have the honor to submit herewith a report showing the names of the clerks and other persons who were employed in the Navy Department during the calendar year 1889; also the time each was actually employed and the sum paid to each.

These persons have been usefully employed, and the number is not in excess of that required for the prompt dispatch of the public business.

All embraced in the list were provided for by appropriations made in the legislative, executive, and judicial act.

Very respectfully,

B. F. TRACY,
Secretary of the Navy.

Hon. THOMAS B. REED,
Speaker of the House of Representatives.
